MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1925.

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1925.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the United States the right to defend the canal's "neutrality" after that.

They would replace the 1903 accord negotiated by President Theodore Roosevelt as a triumph of his big-stick diplomacy and the "manifest destiny" policies of that era.

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heimann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heimann. (Continued on Page 3)

Family disturbed by forced move

by BILL HILL

The two-bedroom apartment is slightly crowded, but for four years it has been home for the George Kyprianidis family.

However, George, his wife, Nia, and their three boys have been told by the management at Brandenberg Park East Apartments that they must move. They have been charged double the normal rent since Aug. 31 when their lease expired.

It is upsetting for the young family to move now, especially when the three boys are happily settled in school and the two-bedroom apartment is all they can afford.

Brandenberg has refused to tell Kyprianidis why the lease is not being renewed. Because Kyprianidis said he was given no explanation and only one week's notice, Arlington Heights officials are investigating whether the Brandenberg management is violating housing discrimination laws. The apartments are located at 2424 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

"They want to throw me out before I can find a new place to live. They don't want to give no reason cause they'll be automatically guilty," Kyprianidis said.

KYPRIANIDIS SAID he can only guess why Brandenberg refuses to renew his lease. One of his theories is that they are trying to weed out tenants with children. He said he knows of other families that in the past year have not been allowed to renew their leases.

Kyprianidis also said he thinks the management at Brandenberg may be retaliating against him for complaining to village health officials last winter about a lack of heat, a broken water tank, poor water pressure, broken drapery rods and doors and the need for new paint on the walls.

Brandenberg officials Wednesday refused to comment, except to say (Continued on Page 8)

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

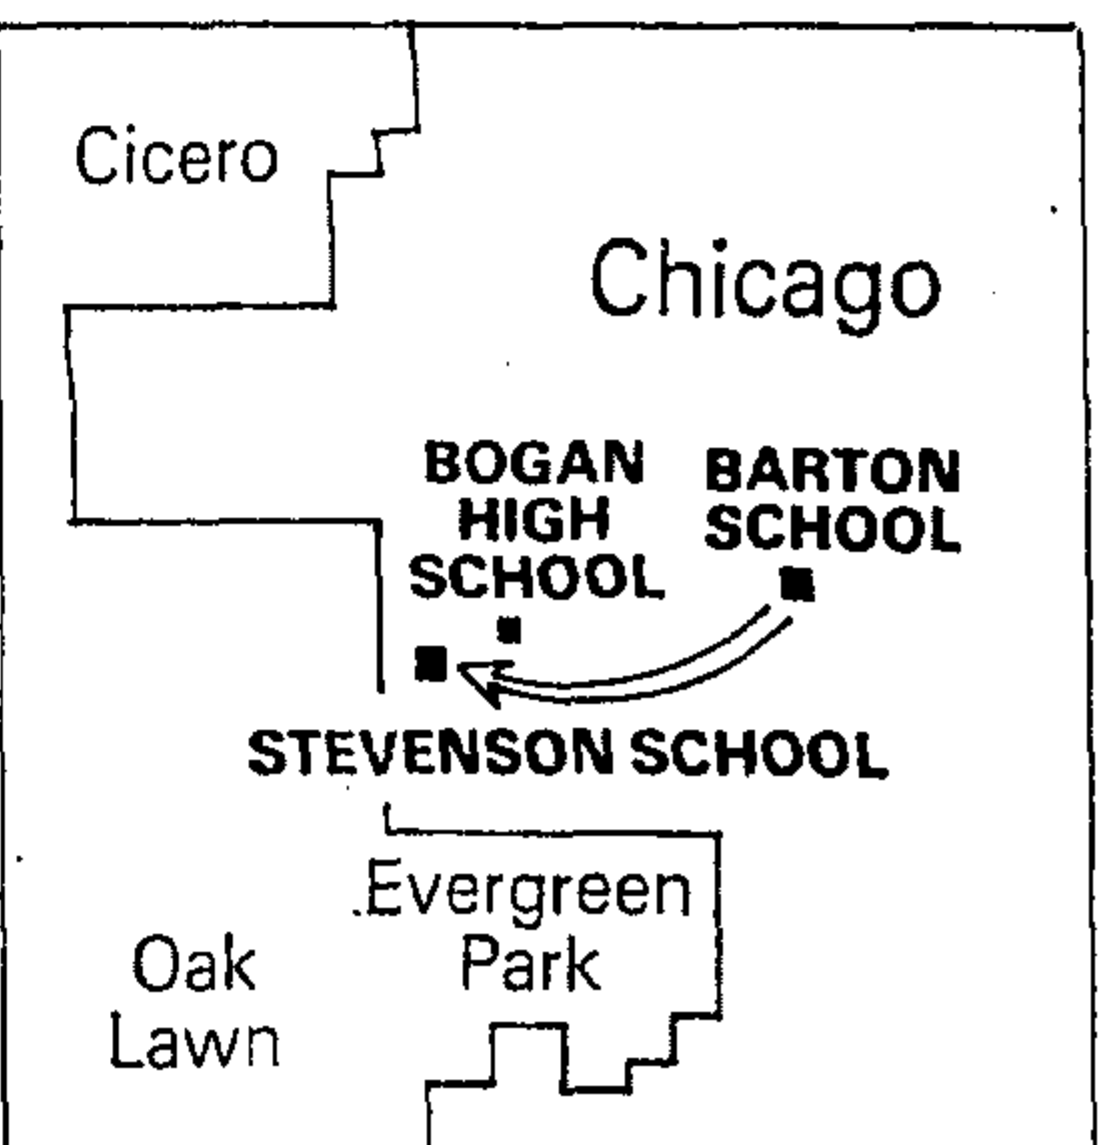

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

South Korea urged to return Park to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Dept. and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill appealed to South Korea Wednesday for the return of businessman Tongsun Park to face charges of trying to buy favors from members of Congress.

Rep. Bruce Caputo, D-N.Y., a member of the House Ethics Committee which is investigating the scandal, sought to force Seoul's hand with a cut-off of American aid.

But his amendment to that effect was coolly received by fellow House members, and a spokesman said the State Dept. is not considering such a tactic.

There were elements of a standoff. The United States has no extradition agreement with South Korea. And the South Korean government, while decrying any dishonor Park might have brought on that country, denied any connection with his activities and gave no indication whether he might be returned.

AT THE STATE Dept., spokesman Hoddling Carter III said "we have been making clear to the South Koreans that we'd like to have Mr. Park back" to face 36 felony counts in a federal bribery-conspiracy indictment made public Tuesday.

"We hope it can be done in a cooperative venture," Carter said in reference to the lack of an extradition treaty between the two countries.

Asked about possible withholding of economic and military assistance if Seoul does not cooperate, Carter said, "I have never heard of such plan. I know of no such threat."

"I am not prepared to speculate on what would happen if the Koreans don't cooperate," said Carter, "but our relations are firmly based on a number of factors, including our security interests in the area."

O'NEILL, IN A rare House floor speech, said:

"As Speaker of the House of Representatives I take the floor at this time to ask that South Korea turn over the relevant documents and the man himself who is alleged to be at the center of the investigation. I'm sure I express the tenor and will of all members of the House when I make this statement."

More than 100 members present at the time endorsed the statement with applause.

"Unfortunately," O'Neill said, "the Republic of Korea does not seem to share our desire to put this matter to an end," noting that Park "remains at large in that nation."

THEN HE SAID in conclusion:

"Whatever the facts may be, they will ultimately come out. The American people will not tolerate suppression and coverup."

Foreign Minister Park Tong-Jin said South Korea will refuse to force Park to return to the United States. "We cannot return one of our citizens to the United States against his will," Park said when asked to comment on the formal U.S. indictment of the 41-year-old businessman on 36 counts of bribery and corruption.

2,000 protest while Panama treaties signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shouting "no, no, no," more than 2,000 protesters demonstrated near the Pan American Union and the White House Wednesday before, during and after the signing of the Panama Canal treaties.

Throughout the historic day, middle-aged veterans, young human rights activists, members of both political parties and even a few American Nazis gave vent to their opposition.

Earlier Wednesday morning, bombs went off in Washington, blowing out dozens of windows of a hotel near the Soviet Embassy and breaking a flower pot near the White House.

The blasts woke up Paraguay's delegation to the Panama Treaty ceremony and produced a Soviet protest of U.S. security.

ONE CALLER to UPI's Washington bureau said the explosives were set off "in retaliation for giving away to the Communists the Panama Canal." The caller was identified as representing the Cuban anti-Communist commando "el condor."

One daytime demonstration was held on the steps of the Capitol, with several members of Congress making speeches denouncing the agreement to turn the canal over to Panama in the year 2000.

Near the Pan American Union, at about the time President Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos were signing the treaties, a bespectacled old woman wearing white loafers and a white dress waved a banner saying: "We built it, we paid for it, keep it!"

Passing cars with bumper stickers reading "Honk if you want to keep canal" drew cheers and applause from the crowds.

THE DEMONSTRATORS — estimated by U.S. Park Police to number more than 2,000 — were kept across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House and at least a block from the Pan American Union, headquarters of the Organization of American States, where virtually all the hemisphere's top leaders gathered for the signing.

In general, those opposing the canal transfer predominated at the Pan American Union, while demonstrators near the White House were mostly protesters of military rule in some Latin American countries, including Panama.

"Jimmy, Jerry, Henry, go home," shouted treaty opponents as Carter and his special guest, former President Gerald Ford, were driven to the ceremony.

Those in the crowd across from the White House, where the President held a dinner for a large group of the visiting dignitaries, carried signs saying "Carter's Human Rights Policy: Dinner with the Fascists" and "Free All Political Prisoners: Oppose Repressive Regimes."

block Senate ratification, and both Carter and Torrijos made clear in their ceremonial remarks they believe rejection would be a diplomatic calamity.

CARTER SAID the twin pacts would do more than "assure a peaceful and prosperous and secure future for an international waterway of great importance to us all . . ."

"They mark the commitment of the United States to the belief that fairness, not force, should lie at the heart of our dealings with the nations of the world . . ."

Striking a conciliatory note, Carter said the original 1903 accord, which gave the United States virtual sovereignty over the waterway permanently, "has become an obstacle to better relations with Latin America."

Torrijos responded with pointed references to the "colonial conquest of our country" represented by the original treaty.

But, looking across at Carter, he said "by raising the banner of morality in international relations you are representing the true spirit of your people . . . you have turned imperial force into moral force."

Residents balk at giving up canal

ANOTHER ARLINGTON Heights couple, Glenn and Adalade Westman, 417 S. Evanston Ave., agreed that the treaty would provide a doubtful future for America's role in using the canal.

"As I understand the situation, the regime over there is not governed by what I would call a free government. I don't like it at all. We're getting into something that we shouldn't be getting into," said Westman, 47. "I don't feel we should be just signing it away."

Wednesday was bingo night at the Mount Prospect VFW post, 601 N. Main St., but members still had time to voice strong opinions against the treaty.

"I think this is a wrong decision," said Les Schneider, 51, of 102 Stratford Pl., Mount Prospect. "We built the thing. We pumped billions of dollars into it. Why should we give it away?"

SCHNEIDER SAID Panama "is just another nation like us, and we'll still have to use it the same as we do now."

Julie Bartlett, 27, of 418 Forest Ave., Mount Prospect, said "the U.S. does so much for the rest of the world, why should it give away the canal?"

A Des Plaines man who asked not to be identified, said, "We've got it, we should keep it. We'll never get it back once we let it go."

Another VFW member, who also asked not to be identified, said, "What's the difference what we think? If he (Carter) is going to sign it, he's going to sign it."

"I didn't vote for Carter at all," announced one middle-aged woman at the VFW.

"I DID," SAID another, "but I thought Reagan was the best man."

A VFW member from Des Plaines who asked not to be identified, said he felt the canal was overrated.

"Half our fleet can't get through it. Our modern air craft carriers and big ships can't use it. It's deteriorated as it is. Militarily speaking, we won't be losing much if we get rid of the canal."

Lance, in the face of continuing criticism, says he is prepared to answer all allegations against him and is scheduled to testify before the Senate committee Sept. 15.

At the White House, Powell told reporters the President is aware of the new information on Lance but "has not and does not intend to ask for his resignation."

Referring to the comptroller's latest report and a Justice Dept. investigation of Lance's alleged use of a National Bank of Georgia corporate plane for personal and campaign purposes, Powell said:

"OBVIOUSLY THERE is new information. But obviously he (Carter) is not disappointed in his appointment of Mr. Lance."

Reimann's supplemental report disclosed for the first time that Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in personal loans from the Fulton National Bank in Atlanta by depositing funds from the First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., in an interest-free account with Fulton.

Reimann said his investigation showed that the loans "would not have been made" had it not been for this "correspondent relationship" between the two banks.

Lance received the loans in more than a dozen transactions beginning in 1963 although the biggest financial obligations were made in the early 1970s, the comptroller said.

Pelt, 39, killed, daughter injured in car accident

Character Actor Timothy Pelt, 39, was killed this week in a two-car accident on the Pacific Coast Highway. His daughter, Danielle Spencer, 12, who plays Dee, the precocious kid sister in the television series, "What's Happening?" suffered multiple injuries in the crash and remains in guarded condition in the intensive care unit of the Santa Monica Hospital. Two other persons were injured, one seriously, when the station wagon Pelt was driving crossed the center dividing line and collided head-on with another car. Pelt and his daughter were in Chicago last month to appear in a parade. He had appeared in several television shows and films including "Police Story" and "Serpico."

Prompted by difficulties with security, the Presley family Wednesday applied for a zoning variance to permit the bodies of singer Elvis Presley and his mother to be moved from the Forest Hill Cemetery to Graceland, Presley's estate. Presley's father, Vernon, first considered the move after three men were arrested Aug. 29 near the marble mausoleum where Presley is entombed. Police believed the men planned to take the body from its crypt and hold it for ransom, but when no burglary tools were found, the three were charged and face treatment to improve her complexion. Cher's self removal from the job came as a surprise to NBC bosses who are now in a dither to come up with someone new by next week.

Robert Vaughn, who plays the villainous Frank Flaherty in ABC's "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," will star in the play "F.D.R." Oct. 11 at Chicago's Studebaker Theater. Vaughn, appearing on the network's "Good Morning, America" show Wednesday, admitted that he plays "a snotty jerk." But, he refused to admit that Flaherty is an H. R. Haldeman character. "Had I thought I'd be playing Haldeman, I would have read the papers that he wrote at the U. of C. (University of California)," he said. Vaughn, a student of history, said he doesn't believe the country ever will see another "bunch of people around" like those who were part of the corrupt Richard Nixon administration.

"FOR A SCHOOL as large as ours, we have nothing — no problems," McKipe said. "Last year was just a bad year."

A teacher was severely beaten last year by an emotionally disturbed student at the school of 2,400 students.

McKipe said the mood among most students at the beginning of this new school year Monday was calm.

"Some of these kids could care less," he said. "Half of the kids wouldn't even know there is a recall election except they didn't have any physical ed because of the voting in the gym."

The biggest topic among students this year, senior Carol Wilson, 16, said, is the change from an open campus last year where students were free to use their free time as they pleased, to a restricted campus this year.

Miss Wilson said underclassmen now are required to be in study halls as well as some upperclassmen who have abused hall privileges.

ONE TEACHER said the change to a restricted campus came about in part because of the events last year and pressure from parents.

Silent Liddy released from prison

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Muttering German, G. Gordon Liddy, who plotted the burglary that shook a nation and toppled a president, strode from prison Wednesday still silent about his role in the 1972 Watergate break-in.

The one-time law enforcement swashbuckler who served more than four years in prison and is now officially a pauper ignored reporters and photographers swarming around him as he emerged with his wife, Frances, from the Danbury Federal Correctional Institution.

Liddy, who has never spoken publicly about the nation's biggest political scandal, refused to answer all but two questions from reporters.

ASKED HOW he felt, Liddy uttered a German phrase meaning, "What does not destroy me, makes me stronger." Asked where he was going, Liddy replied, "East of the sun and west of the moon."

The phrase originated with a song titled "East of the sun and west of the moon" composed by Brooks Bowman for the 1935 musical, "Stags at Bay."

Mrs. Liddy, who has supported the couple's five teen-aged children and maintained their Oxon Hill, Md., home by teaching elementary school in nearby Washington, D.C., parked the family's brown compact car 50 feet from the prison entrance about 9 a.m. and went into the facility to greet her husband.

Liddy, staring straight ahead and looking slim but healthy, walked out of the prison pulling a cart filled with half a dozen brown cardboard boxes containing his belongings.

A FORMER FBI agent disbarred as an attorney after Watergate, Liddy, now 46, was imprisoned Jan. 30, 1973, and has served by far the most time of any Watergate figure — 52½ months. He was released on bond for three months in 1975.

Kids taken from mom with live-in boyfriend

"It was a question of the new morality versus the old morality and the old morality won," said Stuart Litwin, attorney for John Moreck of Buffalo Grove who Tuesday was awarded custody of his three children because his ex-wife had a boyfriend living in her home.

"The judge certainly did the right thing. It was a correct decision," said Litwin of Circuit Court Judge Reuben J. Litfshin. "Every case sets a precedent and whatever another judge thinks is reasonable can be important for future cases," Litwin said.

Mrs. Moreck, 30, of 730 Carriageway Dr., Buffalo Grove, was awarded custody of the children in a January 1976 divorce settlement.

But Moreck, 31, of 1089 S. Miller St., Buffalo Grove, filed a custody suit last May charging that his ex-wife was living in "an atmosphere that is immoral, unwholesome and detrimental to the upbringing of children."

In addition to getting custody of his three boys — aged 3, 6 and 9 — Moreck was relieved of $550 a month alimony and child support payments by the judge.

O'Hare road work to hinder traffic

Traffic at O'Hare International Airport will be snarled for two months during repaving work on the terminal's upper level roadway, Chicago Aviation Comr. J. P. Dunne said Wednesday. Mayor Michael A. Bilandic said travelers should add 45 minutes to usual travel time to the airport during the $750,000 around-the-clock construction, which begins Monday and will end Nov. 12. The current four-lane operation will be cut to two lanes during the first major reconstruction of the roadway since the airport opened in 1959.

States to dismiss lake use plan

The state is moving one step closer to gaining acceptance of a plan that will allow as many as one million more persons to use Lake Michigan water. Representatives of eight states will meet in Chicago today and Friday to discuss the plan, which would make it easier for towns like Wheeling, Streamwood and Hanover Park to get lake water allocations. A U.S. Supreme Court decision limits the amount of water Illinois can divert from Lake Michigan. As a result, many towns are forced to use wells and ground water supplies are dwindling. Under the new plan, the method of measuring the diversion would be changed. Instead of measuring at Lockport, the calculations would be made at intake points along the lake, preventing rain water and treated water from being included in the total.

Under the new plan, the bookkeeping for the runoff would be changed, allowing the state to use average runoff figures instead of maximum figures. Representatives attending the meeting come from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. The plan cannot be adopted if one of the states opposes it.

2 charged in bomb conspiracy

A federal grand jury Wednesday charged two fugitives with being part of a conspiracy by the Puerto Rican nationalist group FALN to bomb buildings in Chicago. The wife of one of the men was sought as a suspect in a fatal New York bombing. Carlos Alberto Torres, 25, and Oscar Lopez, 34, were charged in the indictment with conspiracy; receiving explosives with the intent to use them to kill, injure and intimidate individuals and to damage property; and two counts of concealing stolen explosives.

In New York, a federal warrant was issued for the arrest of Torres' wife, Marie, a suspect in the terrorist bombing last month at the Mobil Oil building in midtown Manhattan in which one person was killed. Torres has been a fugitive since last November, when a "bomb factory" was found in his Chicago apartment. Lopez is also at large. The FALN (the Spanish acronym for Armed Forces of Puerto Rico National Liberation) has claimed responsibility for more than 50 explosions in public places since 1974 in New York, Chicago, Newark and Washington.

Domestic fight ends in death

A 20-hour fight between a man and his wife who shot each other ended Wednesday with the death of the woman and near-death of the man in their apartment in Homewood. "Life had become too hard," said several notes, apparently written by Margaret F. Radovich, police said. Neighbors summoned police after Theodore Radovich, wounded in the chest and mouth, broke two windows of the house to attract attention.

Mrs. Radovich, 50, was pronounced dead on arrival at South Suburban Hospital, Hazel Crest, of a gunshot wound in the chest. She also had a gunshot wound in each leg. Radovich, 56, was listed in critical condition. He has gunshot wounds in the mouth and chest.

Off-duty police officer killed

An off-duty Chicago police officer was shot and killed Wednesday during an attempted bank robbery on the city's Northwest Side. Patrolman James Koumoundouros, 30, a five-year veteran, died at Swedish Covenant Hospital of a bullet wound in the head. A man identified by the FBI as Roberto E. Ramirez, a fugitive from the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., was arrested after a high-speed auto chase along Devon Avenue. Ramirez, who had been shot in the right thigh, faces murder charges as well as a federal bank robbery charge.

Rossberger seeks Keats' House seat in 1st District

John F. Rossberger Jr., a Northfield Democrat, has announced his candidacy for the Illinois House in the 1st District.

It will be Rossberger's second try for the office. He lost his initial bid in November, 1976.

The 1st District includes the northern half of Wheeling Township. Current State Representatives are John E. Porter, R-Evanston; Roger A. Keats, R-Willmette; and Harold A. Katz, D-Glencoe.

Porter has announced his intention to run against U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and Rossberger said he plans to focus his campaign on Keats.

Rossberger said Keats, a conservative, does not represent the majority of persons in the 1st District.

Tax incentives for industry, revision of the workman's compensation law, state aid for education and access to public beaches also will be issues in Rossberger's campaign, he said.

$30,000 development testing OKd in Dist. 59

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has allocated $30,000 for the development of performance tests to see how well students are mastering the district's curriculum.

The money will be used to pay teachers who work overtime to outline the basic skills students should be learning at each grade level and to pay consultants to design tests to see how well the skills are being learned.

Attention initially will be devoted to spelling, reading and math. Although a complete testing system will not be developed by the end of the year, it should be well on its way, Richard Stamm, chairman of the board's curriculum and testing committee, said.

"WE'RE TAKING on a job that took the Chicago school system three to five years," Assistant Supt. Robert Brower said.

No money will be spent on developing the tests without prior board approval, Stamm said.

The push for performance tests grew out of teacher and administrator criticism of the national standardized Iowa Tests of Basic Skills, which are administered each year to third through eighth graders. The two groups said the tests do not measure what is being taught in the district and may not be the most suitable achievement test to use.

The criticism came this past spring after the release of Iowa test scores showing District 59 sixth and eighth graders slightly below the national average in math skills and reading. Seventh graders also fell below the national average in reading.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a contract giving teachers an average 7 per cent salary increase for the 1977-78 school year.

The district's teachers will receive salary increases ranging from 4 to 8 per cent, with teachers already receiving top pay for their qualifications getting 4 per cent salary increases.

The contract raises starting teachers' salaries to $10,300, about $400 more than the starting pay teachers received in 1976-77.

The top salary for a teacher with 15 years of experience, a master's degree and 30 hours toward a doctoral degree will be $21,700 next year.

Vandal panel future to be decided tonight

The Arlington Heights Zero Vandalism Committee tonight will decide whether to disband because of policy disagreements among members and public disinterest.

Committee Pres. Richard Davis said the future of the group will be determined at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The committee was incorporated in February as an independent offshoot of a group formed last year by officials to deal with vandalism.

Since then it has been plagued by policy disagreements, resignations and low turnouts at free activities it sponsored, Davis said.

Detroit trash piles up following strike

A strike halted garbage collections in Detroit Wednesday for the third time this summer and threatened a beautification project timed for the opening of the 69th National Governor's Conference. Trash began piling on sidewalks and in alleys within hours of the 12:01 a.m. walkout by 1,300 Teamsters Union sanitation truck drivers, meter maids, water department and lighting commission employees. Talks to resolve the contract dispute continued. It was the third municipal strike this summer to disrupt rubbish pickups, but the first by Teamsters. Weekly collections already were backed up because of the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Probe of Nixon's papers under way

The National Archives Wednesday began making an inventory of the estimated $2 million worth of foreign gifts to former President Richard Nixon and his family so that the State Department can be sure no gifts are missing. State's chief of protocol is the official custodian of the 2,000 jewels, watches, rugs, vases and other gifts involved, under a law that says any state gift worth more than $50 is the property of the government. Under terms of a court order, a Nixon representative was on hand as the archivists began opening the gift crates. The Nixon official was to insure that privacy invasions would be kept to a minimum if any crates turned out to contain private materials as well as state gifts.

Governors gather in Detroit

The Nation's governors gathered Wednesday to use Detroit as "an urban laboratory . . . with all of its warts and all of its good points." Urban problems were the focus of the annual fall meeting of the National Governor's Conference. The governors planned to visit an automobile assembly line and the city's busiest police station during their three-day meeting. In addition, three Carter Cabinet members — Joseph A. Califano Jr. of Health, Education and Welfare, Juanita Kreps of Commerce and Patricia Harris of Housing and Urban Development — will address the conference. A total of 44 governors signed up to attend the meeting.

Legion Disease suspect dies

A 65-year-old woman suspected of having Legionnaires disease died Wednesday in Riverside Hospital. The Ohio Health Department identified the woman as Lucille Craigo, of Cumberland, Ohio. The department has confirmed four other cases of Legionnaires disease in Central Ohio with one death from the disease recorded.

Catherine M. McCoy, Columbus, died Aug. 6 but the cause of death — Legionnaires disease — was not confirmed until last week, spokesman Jon Christensen said. Christensen said two other persons with the disease were still in Riverside Hospital. Another person recovered and was released. Christensen said Mrs. Craigo was "suspected of having Legionnaires disease" when she died at 5:10 a.m. Wednesday.

'Herbicide orange' eliminated

The deadly residue of a once highly touted military plan to win the Vietnam War by spraying defoliants to eliminate the Vietcong's jungle hiding places has finally been eliminated with destruction of the last of the chemical "herbicide orange." The Dutch incinerator ship Vulcanus destroyed the last of the chemical Tuesday at sea 1,000 miles west of Hawaii. For seven years during the Vietnam War, more than 11 million gallons of herbicide orange was sprayed over the jungles by specially modified Air Force tankers. But by 1969, Saigon newspapers were reporting a big increase in birth defects among people living in defoliated areas, and environmentalists criticized the chemical's deadly effects on bird and fish life.

Hunt missing plane in Alaska

Air Force planes equipped with infrared sensing equipment searched Alaska Thursday for a commuter plane missing with 13 persons on a 250-mile flight from Illamna to Anchorage. "The search and rescue aircraft are out, but the weather is abominable with visibility down to about two miles in most places and light rain and fog," said Warren Runnerstron, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman.

Alaska Aeronautical Industries of Anchorage, operator of the plane which failed to arrive on schedule Tuesday afternoon after a flight that ordinarily takes one and a half hours, has not released a list of the 11 passengers and two crew members aboard.

Terrorists prove captive alive

Terrorists who kidnaped West Germany's most prominent industrialist sent a video tape message to the government Wednesday to prove their hostage is still alive, security officials reported. The content of the tape was not disclosed and a spokesman said the government would reply over the national television network to the second communication from the kidnapers. The terrorists in their first letter sent Tuesday threatened to kill this hostage, Hanns-Martin Schleyer, at noon Wednesday unless the government freed 11 of their imprisoned comrades. The government ignored that deadline and demanded proof the hostage was still alive.

Cradle-grave commie plan unveiled

North Korean President Kim Il Sung Wednesday unveiled a cradle-to-grave education program to promote his brand of self-reliant communism both in the schools and at home. A lengthy summary of Kim's program, now under discussion at a meeting of the central committee of the Korean Workers Party, was broadcast by the official KCNA news agency and monitored in Tokyo. It stressed the need for the state and the party to guide the activities of children outside school hours and make sure they learn nothing contrary to official ideology at home. "The aim of socialist education is to rear men into Communist revolutionary cadres," Kim said.

Bakers join Britain's strikers

Bakers staged a wildcat strike Wednesday and bread lines formed outside bakeries, the Royal Opera House canceled part of its season in a labor dispute and two newspapers were unable to publish for the fourth day. Although bread, culture and news were in short supply, London's lights were bright. A two-day wildcat strike by electrical workers wound down without the widespread blackouts that had been predicted. A lengthy strike by air traffic control assistants continued to reduce airlines' flights by about 40 per cent but schedule rearrangements minimized delays.

September temperatures expected to be near normal

Although freezing temperatures have arrived as early as Sept. 10 in Illinois, the outlook for this month calls for near normal temperatures mixed with an extra amount of rain.

Normal temperatures for September are nearly 10 degrees cooler than those of July and August, said Jack Villmow, of Northern Illinois University, DeKalb.

In the past, September temperatures have soared as high as 101 in Chicago back in 1953. But normal temperatures range from 67.3 at Bloomington-Normal to 62.8 at Freeport, Villmow said.

Rainfall varies from 3.76 inches in central Illinois to nearly 3 inches at both Kankakee and Chicago. Several times September has brought the wettest months ever recorded. In 1961 Chicago received 14.17 inches during the ninth month.

Although temperatures rarely dip below freezing in September, the record low for the month is 24 degrees reported in Freeport.

August readings reported by NIU for the past month show cooler and much wetter than usual averages with most stations recording between 5 and 10 inches of rain. That is double or triple normal amounts, Villmow said.

Temperatures for August averaged 1 to 3 degrees below the long term normals in the low 70s.

LEES CARPETS HAS REDUCED PRICES TO TIDY ON ALL OF THEIR BEST SELLING CARPETS AND THEY HAVE LOANED TIDY A PORTION OF THEIR OWN SHOWROOM TO HELP PROMOTE THIS HIGHLY UNUSUAL SALE...
OVER 600 COLORS ON DISPLAY THIS WEEKEND.

... and here are some surprising facts to help you make wise carpet purchases --

How do you know what to buy?

It must be difficult for a customer to decide what and where to buy and how much to spend for carpeting. Certainly during this last week you have seen dozens of carpet ads, many of them promoting carpet at very low prices and very large savings. You can't shop every place so how do you know what to buy.

Consider this fact:

Lees, America's number one manufacturer makes a wide variety of carpets, some selling for as little as $10.00 sq.yd. Yet the two best selling carpets in the entire line sell for $18.00 sq.yd. And it's the responsibility of the people at Tidy to make sure you know the difference in dyeing, yarn content, quality, durability, texture, etc. Price is only part of the savings story.

Why are so many people willing to pay so much for these carpets?

There are a number of reasons. These two carpets are beautiful, thick, heavy Saxony plushes, the kind of carpet texture that most people seem to want these days -- and the face yarns in these carpets are made of 100% Antron nylon by DuPont.

(The development of Antron has been one of the significant happenings in the history of the carpet industry.)

People know when you buy Lee's carpet it's an investment for the future.

Why choose Lees carpet?

Lees is one of the world's most reliable carpet mills, maintaining one of the industry's largest, professional quality control organizations. What's more -- Tidy has sold and installed Lees carpets for over 25 years. All of us at Tidy know and respect Lees quality, and we know their carpet is something special.

But you want to choose from more than 2 carpets... and you want to save money, so--

Lees and Tidy have combined efforts this weekend to bring you one of the year's outstanding special sales events. Tidy is stocking a tight, dense, luxurious textured pile Dacron heat-set carpet that has sold for $10.00 sq.yd... specially priced this weekend for only $7.50 sq.yd. And, the two best selling Lees carpets (regularly selling for $18.00 sq.yd.) are going to be sold for only $13.95 per square yard. Tidy is specially pricing all of Lees carpet -- over 600 of them.

A truly unique weekend sale at Tidy.

This weekend (September 8, 9, 10, 11) Lees is bringing to Tidy part of their own showroom. Over 600 fashion colors, hundreds of textures and patterns will be on display... and all will be very specially priced during this unusual -- and outstanding -- sale of Lees carpets. A manufacturer's representative will be at Tidy to explain the difference between Lees carpet and other manufacturer's carpeting.

Lee's Carpet Remnants --

Tidy has also purchased from Lees over 100 carpet remnants which will be specially priced this weekend. This will give our customers a unique opportunity to see Lee's carpeting in large pieces and also save you additional money.

THE GEORGE Kyprianidis family has lived at Brandenberry Park East apartments in Arlington Heights for four years, but now must leave for no apparent reason. Village officials are investigating why they were given only one week's notice that their lease will not be renewed. From left, are Nia, Billy, George, Mario and Dino.

Family disturbed by forced move

they plan to prosecute Kyprianidis as a "holdover" tenant, meaning they will seek damages, legal fees and double rent for every day the Greek family remains in the apartment.

Kyprianidis' lease on the $230-a-month apartment expired Aug. 31. It was not until Aug. 24 that he received a letter informing him he could extend his lease for one month, but that it could not be renewed.

"I say to them, why not? I say I need more time," Kyprianidis said. "Now I have to move anyway cause they're gonna be on my back. You make trouble out you go," said the 38-year-old employee of O'Hare Metal Co., Elk Grove Village.

DANIEL TARRY, environmental health officer for Arlington Heights, sent a letter to Brandenberry officials Sept. 2 to inform them the village was investigating the circumstances around the sudden refusal to renew Kyprianidis' lease. Tarry also asked for detailed reasons for that decision.

Brandenberry officials have not responded to Tarry, but the next day Kyprianidis received a letter saying that "nothing the village says or does short of a court order will relieve you of the full liability you have for illegally holding our apartment, including all damages, legal fees and double rent for every day you remain."

Kyprianidis said Wednesday he hopes to move his family by the end of September. But he does not know what to do about the "double rent" charges and he continues to ask for an explanation for Brandenberry's refusal to renew his lease.

"It's because I opened my mouth. It's because I complained that they won't paint the apartment, that there's no heat, that there's no hot water. One of my boys has chronic bronchitis. We have to have heat," Kyprianidis said.

Judge warns colleagues of misuse of authority

by TONI GINETTI

Judges must be wary of "a sense of unlimited authority" in their official conduct, the former head of the state's judicial watchdog board said Wednesday.

Richard T. Dunn, a Bloomington, Ill., attorney and former chairman of the Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board, told a conference of Illinois judges Wednesday that "a sense of unlimited authority" and "ignorance or insensitivity on the application of law" are the most common failings of jurists who have come under the board's scrutiny.

Dunn said nearly 75 per cent of the complaints brought from citizens and lawyers on judges' conduct involved alleged over-authority and improper applications of law.

MOST OF THE complaints are unfounded, but Dunn said judges must be diligent in guarding ethical standards.

"I would suspect that the judicial barrel contains far fewer bad apples than any other profession," he said.

But he added judges must be concerned with avoiding even the appearance of impropriety.

Dunn spoke before the opening-day session of the Illinois judicial conference's annual meeting at the Continental Plaza Hotel, Chicago.

More than 400 circuit, appellate and supreme judges from throughout the state are attending the three-day conference.

WITH DUNN ON the panel discussing judicial ethics were John E. Cribbet, dean of the University of Illinois College of Law, and Roy O. Guley, secretary of the Illinois Courts Commission, which holds the power to discipline judges found guilty of misconduct.

Cribbet, who headed the 1969 panel that established the state's judicial standards of ethics, said the justices must remember that the law is supreme in society. He said the key to judicial ethics is "the individual behavior of sitting judges."

In opening remarks to the conference, Illinois Supreme Court Chief Justice Daniel P. Ward said judges' goal should not be to win popularity but to win and hold the respect of the legal community.

"Judges as a group are not particularly popular but that is as it should be," Ward said. "Certainly there should be higher goals for judges of learning and integrity."

Speck note waives parole hearing

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI) — Richard Speck, convicted of killing eight nurses in 1966, fired off a tersely worded note to the Illinois Parole and Pardon Board Wednesday, apparently waiving his right to a scheduled parole hearing.

Jim Irving, chairman of the Parole and Pardon Board, said Speck sent a three-sentence note to the board that read in part, "Tell the parole board to kiss my ... I'll see them next year."

Irving said the board is "accepting his note as a request to waive his right to a parole hearing at this time."

Speck, convicted of murdering eight South Chicago Community Hospital nurses in July, 1966, had a parole board hearing a year ago in the face of vigorous opposition from parents and friends of the nurses.

The official decision on parole for Speck will be announced Friday.

Dist. 63 teachers OK initial pact

It's classes today as usual in East Maine Dist. 63.

Twelve days of suspense over a threatened teachers' strike ended late Wednesday when negotiators emerged from 33 hours of nearly continuous bargaining with a tentative two-year teachers' contract.

No details of the pact were being released, pending a mass meeting of teachers tentatively set for after school today at Gemini Junior High School in Niles.

THE FINAL, marathon bargaining

session began Tuesday morning and dragged on until 7 p.m. Wednesday with only two breaks — a two-hour interruption Tuesday night for a teachers' union rally, and a four-hour recess to allow the eight negotiating teachers to attend the district's first half-day of classes Wednesday morning.

About half of the districts 300 teachers attended the union rally Tuesday night, heard union negotiators declare the talks in a "precarious position" and authorized union leaders to call a strike if talks became hopelessly bogged down.

But board of education member Jeanne Oestreich said Wednesday the teachers' negotiating team never informed the board of the strike authorization.

"They never told us, and they never waved a flag in our faces," Mrs. Oestreich said. "The negotiating team did not verbally use strike leverage. Maybe they never reached that point."

THE THREAT of a strike nevertheless was present, with the memory of a three-day teachers' walkout in November 1975 and a series of public warnings that began Aug. 26, when the teachers' union declared the district in a "crisis" situation.

Village to discuss schools' fate today

Arlington Heights officials will meet today with representatives of area schools to discuss the future of vacated schools.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The officials also will discuss a 45-page report prepared by the village's planning department that analyzed four Dist. 25 schools that have closed or may be closed. They are: Wilson School, 15 E. Palatine Rd., North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Thomas Junior High, 303 E. Thomas Ave., and Miner Junior High, 1101 E. Miner St.

Dist. 25 officials are faced with finding tenants for Miner Junior High School, which they decided last month will close next year.

Roosevelt University of Chicago has offered to locate a suburban campus there but community opposition may block that proposal.

Group of Democrats backs candidate Seith

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Alex Seith Wednesday was endorsed by a group of Chicago Democratic organization officials, independents and members of the party's state central committee.

Seith's endorsements come one day after Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon, a potential opponent for the nomination to run against incumbent U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said he would seek reelection.

The early support is seen as an attempt by the Hinsdale attorney to block another Democrat, possible state Comptroller Michael Bakalis, from entering the race.

Seith drew support from Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod and Cook County Clerk of the Circuit Court Morgan Finley.

Joanne Alter, Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee, and Ronald Stackler, former director of the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education, also endorsed Seith.

THE BACKING from Alter and Stackler, who both ran unsuccessfully for statewide office last year with former Gov. Dan Walker, is seen as a show of support from the independent wing of the party.

Five members of the Democratic State Central Committee, including State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, who represents the Northwest suburban 12th Congressional District, announced support for Seith.

Seith, chairman of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, also drew backing from John Daros, who is viewed as an influential member of the Greek-American community in Chicago.

Daros has strong ties with Bakalis and worked as a fundraiser for the comptroller.

In making the announcement of the endorsements, Seith restated his intention to remain in the race. Several party leaders have privately expressed the hope that a stronger candidate than Seith, who is making his first bid for elective office against the entrenched Percy, would lead the statewide ticket.

Carter promises priority on jobs for young blacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, admitting to black leaders that many public service jobs do not reach the ghetto, Wednesday said he would put top priority on reversing the "horrible" jobless rate among minorities.

Carter met with members of the black congressional caucus, who along with others have become increasingly more vocal in complaints about their treatment by the administration.

"Obviously something has to change. There has to be a re-emphasis," Carter said of the August figures which placed joblessness among black youths at more than 40 per cent.

Rep. Parran Mitchell, D-Md., chairman of the caucus, quoted Carter as saying: "I expect criticism, I think it's been valid in the past. I accept criticism from you."

MITCHELL SAID after the meeting that "for the first time we've got a statement on priorities" and that he wanted "a working relationship so that we can move together."

Carter, with reporters present for the opening of the session, said he had been "studying the statistics this past week, particularly since the horrible information came out about the rate of unemployment among young minority teenagers."

The problem, he said, is caused by a "lack of a comprehensive urban policy. There is no thrust to the urban program."

"There's got to be a re-emphasis on addressing government sponsored employment opportunities among those who need the opportunity most."

REP. JOHN CONYERS, D-Mich., said that Carter admitted that "many of the public service jobs have not been going into the ghetto."

Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., said Carter mentioned misgivings about the Humphrey-Hawkins employment bill because "the President understood the bill did not have an anti-inflation provision."

Al Eisele, Vice President Walter Mondale's press secretary, told reporters later that Carter's meeting with the black leaders "broke up on a somewhat emotional note," with Carter saying "I'm eager to learn — God knows," and then adding, "I look to you not just as critics but as partners."

Eisele said that as a result of the meeting, Carter told members of his Cabinet to review areas of dispute in handling the situation and present within 10 days an analysis on how to tackle unemployment in the intercity areas.

AMA's ad restrictions hurt consumer, FTC says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Medical Assn. said Wednesday a relaxation of restrictions on physician advertising would lead to such doctor ads as "I can cure cancer for $50."

The Federal Trade Commission, however, argued at a hearing that organized medicine's restrictions on doctor advertising deny necessary information to consumers about health care prices and services and discourage competition among doctors.

The countercharges were aired at the opening of hearings on an FTC complaint that the AMA and two medical societies illegally restrain competition among doctors.

THE AMA's "principles of medical ethics" prevent doctors from advertising the types and prices of services they make available, FTC attorneys said. Also named in the complaint were the Connecticut State Medical Society and the New Haven County Medical Assn.

"We have found this proceeding wasteful, ill-considered and wholly contrary to the interests of American patients and medical consumers," said attorney Newton Minnow, representing the AMA.

"What we are against is false and deceptive advertising, ads that say 'I can cure cancer for $50,' and we will not tolerate that," Minnow said.

He argued that the FTC would have patients turning to the government for advice on health care if the FTC action is successful. What the government wants, Minnow said, is "a monopoly . . . in the enforcement of medical ethics."

FTC ATTORNEYS said they would introduce evidence at the hearings which will show that AMA and the two Connecticut medical associations "have acted in concert" to restrict doctor advertising and solicitation. An underlying issue in the hearings, scheduled to run at least 23 days, is the rising cost of health care.

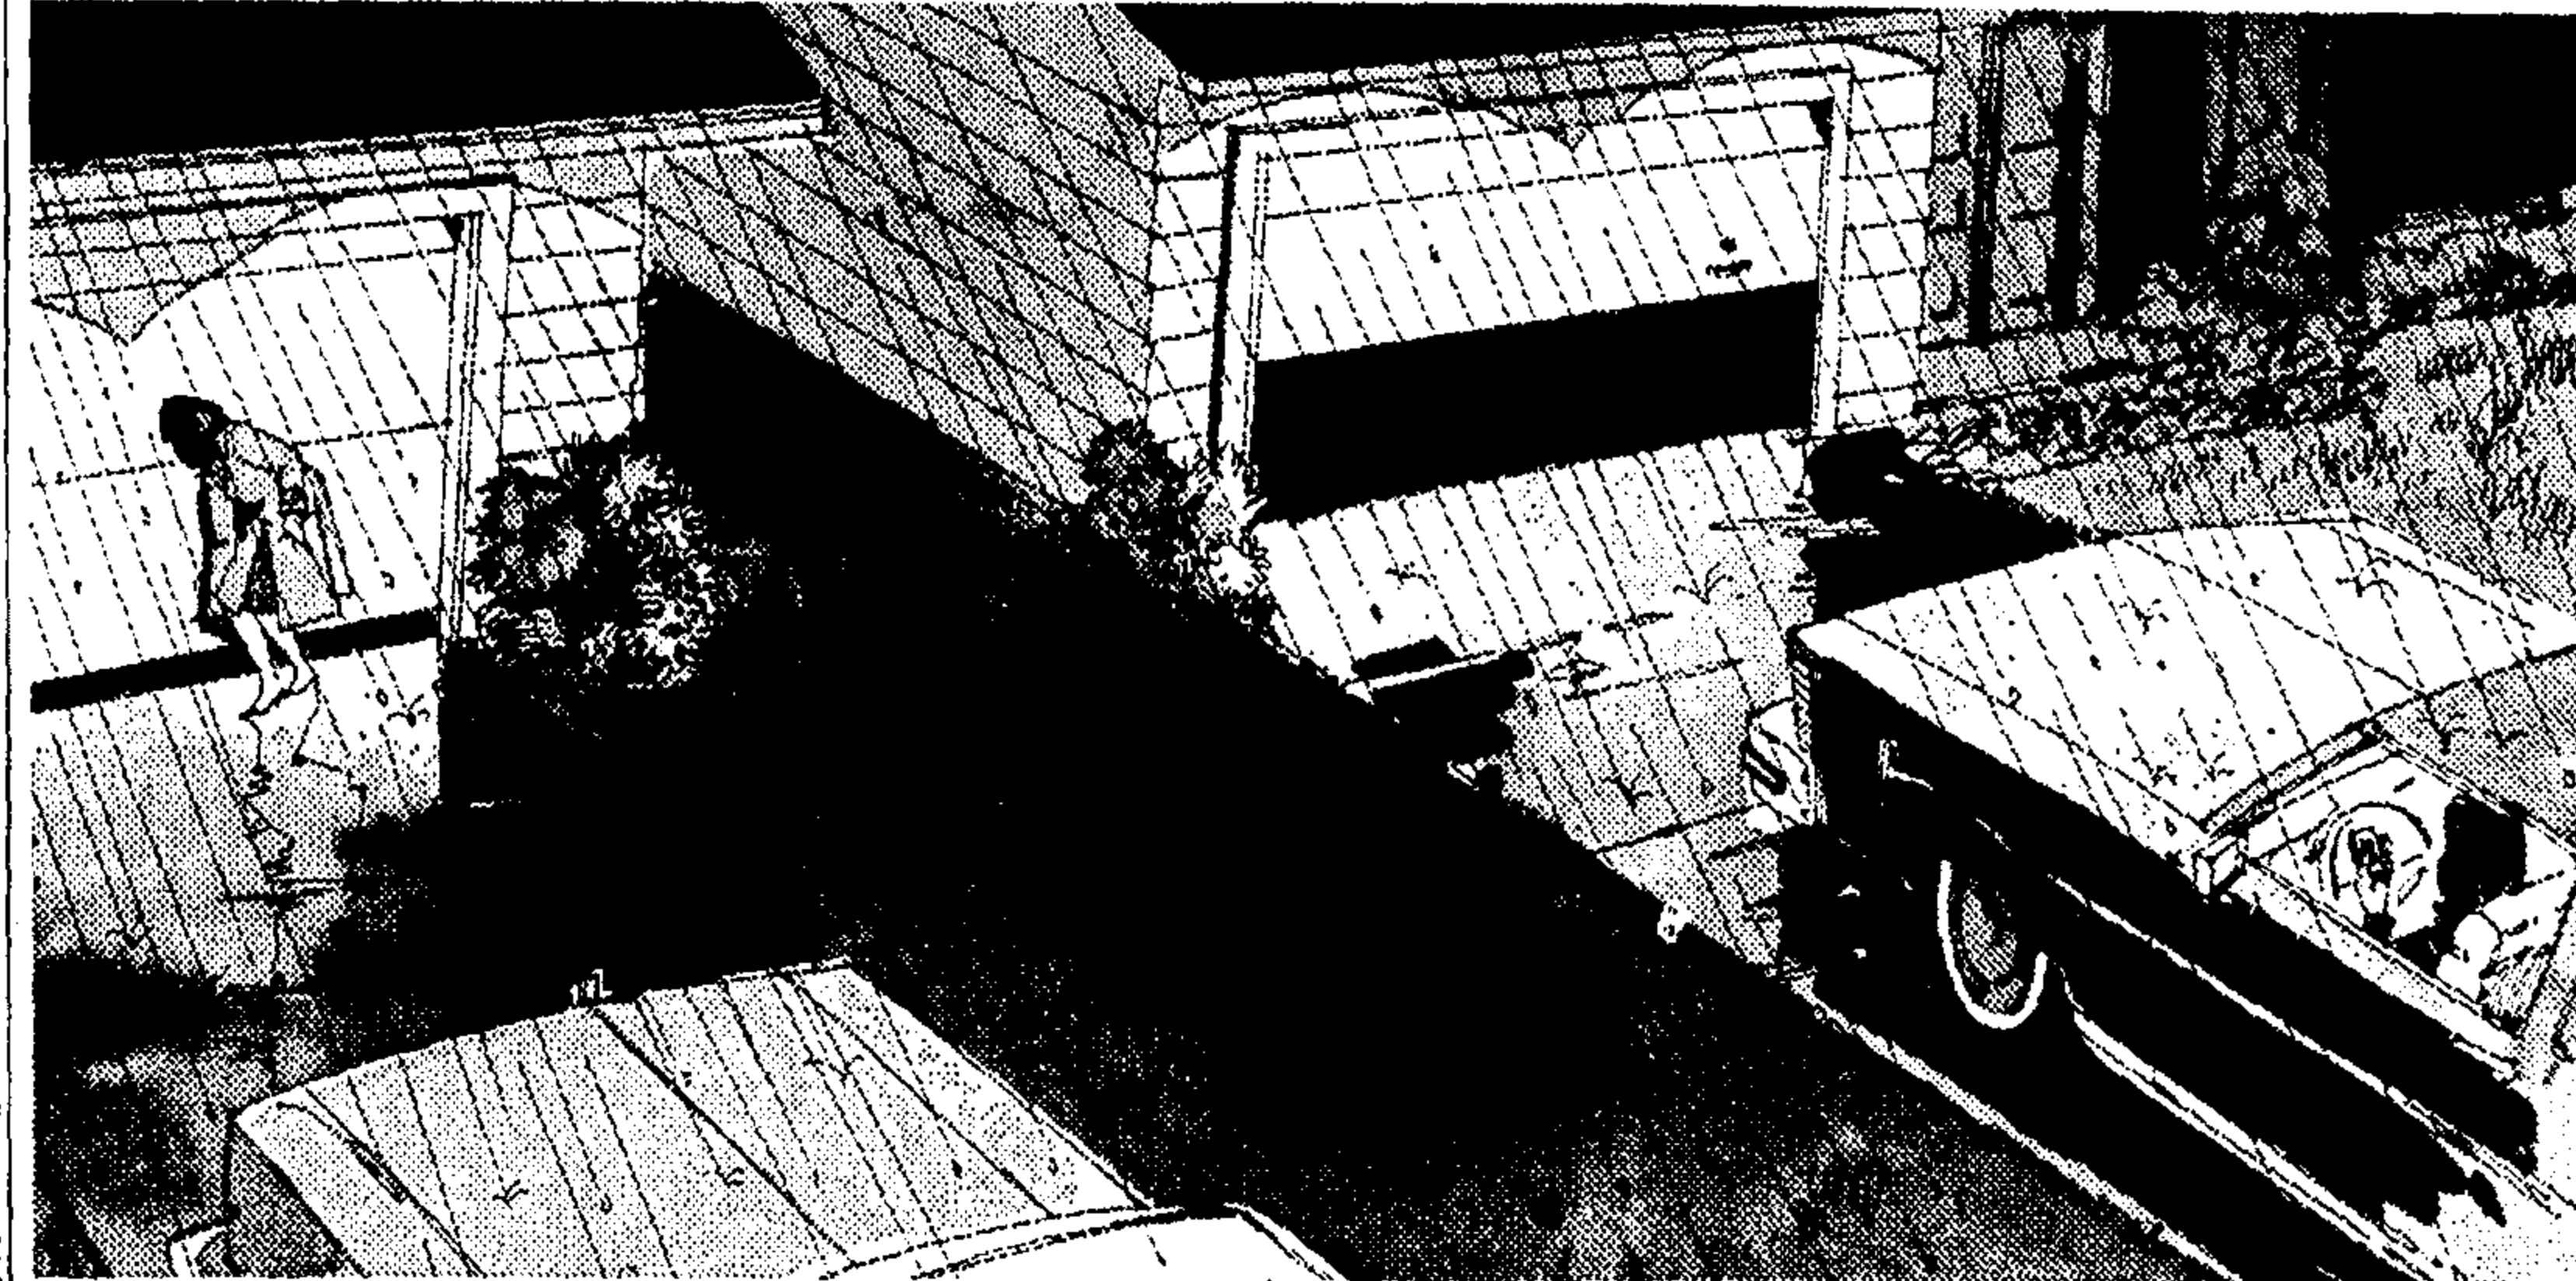

But attorney Linda Randell, representing the two Connecticut associations, said, "we are not puppets of the AMA."

The Connecticut associations have no objection to doctors' advertising their office hours, and whether they accept credit cards, speak other languages or make house calls, she said, "as long as it's truthful and objective."

The case is being heard before an administrative law judge, a quasi-judicial officer who will make a ruling based on the hearings. His ruling can be appealed in the courts by either side.

School bell rung a harmonic note

by DIANE GRANAT

The fleet of green-and-white CTA buses which drove up to Chicago's Byford School Wednesday morning signaled the beginning of the city's controversial voluntary transfer program.

But to the children and parents gathered outside the school at 5600 W. Iowa the buses simply represented passage to a less crowded school where teaching and learning hopefully would come a little easier.

For Erica, Michael and Roderick Owens, three children who would travel seven miles from Byford to Garvy School, 5225 N. Oak Park, the first day of school dawned at 7 a.m.

AS THEIR MOTHER Geraldine hemmed and ironed new T-shirts and pants, the children packed sandwiches into their "Six Million Dollar Man" and "Snow White" lunch boxes.

After everyone managed to squeeze into stiff new shoes Mrs. Owens walked the children three blocks to Byford, where they joined 21 other black students for the ride to predominantly white Garvy. Also waiting for the buses were another 100 children who were sent to six other schools on the Far Northwest Side.

While the children nervously eyed each other and 15 policemen milled around, mothers expressed some of their anxiety about the busing.

"Why are they using CTA buses?" asked Estelle Vega, waiting with her five children. "Is it to camouflage them?"

Mrs. Vega, who lives in the Austin neighborhood, was one of the only white parents at Byford. She said she is transferring her children across town not only to avoid Byford's overcrowding but also to escape the racial harassment which she said her children received at Byford.

THERE WERE NO disturbances early Wednesday and the presence of the police seemed unwarranted. But as the scheduled departure time neared, Principal Michael Fabing began to panic.

"We have no buses," he declared at 8:25 a.m., 10 minutes after the vehicles were expected. "We certainly need buses or then we have no busing."

Soon after, though, the buses arrived and headed north with police escorts.

On the receiving end, Joseph Cantanzaro, principal of Garvy, said the bus delay was the program's only hitch. By 9:30 a.m. his new charges were welcomed and hustled off to their classrooms. "Everything went smoothly," Cantanzaro said.

When Michael Owens got off the bus and headed to his second-grade classroom he discovered that he wasn't the only new person there.

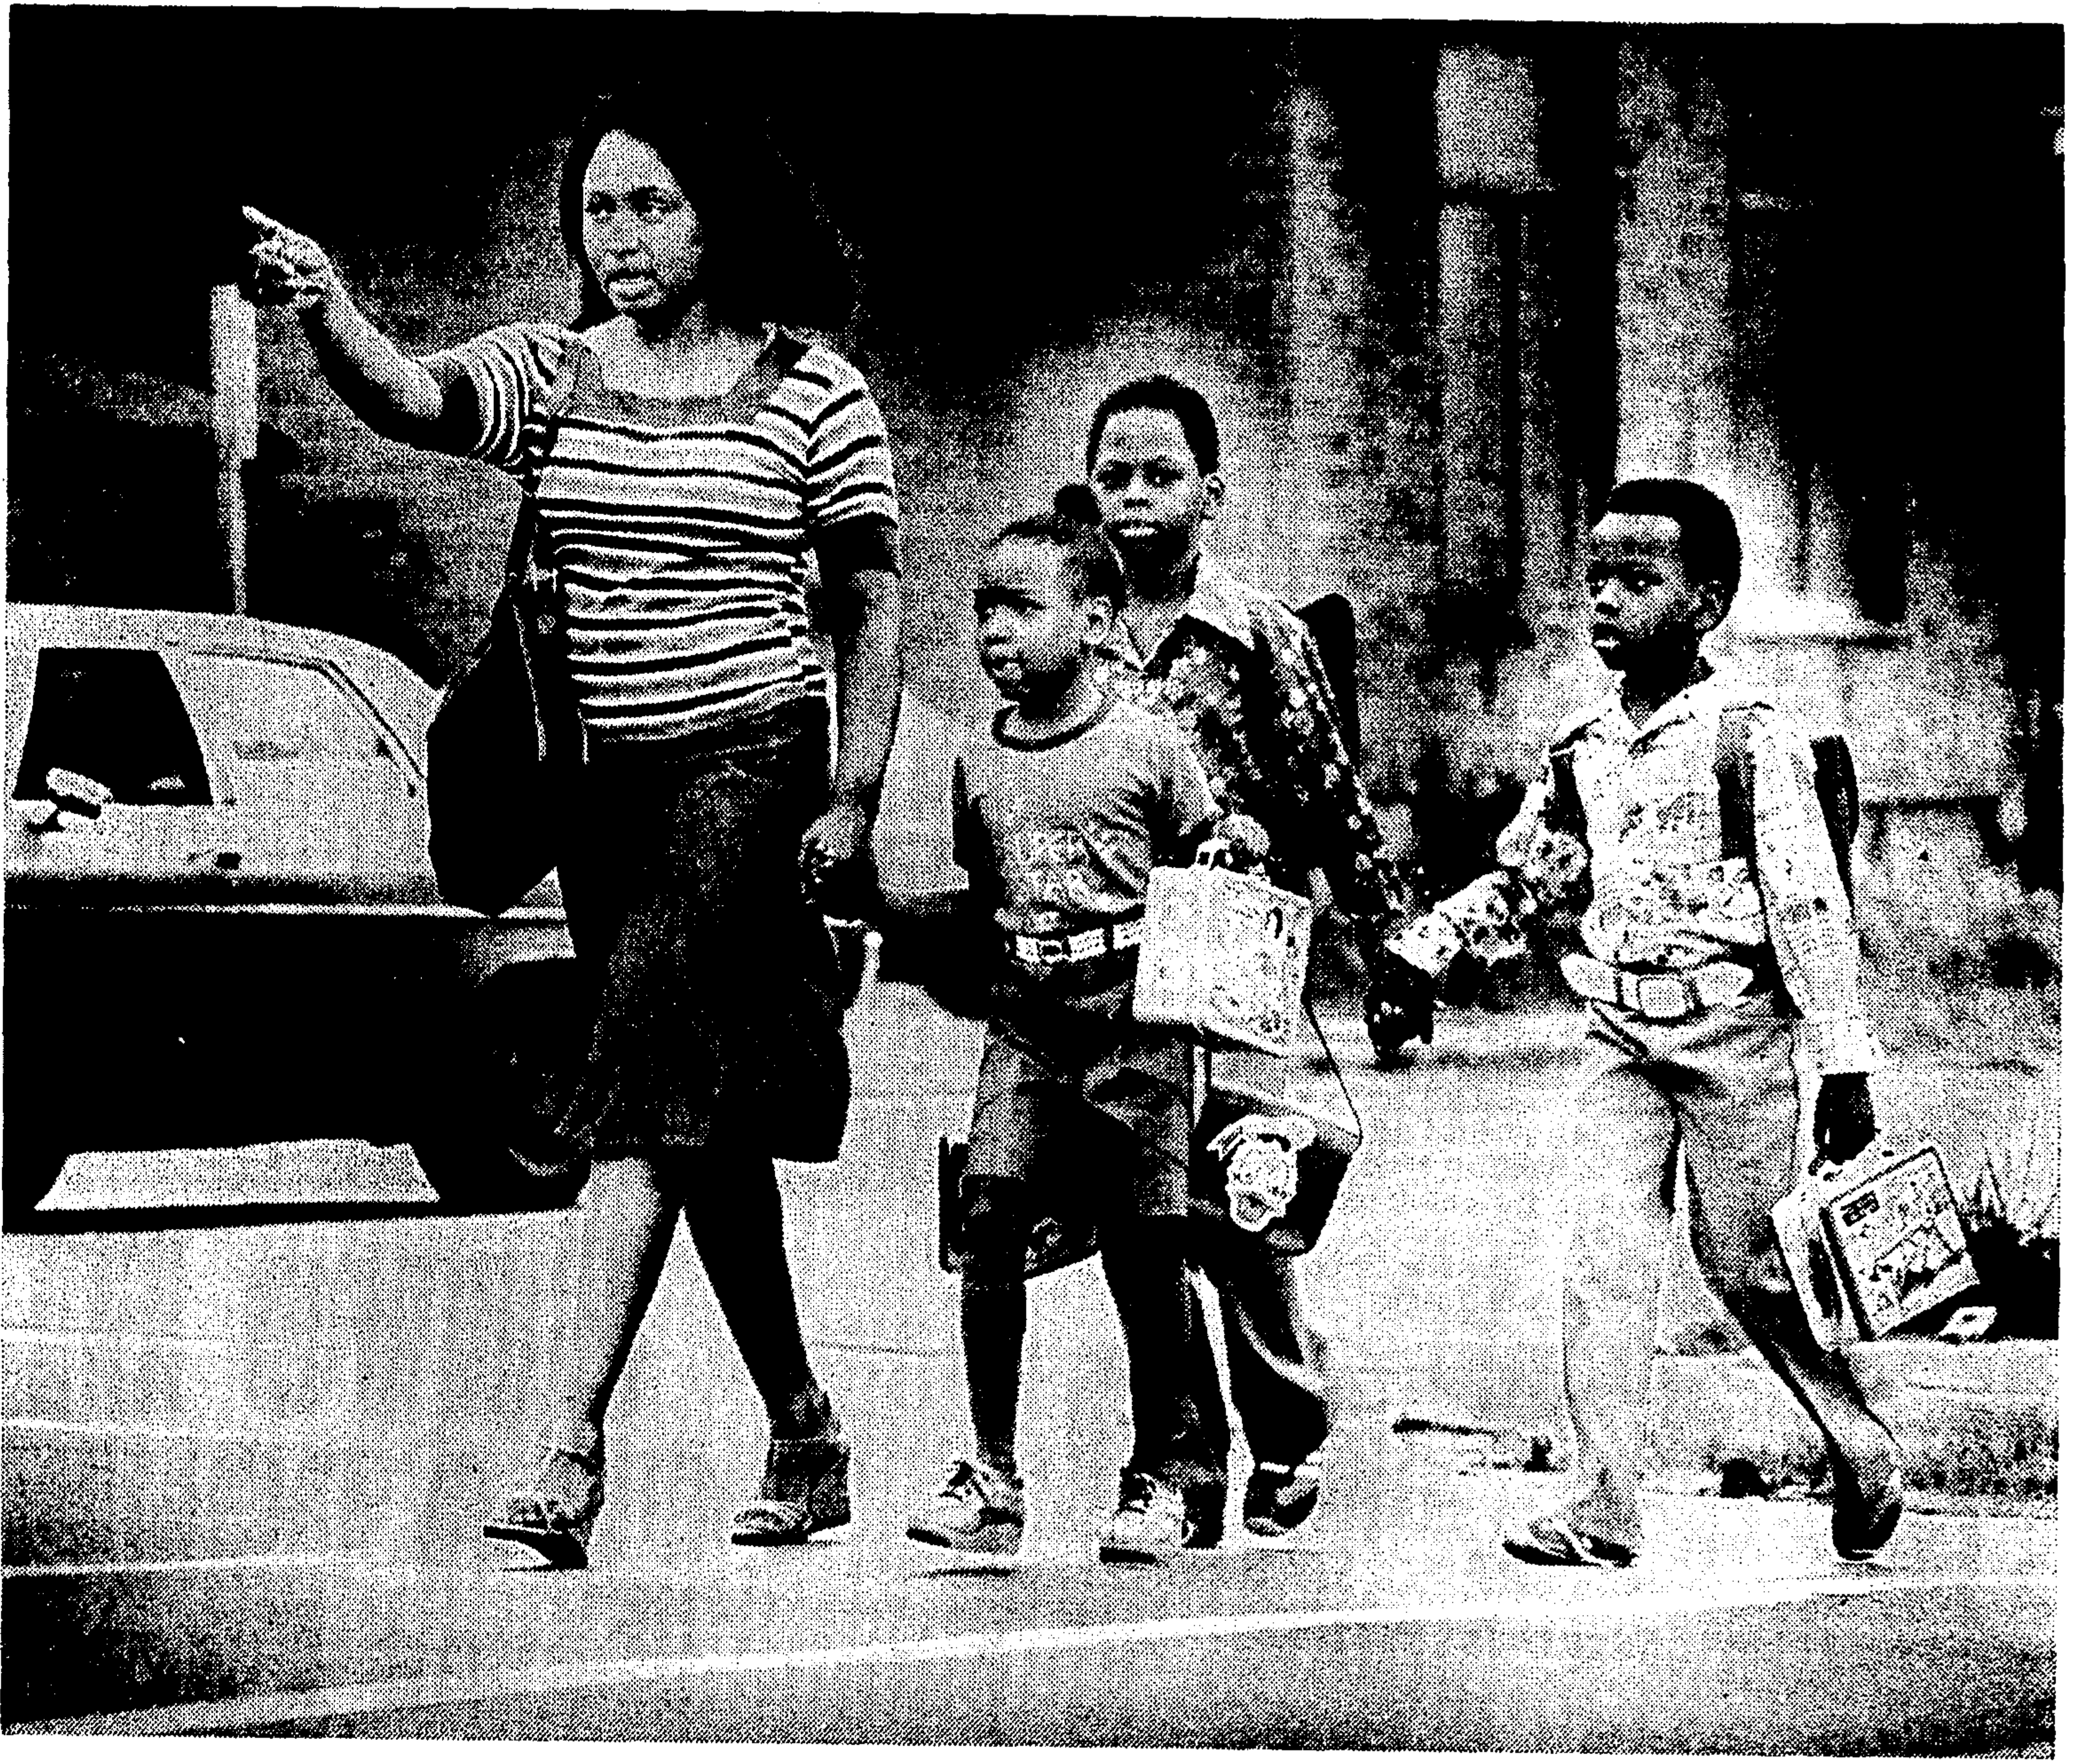

HIS TEACHER Ermaline Thomason, was one of 2,000 teachers involuntarily reassigned to new schools in the city's faculty integration program.

While Michael and his fellow transferrees had a half-hour ride to Garvy, Mrs. Thomason drove one hour and 10 minutes to get to Garvy, 23 miles from her South Side home.

By mid-morning both teacher and pupil were adjusting to a new school routine.

While Michael taught a new buddy how to snap his fingers, his brother Roderick worked on spelling on the blackboard of his third-grade classroom. And in the first grade, Erica, became the "recess captain" for the day and led her classmates to the playground.

Did they like their new school? The answer was three broad smiles.

and excitement about their new school.

"It was good until we got out and they called us names," said Sophie Anderson, adding that she still likes Stevenson much better than her old school.

SHIRLEY MATTHEWS said her daughter was in a class of 73 at Barton, and is glad she decided to send her to Stevenson.

Many of the boycotting children said they would be back in school today.

the city with another 1,200 on standby.

Residents and children kept home from school lined the streets in front of Stevenson School, 5010 S. Kostner, to wait for the arrival of the green CTA bus carrying about 35 children from Barton School, 7650 S. Wolcott.

The bus was preceded by an escort car with the Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity). Jackson walked two little girls to the front door.

"I DON'T MIND it," said one mother who sent her children to school. "I just explained to my children that the black schools were overcrowded and ours weren't and said black kids will be going to school here. They don't mind it."

"This boycott is sort of dumb," a 12-year-old white student said. "First they say we should get a good education and then they tell us to stay home from school."

But another boy said he wasn't going to school, and would not "as long as 'they're' here."

The fairly quiet mood changed, however, when Jackson emerged from Stevenson for a press conference.

"GO HOME! Go back where you belong," someone yelled. Racial comments were yelled from the group of boycotting parents and students. One heckler allegedly spit on Jackson and was arrested.

A crowd of more than 100 boycotters, most of them children on bikes, greeted the bused children with boos and clenched fists when they left the school and clapped when the bus pulled away.

But for the children who were bused to Stevenson, even the minor incidents did not seem to make it such a bad day. They bounded off the bus to meet parents and friends with big smiles

N.Y. mayoral candidates face first screening today

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City's mayoral candidates got in their last jabs Wednesday before the voters speak at the end of one of the most expensive city primary campaigns in history.

What's at stake is who is going to try to solve the mammoth fiscal problems, street crime and mounting unemployment facing the nation's largest city.

The seven-candidate Democratic race has no clear cut leader. The four front-runners are former Congresswoman Bella Abzug, incumbent Mayor Abraham Beame, Sec. of State Mario Cuomo, and Rep. Edward Koch.

THE LONGSHOTS in the Democratic race are Rep. Herman Badillo, Manhattan Borough Pres. Percy Sutton and businessman Joel Harnett.

Since no Democratic candidate is expected to receive 40 per cent of the vote needed for nomination, a runoff between the top two vote getters is scheduled for Sept. 19.

Republican organization favorite Roy Goodman is being challenged by conservative broadcaster Barry Farber, who already is the Conservative Party candidate.

More than 2 million Democrats are eligible to vote in the primary today and about 40 per cent are expected to turn out. Normally 25 to 30 per cent of the registered Democratic Voters cast their ballots in primaries.

About 500,000 Republicans are eligible to vote.

FIGURES RELEASED by the City Board of Elections indicate the candidates have spent a total of $4 million on the primary, more than was spent during the entire 1973 mayoral election.

All nine contenders taped a round robin debate on public television Wednesday, then set off for the final day of campaigning.

The most heated exchange during the Democratic segment of the television show came between Beame and Cuomo, who already has the Liberal Party nomination.

When Beame criticized Cuomo for running an advertisement in the Brooklyn's Jewish Press that he said implied editorial support for Cuomo, the secretary of state snapped back, "Don't tell me about using tricks in a campaign."

"You have set an all-time low in tawdry politics during your campaign," Cuomo told Beame.

"Everything that's in my campaign literature is the truth," Beame said. "I don't think you can make that statement."

Mrs. Abzug charged Cuomo's campaign is being run by Gov. Hugh Carey, and touted herself as the only candidate "not beholden to special interests."

Laetrile effective in lab tests: scientist

A Loyola University biologist says he will present evidence Saturday that Laetrile has cured breast cancer in mice.

Dr. Harold Manner, chairman of the biology department at Loyola, said Laetrile in combination with other vitamins and enzymes — not by itself — was effective in tests on 105 laboratory mice.

Details of Manner's research will be presented to the National Health Federation at its annual meeting in Chicago Saturday. Other scientists will be able to achieve the same results, he predicted.

Most American health officials, including the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, condemn Laetrile as worthless in the treatment of cancer.

GOV. JAMES R. Thompson recently vetoed a bill that would have allowed terminally ill patients to use the substance.

Manner said he started experimenting with Laetrile about four years ago and at first all the tests failed to show any effectiveness. "We came up with exactly the same results which would lead us to the conclusion that Laetrile is worthless," he said.

Panel proposed to study county taxes

County Comr. Joseph A. Tecson has renewed a proposal for a blue-ribbon committee to study the impact of taxes on citizens and governments in Cook County.

"All the confusion and outrage that homeowners have experienced with their tax bills comes from the fact that no one could tell what would happen with the reassessments.

"Now the assessor is proposing to change the system again. This year should have taught us to look before we decide to leap," said Tecson, a Riverside Republican.

A similar proposal was defeated 13 months ago on a 7-6 party line vote.

The county board's finance committee will have a public hearing next week on a proposal to lower the assessment level on single-family houses, condominiums and small apartment buildings from 17 per cent to 16 per cent of their market value.

• Northwest Mental Health Center, 1616 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. 1 to 5 p.m., Sept. 20.

Return to Cuba good U.S. move

When representatives of the U.S. government arrived at the old U.S. Embassy building in Havana last week, they found a virtual "time-capsule" including a soft drink machine that takes nickels and pictures of Pres. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Those bits of nostalgia point up as much as anything the fact that the return of Americans to Havana for the first time in nearly 17 years marks the end of an era in U.S.-Cuban relations.

Since the United States severed its diplomatic relations with Cuba in 1961, our relationship with the Communist country 90 miles from our shores has been in a kind of suspended animation, frozen in an era of Cold War and international crisis.

The exchange last week of diplomats between Havana and Washington, while it does not yet mark normalization of relations, is an excellent step away from Cold War positions.

The diplomatic mission is a first step toward full diplomatic recognition between the two countries. The U.S. delegation will operate as an "interest section" in Havana under a Swiss flag.

In 1961, the threat of a Communist regime in Cuba seemed so great to the American government that our intelligence operatives and Cuban exiles were used as part of the ill-fated Bay of Pigs plan for counter-revolution.

Today, after the bitter lessons of Vietnam and Chile and exposure of FBI and CIA abuses, Americans are less likely to approve intervention into the affairs of foreign governments. In addition, the U.S. has improved relations with both the Soviet Union and China in recent years while continuing the official fiction that the Cuban Communist regime does not exist.

The U.S.-Cuban relationship has undergone some softening during recent years, resulting in an agreement on air line hijackers between the two countries. The establishment of the U.S. mission in Havana may lead to other constructive agreements.

The U.S. may move toward better relations with the Cuban government without implying its agreement with Cuban policy. More normal relations between Cuba and the U.S. do not mean that we approve of Communist countries, merely that we are willing to deal realistically with the world as it is.

'Ministers' duck issues

Somehow it doesn't seem the revival hymn "Amazing Grace" is suitable for the churches being formed in the suburbs by newly ordained "Universal Life" ministers.

Perhaps their congregations will instead favor the song "Money" (with lyrics beginning "Money makes the world go around") from the musical "Cabaret."

The new "ministers," including Ray Larson of Palatine, have paid $2 to Dr. John Roche of Chicago for their ordination in the Universal Life Church of Modesto, Calif. They plan to claim their homes are churches to try to get property tax exemptions.

Other disgruntled taxpayers, angered by increased tax bills, might be moved to admiration for the new preachers because of their originality in approaching a vexing problem.

However, their protest will do little to confront realistically the higher tax bills and higher property tax assessments in the Chicago area. While other taxpayer groups are urging detailed studies of the tax problem, the Universal Lifers are playing games to harass tax officials.

Larsen says he hopes the appearance of the new "churches" will result in government action to end the tax exemption for churches. If that is his goal, there are other ways to pursue the issue in the political arena.

It is doubtful that the Universal Life Churches will contribute anything but some entertainment to the serious issue of taxation.

Sure you recognize him. I do!

Vacation images — shlock can't overshadow people

OKLAHOMA CITY — I had remembered this city as the dustblown little capital where a few of us used to spend weekend leaves from Fort Sill. It is now a sprawling metropolitan area covered with urban fallout. One can drive for miles and see nothing but development, and not a building complements its neighbor.

Driving endlessly down May Street now is like passing through an inchoate museum of modern, franchised architecture. Burrito and chow mein compete cheek by jowl, pseudo-Mexican by plastic pagoda. A new bank building looks as though it has been sundured by a series of McDonald's arches. Would anyone actually leave hard cash there? Promissory notes, maybe.

A sailing craft seems to have landed amidst atop a Long John Silver's. A sickly green cube of an office building is succeeded a few blocks further on by a shining gold one exactly like it in all other respects — doubtless a bank or a savings and loan. It rises directly behind an almost Colonial Church with a fine roof and steeple seemingly separated from any supporting structures by a thin layer of glass atop the walls. Mammon and modernity, choose ye this day which ye shall serve. One would like to pass. Only a 1940ish Coca-Cola bottling plant with its glass wall seems to have retained its integrity, mainly by a lot of planting.

All of these buildings must have looked distinct, some of them may even have seemed appealing on the drawing board, with its edge shutting off the rest of May Street. But assembled together . . . the result is that of an unorganized display of instant buildings. The only solution may be to plant in kudzu and forget.

I miss the old dustblown capital.

Paul Greenberg

AMARILLO — THIS TOWN'S chief asset would seem to be its purely fortuitous location in the exact middle of the otherwise empty plains. It feels like a crossroads magnified a hundred times and dipped in Formica. It has no special quality.

Amarillo's one distinguishing characteristic may be the unceasing, gritty wind that seems to stay with one even indoors. I ask the motel clerk if it blows like this all the time. "Why, I didn't even notice it today," she says. Spring is the time when the wind really howls, she explains. That's when "people get bad tempered." In other parts of the world, there is a special name for this kind of hot, dry wind — Khamsin, Sirocco, Chinook. In Amarillo, says the motel clerk, it has no special name.

SANTA FE — THIS IS said to be the only state capital without a railway terminal or scheduled air service. And it's meant to be. Old Santa Fe is a zoning administrator's idea of what Mexico should look like. It is Spanish Colonial with an interior decorator. It seems a poor English translation of Mexico in very expensive bindings.

But Old Santa Fe is all of a piece and a rest to the eyes after Oklahoma City, Amarillo, Tucumcari — at least the old, protected part of town is. That's where nothing not adobe or like adobe can be built. The old La Fonda hotel, a sprawling one-block pueblo, still holds up in grand fashion, with its cafe under an only slightly leaky sunroof and miles of corridors heading every which way.

Perhaps it shows the effects of a little too much care, but the old city is a dream perfected, a magnet for visitors. It's a city atop a wedding cake. One can tell immediately where the old city stops and the zoning codes relax — Santa Fe suddenly looks just like Amarillo.

SOMEWHERE ON THE LONG two-lane going from Interstate 25 to Interstate 40 across the barren waste of New Mexico — The White Lake Sandwich Shop sits on the right side of the road. Though you might not notice it unless the needle is sitting on empty, or a rest stop is required. If there is any lake around here, it must be a mirage.

The station wagon konks to a stop and an older man comes out of the shop. He wears long sleeves and heavy gloves against the never relenting sun. Everything glares; movement is exertion; the heat hellish. He pumps a couple of dollars' worth of regular into the tank, seems glad to be of service and says, yes, there's a rest room inside.

Inside the shop there is a welcome dark, presided over by two Pekinese. An old woman sitting in a wheelchair smiles at the little girl and makes her feel welcome.

"Have you had your coffee?" the man asks the old woman. "I don't remember," the old woman replies. "I'll get you some," he says. The brown, regulation restaurant coffee cups are arrayed in neat rows, the counter clean and suddenly inviting. One is glad to have stopped.

It isn't places that make heaven or hell, someone observed long ago, but the people who live there.

Pigeons can do justice to post office

by DICK WEST
(The lighter side)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I am endowed, as is a small percentage of other journalists, with a facility known as "news cohesion."

Simply stated, this means that news items that are unrelated or tenuously associated at best tend to stick together in my mind.

Recently I came across two items that had only postal service in common. One was the announcement that the U.S. Postal Service is renewing its policy of closing rural post offices that don't pay their way.

THAT PROGRAM was suspended last year, mainly because of fears that small towns could lose their community identities if they lost their post offices.

In announcing resumption of the closings, postal officials promised they would do everything possible to help the small towns stay on the map.

The other item in question reported that rising postal rates were causing some places in England to consider using homing pigeons to deliver mail, messages and small packages.

Instantly, these two items were clinging to each other like a nylon sock to a drip-dry shirt.

WHAT WE need now is a law that whenever the Postal Service shuts down a rural post office, it must provide the community with a flock of pigeons as a replacement.

Talk about community identity! No village or hamlet need fear becoming a geographic nonentity as long as it has its own homing pigeons.

Letters sent by regular mail to, say, Mt. Molehill, Neb., could easily wind up in Clods, N.M., with or without a post office. But a message carried by a Mt. Molehill homing pigeon is going to wind up in Mt. Molehill, no matter what.

Pigeons have been known to fly more than a thousand miles through sleet and snow and gloom of night to return to their home lofts.

But identity isn't everything. There also is the matter of home town pride. Some communities undoubtedly would consider a pigeon loft less prestigious than a post office.

That blow to community ego could be avoided by upgrading the base from which the pigeons operate.

In addition to their homing instinct, pigeons have a natural inclination to perch on statues in parks, city squares and other public places.

VERY WELL. In addition to providing a community with pigeons in lieu of a post office, the Postal Service should be required to erect a statue for them to land on.

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar would be an appropriate subject for the sculpture.

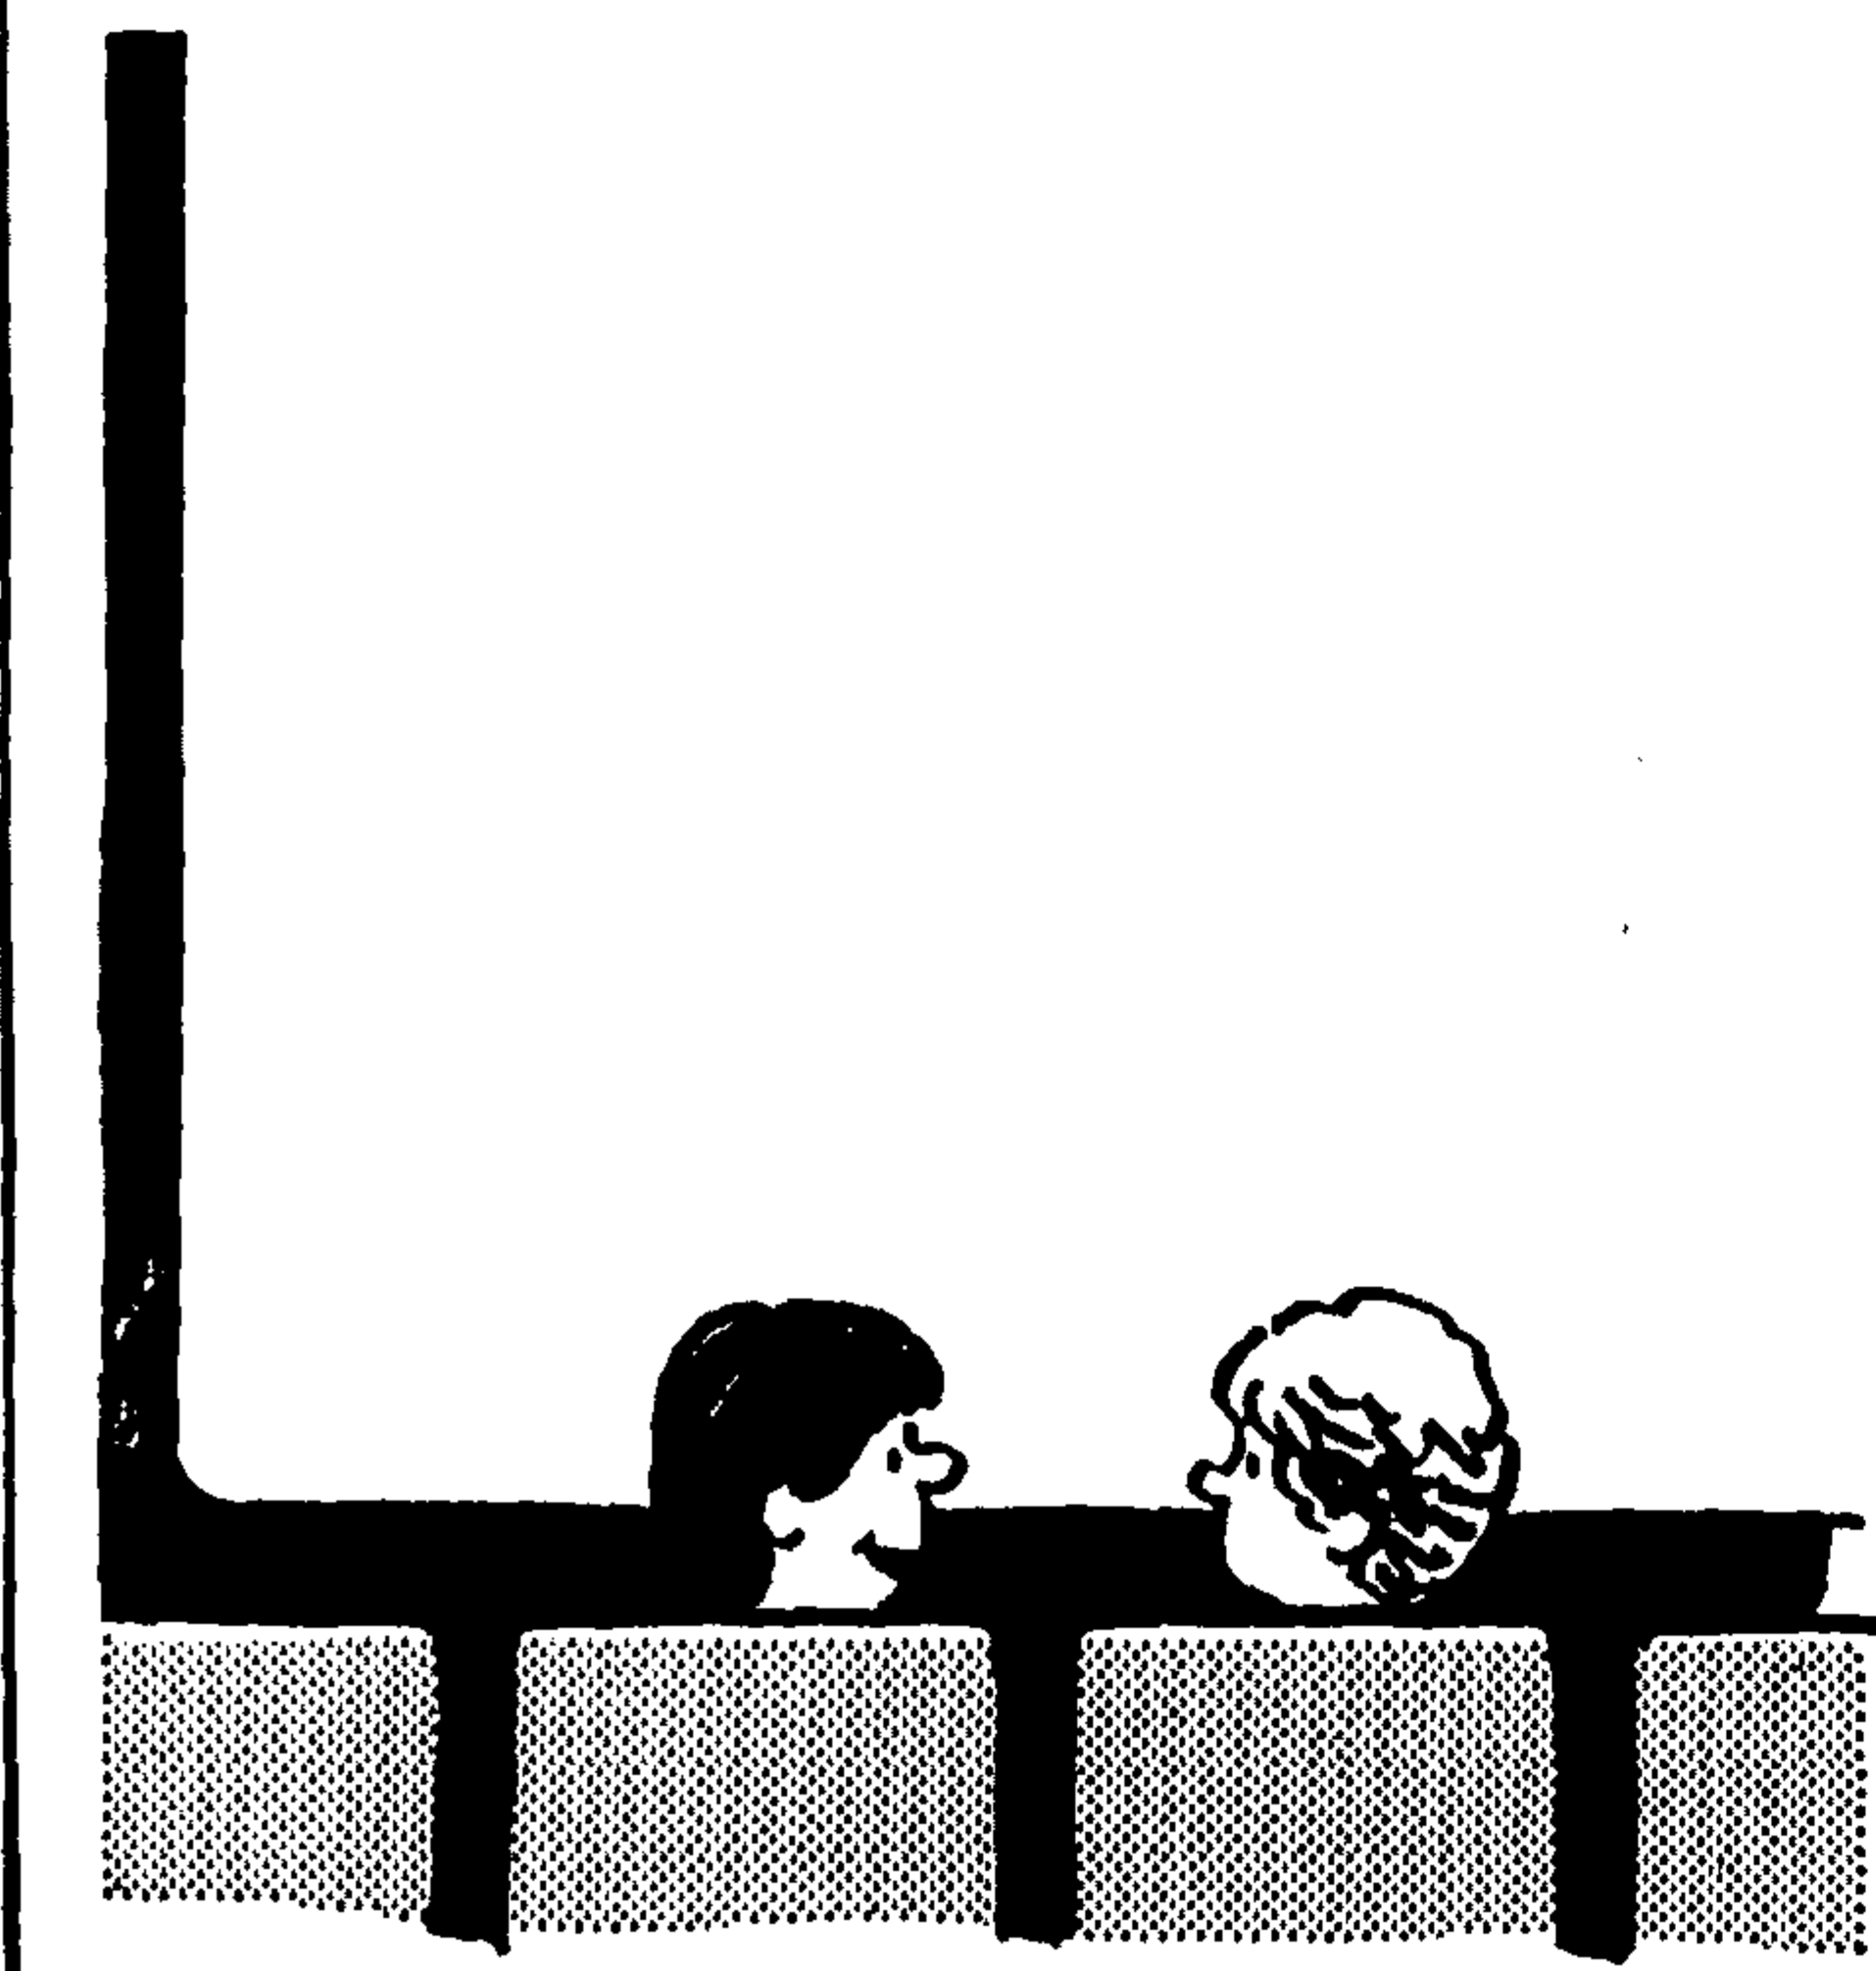

Having a bronze or marble statue of its own should more than compensate a community for the loss of its post office.

And when the home folks see what the pigeons do to Bailar's effigy, it will reaffirm their faith in poetic justice.

"Which do YOU like best — violence on TV or violence in movies?"

Now that Arlington Heights Village President Jim Ryan has come down in favor of apple pie, motherhood and senior citizens I wish to come down in favor of Chuck Kolls' decision to withdraw Arlington Best Cab from the village of Arlington Heights' Senior Citizen Cab Ride Program. The facts in this situation simply do not support, in any way, the emotion and demagoguery in Ryan's flippant comment that Kolls' decision is "irresponsible and a slap in the face to senior citizens."

The present Arlington Heights cab ride subsidy program for senior citizens is now available to approximately 2,000 persons, each entitled to 20 rides per month anywhere in the Village during any hours at a cost of 50 cents to the senior citizen, $1 to the village and $1.50 to the cab company. By my calculations, if only half of the senior citizens participate in the program and, if it were physically and logistically possible to deliver on 20,000 rides per month anywhere in the village, both Kolls and his competitor would have to be economically insane to participate in a $30,000 monthly loss — or any loss for that matter!

As a substantial user of Arlington Best Cab and one very much interested in its success for a lot of reasons primarily related to the philosophy of the company — clean, air-conditioned, safe vehicles, courteous drivers, prompt service — I support Kolls' decision.

letters to the editor

Letters must be signed, and no letters will be published anonymously. Letters are subject to condensation, and a maximum length of 300 words is recommended. Direct your mail to the Fence post, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

In his August 15 presentation to the Board of Trustees Kolls offered alternatives that were rejected. One alternative offered a line of reasoning as follows: if the citizenry of Arlington Heights feels that the senior citizen cab subsidy program is essential then the village should pay the full cost by giving each senior citizen the full fare coupons and specify that "non-emergency" cab rides could not be taken during peak traffic hours to eliminate a not-so-small fact of "cab-economics" (namely, by providing a senior citizen a ride at rush hour the company foregoes providing a ride to higher fare customer).

In closing, I, like Kolls and others, do not want to see senior citizens abused. On the other hand, I don't want to see those of us who, in fact, are the sustaining users of the cab services abused either by having us wait long hours at O'Hare Field or elsewhere while the village cab companies pursue uneconomical junkets with senior citizens. Sooner or later our fares must by necessity increase to cover these direct losses.

The leadership of the village ought to have by now learned that subsidy programs don't work for the Federal government and there's little reason to think that similar programs could ever be sound for local governments. There is always a day of reckoning. It's no fairer for Kolls to lose money than for Ryan to lose money in his law practice which I'm sure has a much more flexible fee structure than that in the cab business!

DeGrazia replies on campaign funding

Mr. Franklin J. Lundling Jr., who is vice chairman of the unconstitutional State Board of Elections, said in a recent letter to your newspaper that I didn't understand the Illinois Campaign Financing Act. He then went on to make the pious statement that "Perhaps it is politically easier for some politicians to attack our agency than the concept of public revelation of campaign financing."

First of all, you remember Franklin Lundling: he is the gentleman who when asked by Governor Walker if he would abide by the executive order and disclose his income and net worth, said he would. But that was before he was appointed. After he was appointed he refused to reveal anything about his financial affairs. (Incidentally, he was the only member of the Board who refused.) So much for Mr. Lundling's personal attitude toward disclosure.

My complaint about the Board members is that they are so busy making sure both political parties have equal patronage and share equally in contracts, they have not produced useful rules for disclosure. We were never able to get from them a clear statement as to how they wanted debt reduction treated, I assume because they did not and still do not have any rules on the matter.

If a supplier agrees to reduce his campaign bill, it is Alice in Wonderland logic to say that reduction is a contribution to the campaign.

The boys at the Board labor under a serious handicap: the Supreme Court says they are unconstitutional. They should do the decent thing and return their salaries to the taxpayers.

Carter family 'bad peanut' kept in protective isolation

SOLEDAD, Calif. — The protective custody division of the Soledad penitentiary is not for the garden variety thug. Political assassin Sirhan Sirhan is in it, as is the notorious mass murderer Juan Corona. Then too, William Spann is a member of the unit; his is the nephew of the president of the United States.

Unlike Sirhan and Corona, Spann's criminal proclivities have been unimaginative. He is serving five years to life for routine armed robbery. Yet because of his relationship to the president, officials fear he would be in danger in the ordinary inmate population; hence "The Bad Peanut," as he's called, is kept in isolation.

No doubt the fears here are warranted. A guard suggests that if Spann was grabbed by other prisoners, the consequences might be severe: "They could hold him for any sort of ransom, like a presidential ransom. I don't think they could get it, but in any event it would be scary, and would put the president on a hell of a spot."

AUTHORITIES SAY the risk regarding Spann is particularly acute because he is particularly vulnerable. The record indicates he is not simply a good boy gone temporarily wrong. At 32 years old Spann is virtually a career criminal, heavily associated with drugs and homosexuals, hence he now must be protected from his own lifestyle excesses.

The excesses began early in Spann's life. Born in Georgia to Jimmy Carter's younger sister Gloria, he was raised in comfortable but unhappy circumstances. His father, William Harvey, did not get on well with the mother, and left by divorce before the boy was a teen. Spann's name was then changed to that of his stepfather, Walter Spann.

The parents do not talk much about their wayward son. But Mrs. Spann has told friends that the boy turned sour while still in junior high school. He was an unimpressive student and indifferent to matters such as church and sports. By the time he was 15 he was considered by Georgia authorities to be "beyond parental control."

OBSERVERS IN THE Carter hometown of Plains say that Mrs. Spann tried to help young William through the use of private schools and special counseling. Nothing worked. Then, urged on by her evangelical sister Ruth, Mrs. Spann reportedly became suddenly religious and "put her son in God's hands." Unfortunately, that didn't work either.

There was also psychology involved along the way. When Spann dropped out of public school, and was refused admittance to several private schools, he was enrolled in a "controlled environment" program run by a Georgia psychologist. He apparently earned the equivalent of a high school education there, but little else.

Though a petty criminal from his teens on, Spann did not get into serious trouble until he moved to California in the late 1960s. Then, according to the record, he spent money from home on narcotics and began frequenting sleazy bars. He has since been arrested on charges that include vehicle theft and parole violations.

His most recent crime was in March of 1976. At that time, accompanied by a friend and a gun, police say he held up a gay bar in San Francisco. No one was hurt, no shots fired, but when Spann appeared in court on the charge he received no mercy. Maximum sentence was imposed due to the defendant's long criminal record.

BY THE TIME Spann was sent to prison, his uncle had become the front runner among Democrats bidding for the presidency. Corrections officers say Spann used the family name "to draw attention to himself." At one time he invented a story about being stabbed by a fellow prisoner; he has since been living under protective custody.

Spann lives in a six-by-nine-foot cell in this medium security facility. To the west he can see the Sierra de Salinas mountains, to the east the Gabilan Range. Soledad is a "no wall" prison situated in the midst of some of California's richest agricultural acreage. Rules here are strict but progressive; Spann has his own small television set.

Spann refuses news interviews, but guards say he is intent on capitalizing on his kinship to the chief executive. He is working with one freelance writer on undisclosed projects; he has tried to market "Prisoner of Love" earrings, tiny handcuffs of his own design; also, he has written a song, quite naturally called: "The Bad Peanut."

GUARDS SAY SPANN is seldom a problem, perhaps because he is isolated from temptations. He is not a celebrity in the Sirhan Sirhan sense, but "a lot of visitors on the weekends say they'd like to get a glimpse of him." As for his vulnerability to plotting inmates, officers say there have been no incidents nor rumors of any.

To date the president's nephew has served 14 months of his sentence. Because of his long and ugly record, however, observers do not expect his release anytime in the near future. "He's a complexity," says a parole authority, "a real sad case; we'd love to know what the president thinks about him, but I don't suppose we ever will."

Renko, Kessinger spark Sox in 5-1 win

OAKLAND — A pair of ex-Chicago Cubs, Steve Renko and Don Kessinger contributed to the late White Sox division drive by chipping in with clutch performances here Wednesday night against the Oakland A's.

Ralph Garr's two-run home run in the ninth, his 10th of the season, helped the Sox to a 5-1 victory as they continue to keep pace with the streaking Kansas City Royals.

Renko, notching his third victory of the year, gave up just four hits in seven innings of work. Dave Hamilton recorded his seventh save of the year.

AFTER BOTH teams were retired in order in the first, the White Sox capitalized on two hits and a walk for a 2-0 lead.

Following a one-out walk to Oscar Gamble and an opposite field single to right by Chet Lemon with two outs, Kessinger finally added his name to the American League RBI totals.

Kessinger, batting only .163 in his short stay with the Sox, surprised a pulled-in Oakland outfield with a solid line triple to the right center wall, which scored both Gamble and Lemon.

The two hits by the Sox were the only ones they managed off 22-year-old Oakland starter Matt Keough in the first four innings. Keough, listed on the A's roster last year as an infielder, held the Sox in check for all but one of the first five innings . . . the second.

KEOUGH, YOUNGER son of another former Cub, Marty Keough, struck out five in the first seven innings and in one stretch retired seven in a row.

He yielded just four hits before being relieved by Joe Coleman.

Renko, equally impressive, gave up just two hits in the first seven innings while striking out seven. No Oakland baserunner reached past second as Renko sought the third Sox shutout of the season.

The Sox added an insurance run in the sixth on just their third hit of the game. Alan Bannister walked to start the inning, with Jorge Orta following with a single to right.

One out later, Gamble walked to load the bases. Lamar Johnson, fooled on an inside curve, bounced a slow grounder to short for a force at second on Gamble. Bannister scored on the play, giving the Sox a 3-0 lead.

Oakland finally pushed a runner to third in the bottom of the eighth when Tony Armas reached second on a misplayed double to left by Garr.

The costly defensive lapse cost Renko his shutout as Armas scored two outs later.

ARMAS WAS pushed to third on a ground out to Bannister off Bill North's bat. Then, running to a full count on Rodney Scott, Renko threw a low outside fastball into the dirt and past catcher Jim Essian.

With Essian unable to locate the ball behind him, Armas trotted home with the first Oakland run. Left-hander Dave Hamilton came in from the bullpen to face lefty Mitchell Page with the tying run at the plate with two out.

After losing Page on a walk, Hamilton bounced back to fan Mike Jorgensen and end the inning.

Cubs keep up autumn slide with 4-2 loss

by ART MUGALIAN

Ah, Wrigley Field in September, and wasn't that nice of the Cubs' management to give a fresh coat of paint to 37,000 seats? How they glimmer in the crisp, late-summer sunlight!

Rich Resuchel, again trying to win his 20th game, was greeted with polite applause from 3,768 fans as he and the Cubs took the field Wednesday.

A sitting ovation.

BIG RICK tried but failed, succeeding only in completing his seventh loss of the season, a 4-2 setback to the Montreal Expos and one-time 20-game winner Stan Bahnsen. His Cy Young Award hopes slipping away irretrievably, Resuchel pitched seven no-hit innings Wednesday. Unfortunately, there were a couple of innings in between the glitter that were bitter.

Yes, Resuchel deserved a better fate.

Take the fourth, for instance. With one out and Rick having retired the first 10 Expos almost effortlessly, Montreal's Warren Cromartie swung half-heartedly and tapped a one-hopper back toward the mound.

Resuchel stuck out his glove and looked into it. No ball. He looked on the ground in vain. Rick turned around and behind him on the tall infield grass was the Expos' first base hit.

THE NEXT BATTER, slugging Andre Dawson, turned away from an inside pitch that hit his bat and trickled a few feet in front of the plate. Cub catcher George Mitterwald raced out, mask in hand, to field it but . . . let's allow Resuchel to tell the story from here.

"I ran in off the mound not sure if I would field it," Rick said. "I was watching George and the ball. I guess we both let up on it."

Mitterwald bent over the ball. Resuchel bent over the ball. Neither Cub picked it up in time to get Dawson at first. Dawson and Cromartie both scored on Tony Perez's line double to right-center on the next pitch. Another run came home a moment later on Gary Carter's single to left.

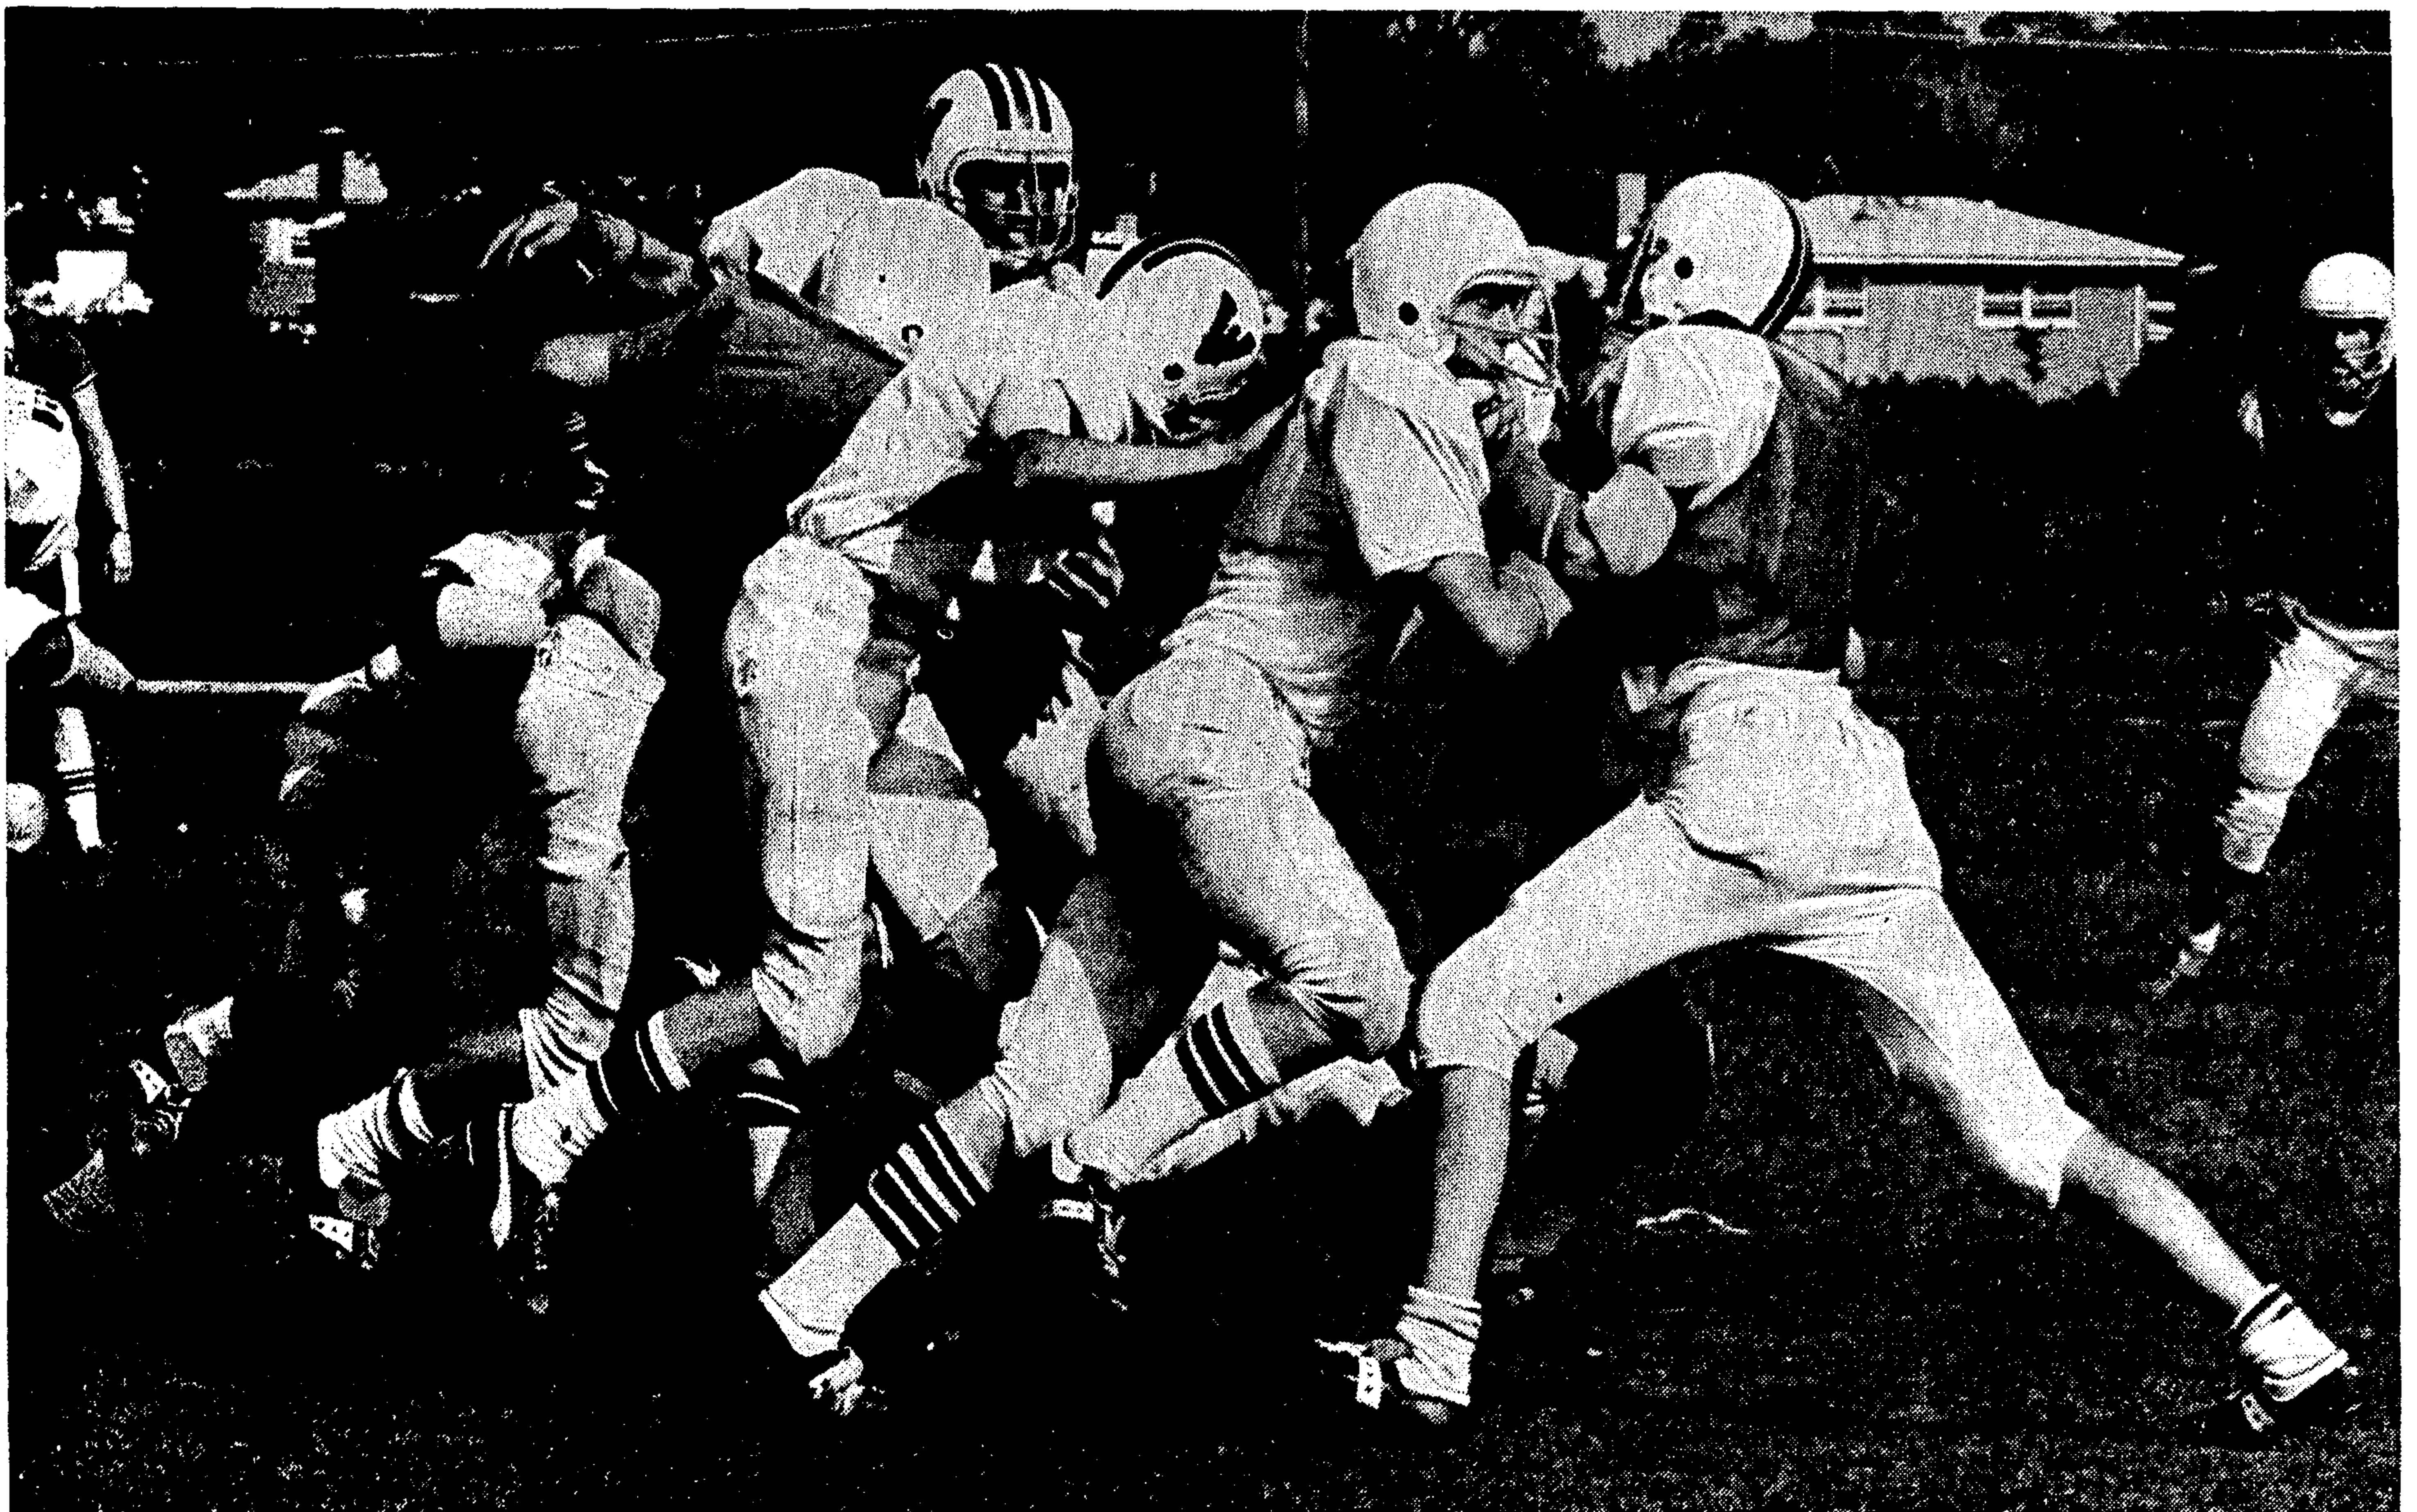

The three-run Expo inning wiped out a 1-0 Cub lead that had materialized from Ivan DeJesus' two-out triple in the third, followed by a double off the bat of Larry Blittner.

"Those things can happen," said Resuchel in a somber post-game interview.

THE KINDS OF THINGS that frequently happen to Resuchel also struck Bahnsen, the former White Sox righthander who became 8-7 for the season and 132-131 lifetime, with relief help from Don Stanhouse.

In the bottom of the fourth, Bobby Murcer led off with a double against Bahnsen, who then walked Steve Ontiveros without coming close to the strike zone. Manny Trillo sacrificed expertly (surprise!) and that brought up Mitterwald with the tying runs in St. Viator football players put the final touches on their game plan for Fridaynight's clash with rival Hersey.

Thompson, Schwellenbach out

Injuries hinder Viator's season start

by BOB GALLAS

St. Viator High School football coach Jim Lyne is faced with an unusual problem as his squad tunes up for its opening game against Hersey Friday.

Through seven seasons at the helm of the Lions, Lyne has run up an impressive win-loss record of 43-13-2 and has never lost more than three games in any one season. His teams have won four league titles and have made it to the state playoffs in all three years the playoffs have been in existence.

But a low turnout and rash of injuries has the normally unflappable Lyne concerned.

"IT BORDERS ON ludicrous," Lyne said. "We've held practices already where up to 50 per cent of the team was missing with injuries. For the first time since I've been here, we're going to have to play people both ways."

"We just don't have the depth of past years. We're gonna have to play football with 18 or 20 guys seeing most of the action," he said.

What worries Lyne most is going into the opener against Hersey without the services of his starting running backs, seniors John Thompson and Dan Schwellenbach. The Hersey-Viator rivalry is unparalleled in the area. It means a lot to both sides, even if it is a nonconference match.

But another man's scraps are another man's feast. The club Lyne plans to unveil this weekend may be weak in number, but it is still heavy in talent.

QUARTERBACK John Josten is the cornerstone of the Viator attack and is a seasoned veteran. Thrown into a starter's role as a sophomore when an injury shelved the starting signalcaller, Josten had a fine season last year as a junior and should emerge this season as one of the area's premier quarterbacks.

Josten will have to work with a pair of juniors at running back until Schwellenbach and Thompson return, which should be in time for the conference opener next week. Don Qui-nett (6-1, 155 pounds) and Tony Falduto (5-9, 155 pounds) will hold down the running back spots this week.

But Josten, a capable passer, may be tempted to throw at least until his running backs heal and if his young line can give him time. Returning is wide receiver Dan Bucaro, an All-Conference selection in the East Suburban Catholic Conference last season. He caught 13 passes for 306 yards and three touchdowns. Greg Harrison returns at slotback and John Lopez, who also will see duty in the defensive secondary, will play at tight end.

The offensive line will have two seniors at the tackles, Mark Zurowski (6-0, 180) and Larry Liebforth (5-10, 185). After that, Lyne hasn't even picked the rest of the line.

ON DEFENSE, things start to thin out. Chris Selvig at middle linebacker, Ken Gillen at defensive end and Tim Enright at safety are the only veterans returning.

Most of the injuries that have plagued the Lions so far will not keep any players out of action for the season and that gives Lyne some hope.

"Some of these kids this year are the finest talent I've ever coached," said Lyne, who hopes to improve on last year's 7-3 record. "I really don't know what to tell you. Nobody can until you play one or two games."

"By the second game a lot of the players will be back. But it's tough when you miss those double sessions."

"We may end up with a poor season or the best we've ever had. A lot depends on luck and how soon the injured can come back."

"If we get more injuries, though, it could be a long season," he said.

But if the Lyne magic holds true to form, don't count on it.

Pardee keeps Phipps, Avellini guessing on QB job

by BOB GALLAS

Bob Avellini says he doesn't know. Mike Phipps says he'd like to know. Jack Pardee says he knows, but he's not saying.

And that, Bear fans, is how the Chicago quarterback derby, which is apparently over, stands right now.

Head coach Pardee said Wednesday he had made his choice as to who will start the season at the Bear controls, but he hasn't informed either Avellini or Phipps. Presumably, they'll get the official word before Saturday night's final preseason game at Soldier Field, although Pardee would not say Wednesday when he'll make his choice known.

PARDEE DID say it was a "safe assumption" that whoever opens Saturday against Cincinnati will open against Detroit in the league opener the following Sunday.

"Once the announcement is made the 'other' quarterback will be doing something else and I don't want that yet," Pardee said. "We want them both to get work."

Although Pardee wants both to work, it's been Avellini who's been getting the most time in with the first offense in practice this week, leading to speculation that he has won the job.

But even though Pardee is set on a starter for now, he emphasized the situation may not be permanent.

"We will still work both, yet for one of them it won't be the same when he finds he's not starting but will have to keep up with everything all year. They both want to play and I want them both ready to play."

"I'M NOT ELIMINATING either from our plans and I don't want them to eliminate themselves," Pardee said.

If a decision has been made it probably wasn't made on the basis of statistics alone as both are about even in that respect. Phipps draws a slightly higher 63.0 compared to Avellini's 57.1 in the NFL's rating system.

Phipps has completed 29 of 64 attempts, passing for 313 yards and three touchdowns, while Avellini is 32 for 70 and 443 yards and three touchdowns. Phipps has been intercepted twice; Avellini has been intercepted four times.

But Avellini has the momentum. After Phipps suffered through three horrible quarters in Cleveland two weeks ago, Avellini came in and sparked the team to a fourth quarter drive that put one touchdown, and almost another, on the scoreboard. The following week, last week in St. Louis, Avellini looked good in three quarters of work against the Cardinals.

THE BEARS CUT two from their roster Wednesday, then got back up to the present 48-player limit by acquiring former Norte Dame running back Art Best on waivers from the Los Angeles Rams. Cut were fourth year safety Bill Knox out of Purdue and defensive tackle John Ward, who the Bears picked up last season from Tampa Bay.

Best, 6-1, 205 pounds, sat out the 1975 season after he was expelled from Notre Dame, following three brilliant seasons. He gained more than 700 yards his sophomore season. He transferred to Kent State for his senior year and gained 1,030 yard in 194 carriers there last year.

A sixth round draft choice by the Rams, Best had carried only twice during the preseason, once for a touchdown. The Bears now have seven running backs in camp. Pardee said he'll carry "only five or six."

Eight Arlington runners to vie for $8,500 purse

Today's feature event at Arlington Park is the $8,500 Social Outcast Purse with eight sophomore runners going six furlongs under allowance conditions. All the contestants would appear to be in a running mood if recent efforts are any indication.

Market Bagger, Bask and For the Love Pete each landed in the winner's circle in their last appearances.

Trained by Smiley Adams, Market Bagger rallied in the stretch Aug. 19 to post a length and one-half triumph over $30,000 claimers. It was the initial triumph of the season for the Three Bagger gelding who won four of 11 in 1976.

BASK IS conditioned by Joe Bollero, who sent out his charge to dispose of $20,000 claimers by nine lengths in the sloop here Aug. 16 at a distance of one mile. This Hawaii colt obviously faces better today and might find victory No. 3 in 1977 elusive.

For the Love Pete is a front-stepper with a pair of triumphs in 10 1977 voyages postward after going unraced as a 2-year-old. Aug. 18 saw this son of Pecos Ruler hang on for a nose victory over allowance horses.

Pass N' Run shipped here after a summer campaign at Ak-Sar-Ben and turned in a very impressive effort in losing to the talented Mr. Steel by a head here Aug. 22. Pass N' Run's next try was in the sloop, in which he failed miserably as he obviously did not care for the footing.

TIM'S CADILLAC won two in a row before having his win skein snapped in the same event that Pass N' Run performed so poorly. This will be just the fifth lifetime start for the Gallant Romeo colt.

Dravir seeks a return to his winning ways. After upsetting Delta Venture Aug. 23, Dravir came back to put in a good effort while finishing third behind Mr. Truxton and King Jerry.

Brach's Honey drove to the fore in his last try in mid-stretch only to get caught by Market Bagger. His lone 1977 victory was by four and one-half and was a front-running sort at one mile July 20.

Uncle Jer has earnings this season of $16,680 with two wins, two seconds and two thirds in 16 attempts. He was another that turned in a poor effort in the sloop last time out.

Win gains ground for Yankees

From Herald wire services

The New York Yankees turned defeat into victory and were breathing just a little bit easier after Wednesday night.

By nudging Toronto, the Yanks were able to gain ground on both Boston (who lost) and Baltimore (who split a doubleheader) in the still-close American League East pennant chase.

The Yankees, one out away from defeat, tied the score on a two-run single by Mickey Rivers in the ninth inning, then won it on a throwing error by left-fielder Bruce Bochte in the 10th to defeat the Cleveland Indians 4-3 and increase their lead to 3 1/2 games over Boston in the American League East pennant race.

ROY HOWELL's solo homer and rookie Gary Wood's run-scoring single in the sixth inning backed the four-hit pitching of Dave Lemanczyk and enabled the Toronto Blue Jays to snap an 11-game losing streak with a 3-2 triumph over the Red Sox.

The loss snapped Boston's five-game winning streak.

Rookie Lance Parrish, playing only his second major league game, drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and his first home run to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 12-5 victory over Baltimore in the second game after rookie Dave Skaggs drove in five runs to lead the Orioles to an 11-inning, 6-2 triumph in the opener.

the first game, keyed a four-run 11th with a game sealing three-run double in the opener, but by losing the second game, the Orioles dropped 4 1/2 games behind New York and one game behind second-place Boston in the AL

East. WILLIE HORTON hit a solo homer and later doubled home the go-ahead run in the sixth inning to lift the Texas Rangers and Dock Ellis to a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Ellis, 8-12, held the Twins to eight hits in 8-2/3 innings before giving way to Roger Moret, who earned his third save.

Horton doubled off losing reliever Tom Johnson, 15-7, to drive in Toby Harrah, who walked leading off the sixth inning. Horton clubbed his 13th home run with two out in the second to put Texas ahead 1-0.

Dodgers, Pirates pursue pennant

Ron Cey helped the Los Angeles Dodgers drive another nail into Cincinnati's coffin Wednesday but Pittsburgh and Bill Robinson would have none of that business in their pursuit of Philadelphia.

Cey hit home runs in two consecutive innings to knock in three runs and power Los Angeles to a 5-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves, which reduced the Dodgers' "magic number" for clinching the National League West pennant to 11 games.

The victory, coupled with Cincinnati's loss to San Francisco, increase the Dodgers' lead over the defending world champion Reds to 12 1/2 games.

WILLIE MCCOVEY drove in four runs with a double — his 2,000th career hit — and his 489th lifetime homer to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 6-3 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds despite George Foster's 46th homer of the season.

Robinson doubled in two runs and scored two others to help the Pirates keep their National League East pennant hopes alive with a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Robinson doubled in Phil Garner and Dave Parker during a three-run Pirates' first inning, aided by Garry Templeton's fielding error and two wild pitches by Cardinals' starter and loser John Denny.

Larry Christenson, backed by a 10-hit attack that included Jay Johnstone's 12th home run, tossed a two-hitter and led the National League East-leading Phillies to a 6-2 victory over the New York Mets.

The victory enabled the Phillies to maintain their six-game lead over Pittsburgh in the NL East.

DAVE ROBERTS drove in four runs with a double and his first homer of the season and George Hendrick also doubled and homered to ignite a 9-5 victory by the San Diego Padres over the Houston Astros.

Cubs keep up fall slide with loss

scoring position. Mitterwald hit a grounder to third baseman Larry Parrish as Murcer broke for the plate. Parrish, not about to concede the run, fired to Carter, the Expo catcher. Murcer, seeing this, put on the brakes and retraced his steps to third, which was where Ontiveros was heading. Murcer slid into the bag with Carter in hot pursuit.

The Montreal catcher took the easy out by reaching over to tag the standing Ontiveros.

Meanwhile, Murcer got to his feet and danced home unnoticed, pretty certain he had stolen a run with his vacillating behavior on the basepaths. Which he had since Carter had neglected to tag him.

TOO BAD THAT WAS all the Cubs could score — either by hook slide or by crook. The suddenly puncheonless Cub bats left 10 men on base. Blittner doubled again in the fifth and singled in the seventh and each time Bill Buckner followed with a base hit. But Jerry Morales failed twice in the clutch, extending his hitless streak to 13 times at bat.

In the fifth, with runners at first and third, Murcer rapped a grounder that almost took a hop over second baseman Dave Cash. But Cash grabbed it and fired to shortstop Chris Speier for a force at second. Speier must have been just as surprised as everyone else in the ball park since the scoreboard clearly read "2 out."

But Speier went through he motions and snapped a perfect throw to first, "doubling up" Murcer for the fourth out of the inning. Not to be outdone, Murcer argued the call with first base umpire Terry Tata.

The Expos scored again in the sixth on consecutive singles by Dawson, Perez and Ellis Valentine. But the Cubs left the tying runs on base in the seventh and again in the ninth when Greg Gross pinch hit a double and Blittner walked.

The loss snapped the Astros' three-game winning streak and was only their second in 13 games. It also snapped their nine-game winning streak in the Astrodome.

Evert clubs King; Stove tops Austin

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Chris Evert shot down Billie Jean King 6-2, 6-0 for her 110th straight clay court triumph Wednesday night after 32-year-old Betty Stove gave 14-year-old Tracy Austin a 6-2, 6-2 spanking, but the Old Lady and the Kid left the U.S. Open Tennis Championships to rousing standing ovations.

Evert, gunning for her third straight victory here, kept the three-time former U.S. champion running from corner to corner on the baseline nearly the entire 65 minutes of the match.

The pigtailed 5-foot-11 Austin, who has earlier upset fourth-seeded Sue Barker of England enroute to becoming the youngest quarterfinalist in the history of the U.S. Championship, simply could not handle the many winners coming off the racket of 6-foot-1 Stove.

In other matches Wednesday Guillermo Vilas breezed to a 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 decision over South Africa's Ray Moore while Harold Solomon dumped Dick Stockton 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. Vilas the 25-year-old fourth seed from Argentina cruised to his 44th straight clay court triumph to set up a meeting with Solomon in the semifinals.

Lakers get DiGregorio from Braves

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Lakers added speed and ball-handling ability to their NBA championship hopes today by acquiring playmaking guard Ernie DiGregorio from the Buffalo Braves.

The Lakers refused to disclose terms of DiGregorio's contract or compensation to the Braves, but it was reported that the Braves would pick up part of the former Providence University star's five-year, $2-million pact which had one season to run.

The Lakers said only that he signed a multi-year contract. "I'm very happy and excited about being here," the 26-year-old, 6-foot, 180-pound guard told a Forum news conference. "I look forward to helping the Lakers win the championship this year. I just want to do the things that are going to help the team win."

DiGregorio, who shot a league record .945 per cent from the foul line last season, said he was "completely rehabilitated" from the knee injury that he suffered during his second year of professional basketball in 1974-75.

Baseball attendance record set

NEW YORK — Labor Day weekend crowds at American League ballparks pushed the league's total season attendance to a major-league record 17,468,315. The previous major league high was the National League's 17,324,857, set in 1971. The record was broken by 143,458 going into games of Tuesday night.

With 167 playing dates remaining, American League attendance probably will top 19 million and may even reach 20 million. Every club in the league except Cleveland and Oakland has surpassed the million mark. Both Boston and New York are expected to exceed two million and the Indians have a chance to reach a million.

Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, California and Texas all are on course to set new club attendance records this season and both Baltimore and Milwaukee have a chance to set season club attendance highs this year.

Scott returns without explanation

TORONTO — George Scott of the Boston Red Sox returned to the lineup against the Toronto Blue Jays Wednesday night after refusing to play in the team's previous two games.

Scott, who did not play in the last two contests because he "was not ready to play," was at first base in Boston's game against the Blue Jays.

Boston Manager Don Zimmer offered no explanation of Scott's return. "Yeah, he's playing, that's all I've got to say on it," said Zimmer.

Zimmer told reporters if Scott did not want to play "that's all right. I've got other good ballplayers."

Speculation is that Scott was angered at batting in the seventh position in the first game of Boston's Monday doubleheader with the Blue Jays. But the lineup for Wednesday night's game again lists Scott hitting in the seventh position.

Pistons' Marvin Barnes paroled

CRANSTON, R.I. — Pro basketball player Marvin Barnes Wednesday was granted parole from the Rhode Island Adult Correctional Institution effective Oct. 14, after serving five months of a one-year sentence for probation violation.

The 6-foot-10 Detroit Piston forward was jailed May 16 for breaking state probation with a handgun arrest in Michigan. "No reason for the parole was given," said corrections spokeswoman Lillian G. McDaniel. "They give reasons only for denial. One reason for granting parole is that the board feels the man will make a success for his parole program."

To win parole, a prisoner must show plans for employment and residence after release. Barnes' program was resumption of his basketball career with Detroit.

How will Barrington fare?

There's a new kid on the block

by ART MUGALIAN

Their names are famous ones. Eric Shellenback, Bruce Henricksen, "Biff" George.

Their brothers and, in some cases, their fathers, have performed admirably on the football field in Barrington and elsewhere.

There are others. Craig Mehalic, Kirk Kissner, Steve Edwards. These are the young men who will carry the Barrington Bronco gridiron reputation to the Mid-Suburban League North.

ONLY THE fast-paced march of time will tell whether Barrington's success will continue in a new league, a new class.

Until this year, the Broncos of coach Bill Graham have been competing — and winning — in the 4A North Suburban Conference where they won eight titles in the past 14 years. Graham boasts a 93-27-2 won-loss record. Over the past 27 seasons, Barrington has won 79 per cent of its games.

The talent on Graham's 1977 team is awesome. "If we were still in the North Suburban," said the coach, "I'd have no hesitation in predicting that we'd be a favorite to win the championship."

Henricksen, whose brother was a prep All-American at Barrington a decade ago, is the starting quarterback this year. The 6-1, 166-pound senior brings with him a fabled passing arm that threw for 17 touchdowns and 1,447 yards on 110 completions last season.

Football '77

HIS MOST sure-handed target will be Shellenback (5-11, 170), brother of All-State tailback Frank Shellenback who scored 36 TDs during the 1974 season. Eric, the possessor of 4.5 speed in the 40-dash (with pads), is a senior who gained 425 yards on pass catches last season.

Then there is George, whose father Bill was a Hall of Fame linebacker for the Chicago Bears. "Biff" has beefed himself up to 6-2 and 207 pounds and will be a mainstay at defensive tackle and linebacker like his brother Leo before him.

Offense, with heavy reliance on the tailback position, has long been a Barrington forte. Last year's tailback, Bryan Amis, was a workhorse with 23 TDs, including seven in one game. Amis is gone and the tailback slot will go to Edwards, a 6-1, 175-pound senior who was a blocking fullback in last year's alignment.

"Steve has developed more agility and some good moves," said Graham. "I believe if he stays healthy he'll rank among the best tailbacks we've ever had."

GRAHAM'S FORTE may be the running game but his ace in the hole is the surprise play. The Broncos have pulled off every imaginable play in the book — and some that weren't in the book.

With a strong cast of characters on offense, Barrington again will have the potential for the razzle-dazzle game-breaker. The key to the offense is Henricksen.

"Bruce is a leader, he's smart, he has poise and he has a tremendously accurate throwing arm," said Graham. "Not too many people realize that he has 4.8 speed, too. There's not much more you'd want in a quarterback."

Graham's big concern will be on defense, where he lost all 11 starters to graduation. His most experienced man is senior defensive back Jeff Swanson (6-0, 185) who saw action in nearly every game a year ago. He'll be joined in the secondary by Chuck Tasch (5-9, 145), Bob Johnson (5-8, 172), and Kevin Noreen (5-10, 171).

THE BRONCOS WILL send several linemen-linebackers into two-way duty including George, Tom Bolger (6-0, 202), Brian Vogel (6-1, 217), Paul Golitz (5-10, 182), and Kissner (6-1, 188).

Barrington opens with a nonconference game at Loves Park Harlem before plunging into MSL competition a week later against crossover rival Elk Grove, one of the favorites in the South.

"One of our problems this year is that we're a new team in the conference and with our reputation everyone will be pointing for us," said Graham. Something says Graham likes it that way.

Win at bridge

End play brings bonus

This hand from "Bridge is Beautiful" shows how responder handles a good hand with weak three-card support for partner's opening bid. He starts with a two-diamond response. Maybe the hand belongs in notrump or in a minor suit. Then when South rebids to two hearts, North stops exploration and goes on to the heart game.

West opens the 10 of trumps and South ducks the first trump lead to keep control of the suit. East leads a second trump and South takes his ace. Four hearts is a cinch. There is one spade loser plus two trump losers. Can you see how to avoid that spade loser? South cashes his ace of diamonds, enters dummy with a club, discards a spade on the king of diamonds, ruffs a diamond, enters dummy with a second club, ruffs dummy's last diamond and is pleased to see that all the diamonds have been played.

South plays more clubs. East's best defense is not to ruff, but even that does him no good. South simply throws him in with his last high trump and he is forced to lead away from the king of spades.

Gyroscope spins a tale of invention

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Sharon Agnew, 12, of Winston-Salem, N.C., for her question:

WHO DISCOVERED THE GYROSCOPE?

A gyroscope, basically, is a spinning wheel mounted in a movable frame. Toy gyroscopes usually are started by wrapping strings around the axles and then pulling the strings. Most gyroscope rotors used in instruments, however, are driven by self-contained electric motors.

Our first written report on a gyroscope tells of one made in Germany in 1810 by a man named G. C. Bohnenberger. In 1852 a French physicist named Jean Foucault built one in which he demonstrated that the earth rotates on its axis. Foucault named the instrument by taking two Greek words: gyros, meaning revolution, and skopein, meaning to view.

A Scottish engineer named Robert Whitehead first used the gyroscope with military equipment in 1896. He perfected a gyroscopically controlled torpedo.

In 1900, when more ships were being built of steel than wood, magnetic compasses were proving to be untrustworthy. A German scientist named Hermann Anschutz-Kampfe came up with the gyrocompass in 1906 and in 1911 an American scientist named Elmer A. Sperry came up with a successful gyrocompass on a United States warship. In 1912, Sperry's son Lawrence invented an automatic pilot that used gyroscopes to stabilize an airplane's controls.

Lawrence Sperry went on to win top honors in 1914 in Paris for having the most stable airplane and in 1918 he developed the gyroscopically controlled turn indicator for airplanes. His company also developed the directional gyro and the gyro-horizon in 1928 that allows pilots to fly safely at night and in bad weather.

How does the gyrocompass work? The axle is horizontal and always points to true north, rather than magnetic north. Cylinders filled with mercury are connected to the frame of the gyroscope. The weight of the mercury pulled by the earth's gravity keeps the gyroscope from turning over as the earth rotates. Gyrocompasses used on most ships have rotors that are driven by electric motors at speeds of about 6,000 rpm.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Jeff Jessie, 14, of Eugene, Ore. 97402, for his question:

WHY AREN'T TEAMS FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES IN THE WORLD SERIES?

Perhaps someday foreign teams will take part in the annual baseball championship called the World Series. But as things stand now, almost all who follow the sport agree there are no better teams in the world than those in the major American and National Leagues. The World Series has been played every year since 1903 with the exception of 1904. The first team to win four series games wins the title of world champion. Throughout North America and the world the fall classic is followed by millions with great interest. Even those who don't know who's on first become baseball fans at World Series time.

Baseball fans themselves choose the players in another important event each year: the All-Star game.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006 and include your name, age and address. Entries open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

Homeowners gird dwellings against winter

From Herald news services
With an eye to keeping heating bills low, thousands of U.S. homeowners are joining the rush to insulate walls and attics.

President Carter, who would like to institute tax credits to make the appeal even greater, has voiced his hope that 90 per cent of all American homes will be insulated by 1985.

What kind of insulation is best? Energy experts insist there is no "best" — that it all depends on where you want to install insulation, whether or not you intend to do the job yourself and the varying prices of different kinds of insulation.

Total cost of weatherproofing homes is estimated between $500 and $1,500.

THE EXPERTS STRESS that proper installation is as important as the material selected. Air vents, for instance, should never be covered, and insulation should always be kept three inches away from recessed light fixtures, electric sockets and wiring.

Three basic insulation materials are used in homes:

- Cellulose, ground-up paper that comes mostly in a loose style, is usually inexpensive and efficient. It is one of the few materials that can be used in both attics and walls. Although you can rent a machine and blow in the insulation yourself, most homeowners leave the job to a contractor.

- But a word of caution: Some firms moving into production recently have skimped on treating cellulose with the proper fire-retardant chemical — boric acid. To be sure you are not buying a variety that can burn or corrode the metal it may cover, check the reputation of the firm. Also, look for a label on the bag indicating the product meets federal specifications, or those of Underwriters Cellulose Insulation Manufacturers Assn.

- Mineral wool (fiberglass or rock wool) is one of the oldest home insulation materials. Available in blankets, batts, loose balls or boards, it is mostly used in attics. Most do-it-yourselfers choose this kind. However, if you plan to blow it into place, a contractor should be hired.

- Produced mostly by three major manufacturers, mineral wool has few quality or safety problems. However, a spokesman for Owens Corning Corp., the largest fiberglass manufacturer, cautions that if a variety with paper or foil backing is purchased (that part can burn), care should be taken that the facing is not left exposed but placed with its back to the wall. Also, do not buy the kind with vapor barrier backing if you plan to install it over old insulation.

- Plastic foam (urea-formaldehyde), which always must be installed by a contractor, is chiefly a wall insulator. It is more expensive than mineral wool or cellulose, but also more efficient. Urea formaldehyde has certain inherent shrinkage and odor (generally temporary) characteristics, and experts advise buyers to obtain a guarantee against such problems from the installing contractor.

How much will you need? In addition to the footage needed to cover bare space, you also should consider the insulation's "R" value, a measure of thermal resistance. The higher the R value, the greater the material's resistance to heat traveling through it. One inch of cellulose, for example, has a higher R value and is thermally more efficient than one inch of fiberglass. The R value you need depends on where you live, and a check with your local utility company will indicate what is recommended.

A CHICAGO-AREA trade publication recently reported builders here have turned primarily to increased use of insulation to make their homes more energy-efficient.

The newsletter, Builder's Report, said 83 per cent of area builders have increased attic insulation, while 67 per cent have used double or triple glazing in all windows.

The report stated nearly 20 per cent have tried 2-by-6-inch sidewall framing to allow for a full six inches of insulation.

Two-inch insulation has grown to 6 inches, the report states. Ceiling insulation, formerly a standard two inches, has been raised to eight to 10 inches in two-thirds of new homes, the report said.

BIGGEST NEWCOMER in insulation is rigid polystyrene foam exterior sheathing, the report said. Two years ago only 3.1 per cent of builders used the substance, which today accounts for 30 per cent of construction, the report added.

Other means of obtaining energy savings cited by the report included: better grades of weather stripping and caulking; roof overhangs for summer shade; heat pumps; attic fans; storm windows; and metal windows with a thermal break.

Also employed are storm doors, ventilator fans, power humidifiers and exterior solar controls, such as awnings and shade-type screens.

Growing pains

Major U.S. corporations planning expansion of office facilities to meet the needs of 1980

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sixty-three percent of major U.S. corporations plan to expand their office space before 1980, with firms in the north central region the most optimistic about their needs, a survey of corporate chief financial officers showed recently.

The executives, representing companies with average sales in 1976 of more than $510 million, indicated they expected growth will accelerate at a faster pace through the early 1980s, with 78 per cent of those responding saying they will need even more space after 1980.

Only one financial executive responding to the survey, conducted by Chicago-based Howard Ecker and Co., and released in New York, forecast a declining need for office space, and only 5 per cent said their office space needs would not be likely to increase over the next several years.

"SINCE ALMOST all office space leases involve multi-year contracts, the corporate financial planning that is occurring now provides significant indications of how chief financial officers are viewing business prospects in the years immediately ahead," Howard L. Ecker, president of the office leasing consultant firm, said.

Ecker said demand for additional office space will vary around the country, with financial officers the most optimistic for cities in the north central and southwest, and the least so for those in the south and northwest.

Forty-five per cent of the executives in the north central region said their needs for additional space are likely to increase and 50 per cent in this area said their needs are unlikely to change. In the southwest area, 30 per cent reported their needs are likely to expand and 68 per cent said they will stay the same.

In other areas: the northeast, 24 per cent report needing additional space; the southeast, 20 per cent; the south, 13 per cent, and the northwest, 7 per cent.

ECKER SAID the intentions of the biggest users of office space will result in some cities finding "in 1980 they will have built more office space than the market wants or needs and others will find themselves without enough to meet market demand."

He said this situation could work to the advantage of firms that can be flexible in their choice of location for expansion, enabling them to take advantage of bargain space in overbuilt markets.

Ecker said the chief financial officers ranked four criteria in seeking an office location in this order: proximity to labor pools, public transportation, customers and suppliers.

He said as the energy crisis becomes an increasing reality, "The availability of nearby labor and accessibility to public transportation will increasingly favor centralized metropolitan areas as office locations."

1,500 to attend

Housing experts highlight meet

Authorities in housing and finance are meeting in San Francisco this week to discuss world housing problems at the 14th World Congress of the International Union of Building Societies and Savings Associations.

More than 1,500 delegates and spouses from 29 nations are attending the four-day event convened by the union, a worldwide trade organization of the thrift business.

Speakers scheduled to appear at the congress include John Kenneth Galbraith, author and economist; U.S. Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass.; Garth Marston, member and former chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board; John A. Hardin, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations; and Peter Kimm, director of housing, U.S. Agency for International Development.

THE CONVENTION opened Tuesday morning and will meet through Friday.

John Stadler, president of the union, said export of American savings and loan concepts can help solve housing problems in developing nations.

Stadler, who also is president of the National Permanent Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Washington, D.C., cited U.S. business practices that enable American families to purchase their own homes.

While some of the world's housing problems are so severe government aid is needed, Stadler said, "In many nations the most immediate need is to find a way for middle-income families to finance the purchase of homes of their own."

The emergence of a strong middle class is "critically important to the growth and stability of developing nations," Stadler said.

DEVELOPING countries need the professional and business skills of teachers, doctors, businessmen and technicians, Stadler said.

"These people must be able to see a future in their own countries, and that stable future often involves the knowledge that they and their families can achieve what really are rather typical middle class goals," he said.

Stadler also cited progress in Latin America, in which 17 nations have savings and loan associations similar to those in the United States.

Other speakers and panelists at the congress include Cesar Quintana, administrator of the United Nations Habitat and Human Settlements Foundation; and Luiz Carlos V. Da Fonseca, executive president of Banco Interamericano de Ahorro y Prestamo, the first multinational bank established to serve savings and loan associations.

Topics of plenary sessions include "Savings and Loan Activity in Developing Countries"; "Governmental Attitudes and Actions Concerning the Savings and Loan Business"; "The Challenge of Low-Cost Housing"; and "Problems of the Next Decade."

Asbestos in false wood, other products studied

A federal consumer agency is investigating whether manufacturers of patching compounds and artificial firewood and ash have eliminated asbestos from their products, as company spokesmen maintain.

The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission will check products manufactured by 50 makers of patching compounds and 13 artificial log and ash firms, said Vincent Rocke, special assistant to the CPSC commissioner.

The investigation follows comments by industry spokesmen and consumer advocates made at an Aug. 15 public hearing in Washington, D.C., and by mail.

SPOKESMEN FOR the commission say a ban is a certainty, but the specifics of the ban are still being discussed. A ruling by the commission is expected before the end of the year.

Rocke said the commission also is looking into the use of asbestos in children's modeling clay and in cement used for wall panelings in Puerto Rico.

Asbestos, a substance suspected of causing cancer in humans, had been an ingredient of half the patching compounds and many artificial firewood and ash products, according to the commission.

However, most industry spokesmen say they have eliminated asbestos from their products.

AT ISSUE IS "free-form" asbestos which can be inhaled. As long as asbestos is "locked in" a product, and cannot escape into the atmosphere as fine particles, the product is considered safe by the commission.

However, the commission is asking if free-form asbestos still is being produced in patching compounds and gas-fired fireplace paraphernalia, whether deliberately or as an accidental contaminant, Rocke said.

Manufacturers of spackling compounds say they ceased using asbestos as an ingredient about 10 years ago, but the commission suspects asbestos may still be found in tape-joint compounds, Rocke said.

Undecided details of the proposed ban include the date the ban will take effect; and whether it should cover both manufacturing and retail sales, Rocke said.

Heat from computers used to save energy at S&L

Office planners seeking ways to make new buildings more energy efficient might take a look at some new savings and loan association offices.

What they'll find are offices warmed by heat from a computer; branch offices with fewer windows and more efficient lighting; and solar heated office buildings.

And in each instance, according to U.S. League of Savings Associations, the savings associations are reducing the consumption of traditional energy supplies.

Even in last winter's bitter subzero weather, the four-level, 29,000-square-foot main office of Citizens Savings in Portsmouth, Ohio, was warm — thanks to the association's use of heat generated by its computer system.

All computers, except mini-sized units, give off an excess amount of heat, according to the Savings & Loan News article. Most companies are forced to install extensive air cooling units of offset the heat and keep computer room temperatures properly balanced.

Citizens Savings, however, exhausts the heat generated by its computer into the building duct work, where it flows throughout the association's home office.

The association uses a gas-fired system to provide heat at night, when the computer system is shut off. Even so, Citizens has been able to reduce its natural gas consumption by as much as 50 per cent.

Another Ohio-based savings association, Union Savings of Cleveland, has reduced operating costs by 30 per cent in two new branch offices specifically designed to reduce energy consumption. The two offices are located in Mentor and Lorain, Ohio.

Although the design patterns are similar to the association's other branch buildings, the new offices have fewer windows, less overall space and consequently smaller heating and cooling plants. The buildings are both 2,700 square feet, about 10 per cent smaller than Union's more typical branch offices.

A major portion of the association's energy savings can be attributed to careful lighting design, the league said.

Lighting is generally restricted to work areas, where low-watt, high-intensity light fixtures are used rather than the more common incandescent light fixtures. The association has reduced the lighting portion of its energy load requirements by 35 per cent.

An automatic night temperature setback control, which reduces heating in the winter and cooling in the summer, also has provided a significant energy savings, the league said. Because of their effectiveness in Union Savings' Mentor and Lorain offices, night setback controls have been installed in all of the association's 20 branch buildings.

A third association, Friendship Federal Savings of Pittsburgh, uses solar heat to help warm its new branch office in Greensburg, Pa.

The office has a conventional gas furnace for backup purposes, but even during a long stretch of January weather when the temperature hovered around -18 degrees, the association was forced to use its conventional backup system for "only one or two days," according to the league.

Friendship Federal expects to reduce gas consumption by 60 per cent in its solar office.

Nothing to real estate? Think again

Many sensible people in this world who know their limitations in many walks of life seem to go off half-cocked when it comes to their alleged "knowledge" of real estate. There are so many so-called "experts."

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm an executive of a large advertising agency where I have been a partner for 15 years. I have accumulated some money in that time and have decided to dabble in real estate. Everybody says that's where the big money is.

I thought I'd try to get a lead on what's the thing to know, as long as one has the money to spend. I feel I have a good head on my shoulders, and after all, I have been successful in my chosen field. So I don't think I need to get involved with lawyers and brokers and appraisers.

What's your advice on what sort of real estate I should throw myself into? — Already Successful.

If you are as clever as you say you are, you'd realize that real estate is an extremely complex and technical field. It is imperative to rely on and seek the advice of real estate lawyers, brokers, appraisers and bankers. You cannot just leap into real estate investment.

It is very important that you be guided by a broker with integrity regarding location, terms available, condition financing, and so forth. If you inquire of local bank mortgage officers or lawyers, they can recommend reputable brokers.

Bear in mind that all the advice and information you receive from an experienced broker is free. If you do buy from him, his fee is paid by the seller. If you steer away from a broker, you will only shortchange yourself.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I graduated from college a few years ago with a high average, but no profession. I took the academic course and am really qualified for nothing much. I have drifted from job to job. Since I'm unmarried and still live with my mother, I haven't needed much money.

However, I am intelligent, personable and willing to work hard. My mom keeps after me to get my real estate license and go into that field. She says it's very lucrative, and since I am not in urgent, immediate need of money, she feels it would be good for me.

You're the real estate expert! What do you think of a novice like I am studying and trying to get my license? Would you advise it? — Which Way To Go?

The real estate brokerage business can be very lucrative. Yet it is not difficult to obtain a broker's or salesman's license in most states. Anyone over 18 can be a real estate salesman, and anyone over 21 can qualify as a real estate broker.

Except for a very few states, licensing examinations require not even the equivalent of a high school diploma. A quick training course or study of a training manual can set you up for the test.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I know you're a real estate expert, and many other things, as well. But I wonder if your expertise extends to wallpapering. My husband says you know everything.

My next door neighbor papered her bathroom and did a beautiful job. She showed me how to apply the wallpaper, but not how to prepare the wall. Can you give me a hint? — Willing But Unable.

First, the wall surface must be smooth and dry. You can paper over other wallpaper if it is firm and has no loose spots. If there are some loose spots, tear them away and sandpaper the edges lightly.

If it is a painted wall, you will have to dull the glossy surface. This can be done by washing the wall with a solution of one cup of ammonia to each quart of warm water.

Then you're ready to go!

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We are planning to move to Florida. We have our eye on a condominium there. Our children are grown and have flown the coop, we have enough money to be comfortable, so we're going to live it up.

However, we have one problem. Though we have placed our house with a well-known, legitimate broker, he just hasn't gotten close to selling it. It's a lovely property, in good condition, with the latest appliances, etc. We don't understand it. It's in a good neighborhood, too.

Can you venture a guess as to why our broker isn't getting anywhere? — Ready To Fly.

I can venture several guesses. One of the most common causes for failure to sell a house is that it might be overpriced.

Another reason might be that you have given him an exclusive right to sell your house, he may be doing very little for you by way of advertising.

$770,000 mortgage told

B.B. Cohen & Co., Chicago-based mortgage banker, has arranged a first mortgage of $770,000 on a new-story industrial building at 5300 New-report Dr., Rolling Meadows.

The fully air-conditioned building, located in the south Rolling Meadows Industrial Park, covers 45,486 square feet of a 115,400-square-foot parcel. It is leased to Mod-A-Graphics Corp., designer and producer of decals for industry and business.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

There could be many reasons why your house is not selling. From your description of it, it might be one of the reasons I give above. If it's a good property in a good location, it should sell if it's not overpriced.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have a beautiful antique lamp in our living room. Everyone admires it. After all these years the cord needs replacing.

Must we call an electrician, or is it something my husband can replace? He's pretty handy. — Broken Wires.

You haven't told me why the cord needs replacing. If a wire has broken inside the insulating material, the lamp won't work.

If the insulation is broken down enough so that bared wires are touching, the circuit will short and might cause a fire. If you touch a bared wire, it may result in an electrical shock.

If your husband can locate the break, a broken wire can be spliced. A failure in insulation can be mended with electrician's tape.

If it is in very bad shape, you may have to replace the cord rather than repair it. This is probably what you will have to do, since you say it is very old. A very old cord probably has brittle insulation.

How to make those staircases safe

Dear House Doctor: I recently read a report that said most injuries in a home resulted from falls in bathtubs and on stairs. You have mentioned the use of non-skid tapes in bathtubs, but I do not recall anything about making stairs safer. — W. H. P.

Someone who bore a grudge against the human race suggested it was good exercise to ascend or descend stairs two steps at a time. This falls into the same category as trapeze performers who do not use safety nets.

The chance of a fall on stairs cannot be completely eliminated, but it can certainly be reduced. Cellar stairs are the principal offenders since builders are prone to skimp on their construc-additional lights, you can improve the condition by painting an inch-wide strip along the front edge of each tread and the entire bottom treads. (Traffic orange or yellow are suggested colors.) To help you do a neat job, border the area to be painted with masking tape.

Outdoor steps are often dangerous when wet, but weatherproof, non-skid tapes are available at most hardware and boating supply stores. Another idea is to paint the steps with a suitable paint and then sprinkle clean sand over it.

Outpatients' clinic

F.M. — The concrete porch floor becomes damp because the moisture in the air condenses on the cold surface. When you enclose the porch and install carpet, the damp air will not be able to reach the floor.

F.J.U. — The mixture for an oil finish on furniture is two parts of boiled linseed oil and one part of turpentine. The principal ingredient, though, is time, as you can spend a year finishing one piece of furniture.

R.W. — New asphalt shingles should not be less than 230-pound grade and should be self-sealing. Color is a matter of taste, but black is not recommended because of heat buildup.

Dear House Doctor: We insulated our attic 15 years ago, but now we would like to add more. Should the new insulation be placed under or on top of the old material? — Mrs. S.C.R.

If the present insulation has a vapor barrier in contact with the ceiling below, you can add loose fill insulation on top. You may also add batt or blanket insulation which is available without a vapor barrier. Remove the present insulation only if you must install a vapor barrier.

Dear House Doctor: What finish should I apply to redwood siding? — A.P.R.

Special stains and sealers are made for redwood and only these should be used. One popular brand is "Liquid Rawhide," but this is not a recommendation for this product being better than some of the others.

Dear House Doctor: In summer, we keep our winter clothing in zippered containers in a cedar closet, but we find we still get moth damage. I am allergic to mothballs and am reluctant to use them. A carpenter examined the cedar closet and feels that it is properly constructed. What should we do? — Mrs. M.C.

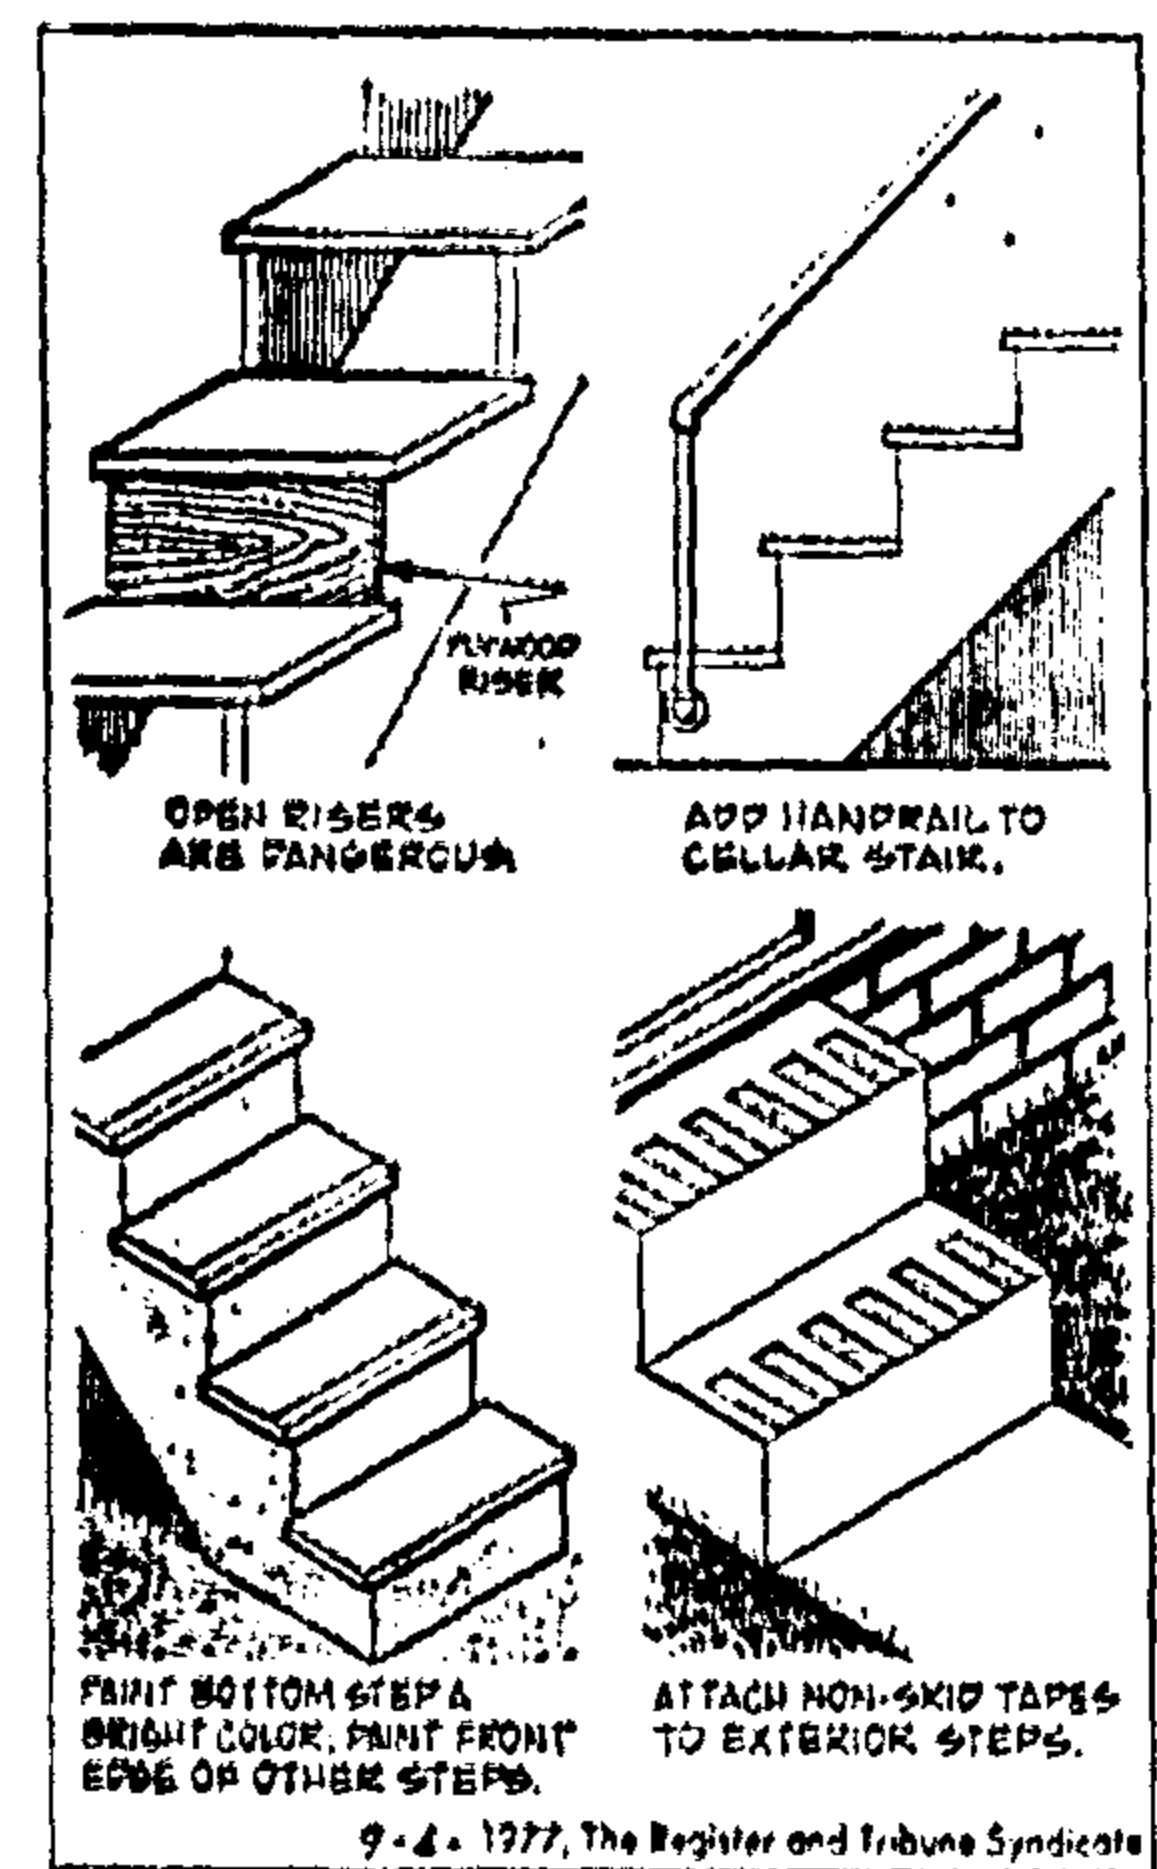

The value of cedar as protection against moth damage is overrated. Freshly cut cedar does have some value but this dissipates within a year or two.

I suggest you continue using the zippered containers and place a small amount of paradichlorobenzene moth crystals in them with the clothes. With well-made containers, the odor of the crystals should be sealed in.

Dear House Doctor: I have an open wooden porch across the front of my house. I have had to paint it every two years because the paint blisters and peels. I have used a different brand of paint each time but the same thing happens. I suspect the sun is causing this trouble. What do you think? — M.P.

Paint chemists are very competent at their profession, but, as far as I know, not one has been able to perfect a formula for paint that will give long service when applied to a wood porch exposed to the weather. It is rain and not the sun that is causing the trouble. The best idea is to remove the paint and apply a good penetrating wood stain.

tion. It is far better to devote a few hours to making them safe than to spend time in a hospital having a cast placed on a broken arm.

Risers are often omitted from cellar stairs, making them much more dangerous to climb that it may appear. Part of your foot could enter this space, so that as you ascend, the tread above will cause you to fall forward. However, it's very easy to cut plywood to fill the space between treads and nail these to the stringers.

The omission of handrails is an invitation to disaster. If one should start to fall, there is nothing to hold until he reaches the floor at the bottom. Pipe handrails and fittings are easily assembled, as are wood handrails.

Cellar stairs are seldom properly lighted. But even without installing

Counseling urged for home buyers

Many of the home financing problems that plague inner city residents — and the lenders who hold their mortgages — could be avoided through expert individual counseling about money matters, an economist says in a recently completed study.

For example, people might be less likely to buy a larger home than they need if they are shown in pre-purchase counseling that the debt service and maintenance cost burdens of a larger house could be too much for their income.

Once the house has been purchased, guidance on the need for regular budgeting, debt management and the wise use of credit could help reduce the higher rates of late mortgage payments and loan defaults found in inner city neighborhoods, said Dr. Andrew F. Brimmer, former governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

TO OFFER THIS specialized counseling, mortgage lenders may have to hire additional employees to service higher risk loans, he said.

Brimmer conducted the study for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, which wanted to know whether there are inherent extra risks in making inner city home loans.

Brimmer said there are significantly greater risks ahead for lenders who plan to expand their volume of inner city home financing.

But, he said, savings and loan associations can reduce those risks through a number of steps, including intensified counseling of borrowers both before a home purchase and while the loan is being retired.

In addition to reducing risks for the lender, this counseling would also help consumers find and hold onto affordable housing that suits their needs.

BRIMMER SAID counseling should not be directed solely to working class or lower income groups, but instead should include middle class people and virtually anyone who prefers inner city living and wants to own a home.

Even though middle class residents of the inner cities are "not often thought to be in need of counseling, they, too, are subject to overestimating their need for space and to underestimating the cost and work of renovation and maintenance," Brimmer said.

In addition, he said, early counseling by lenders can help new homeowners avoid a later financial crunch "where either builders or real estate agents underestimate the costs of taxes and maintenance." Financial expertise available at savings and loan associations would enable their counselors to give the homeowner better estimates than builders or salespeople could.

Brimmer said lenders using pre-purchase counseling would also have a better way to screen out "applicants with acceptable credit histories but who lack the emotional maturity for responsible home ownership."

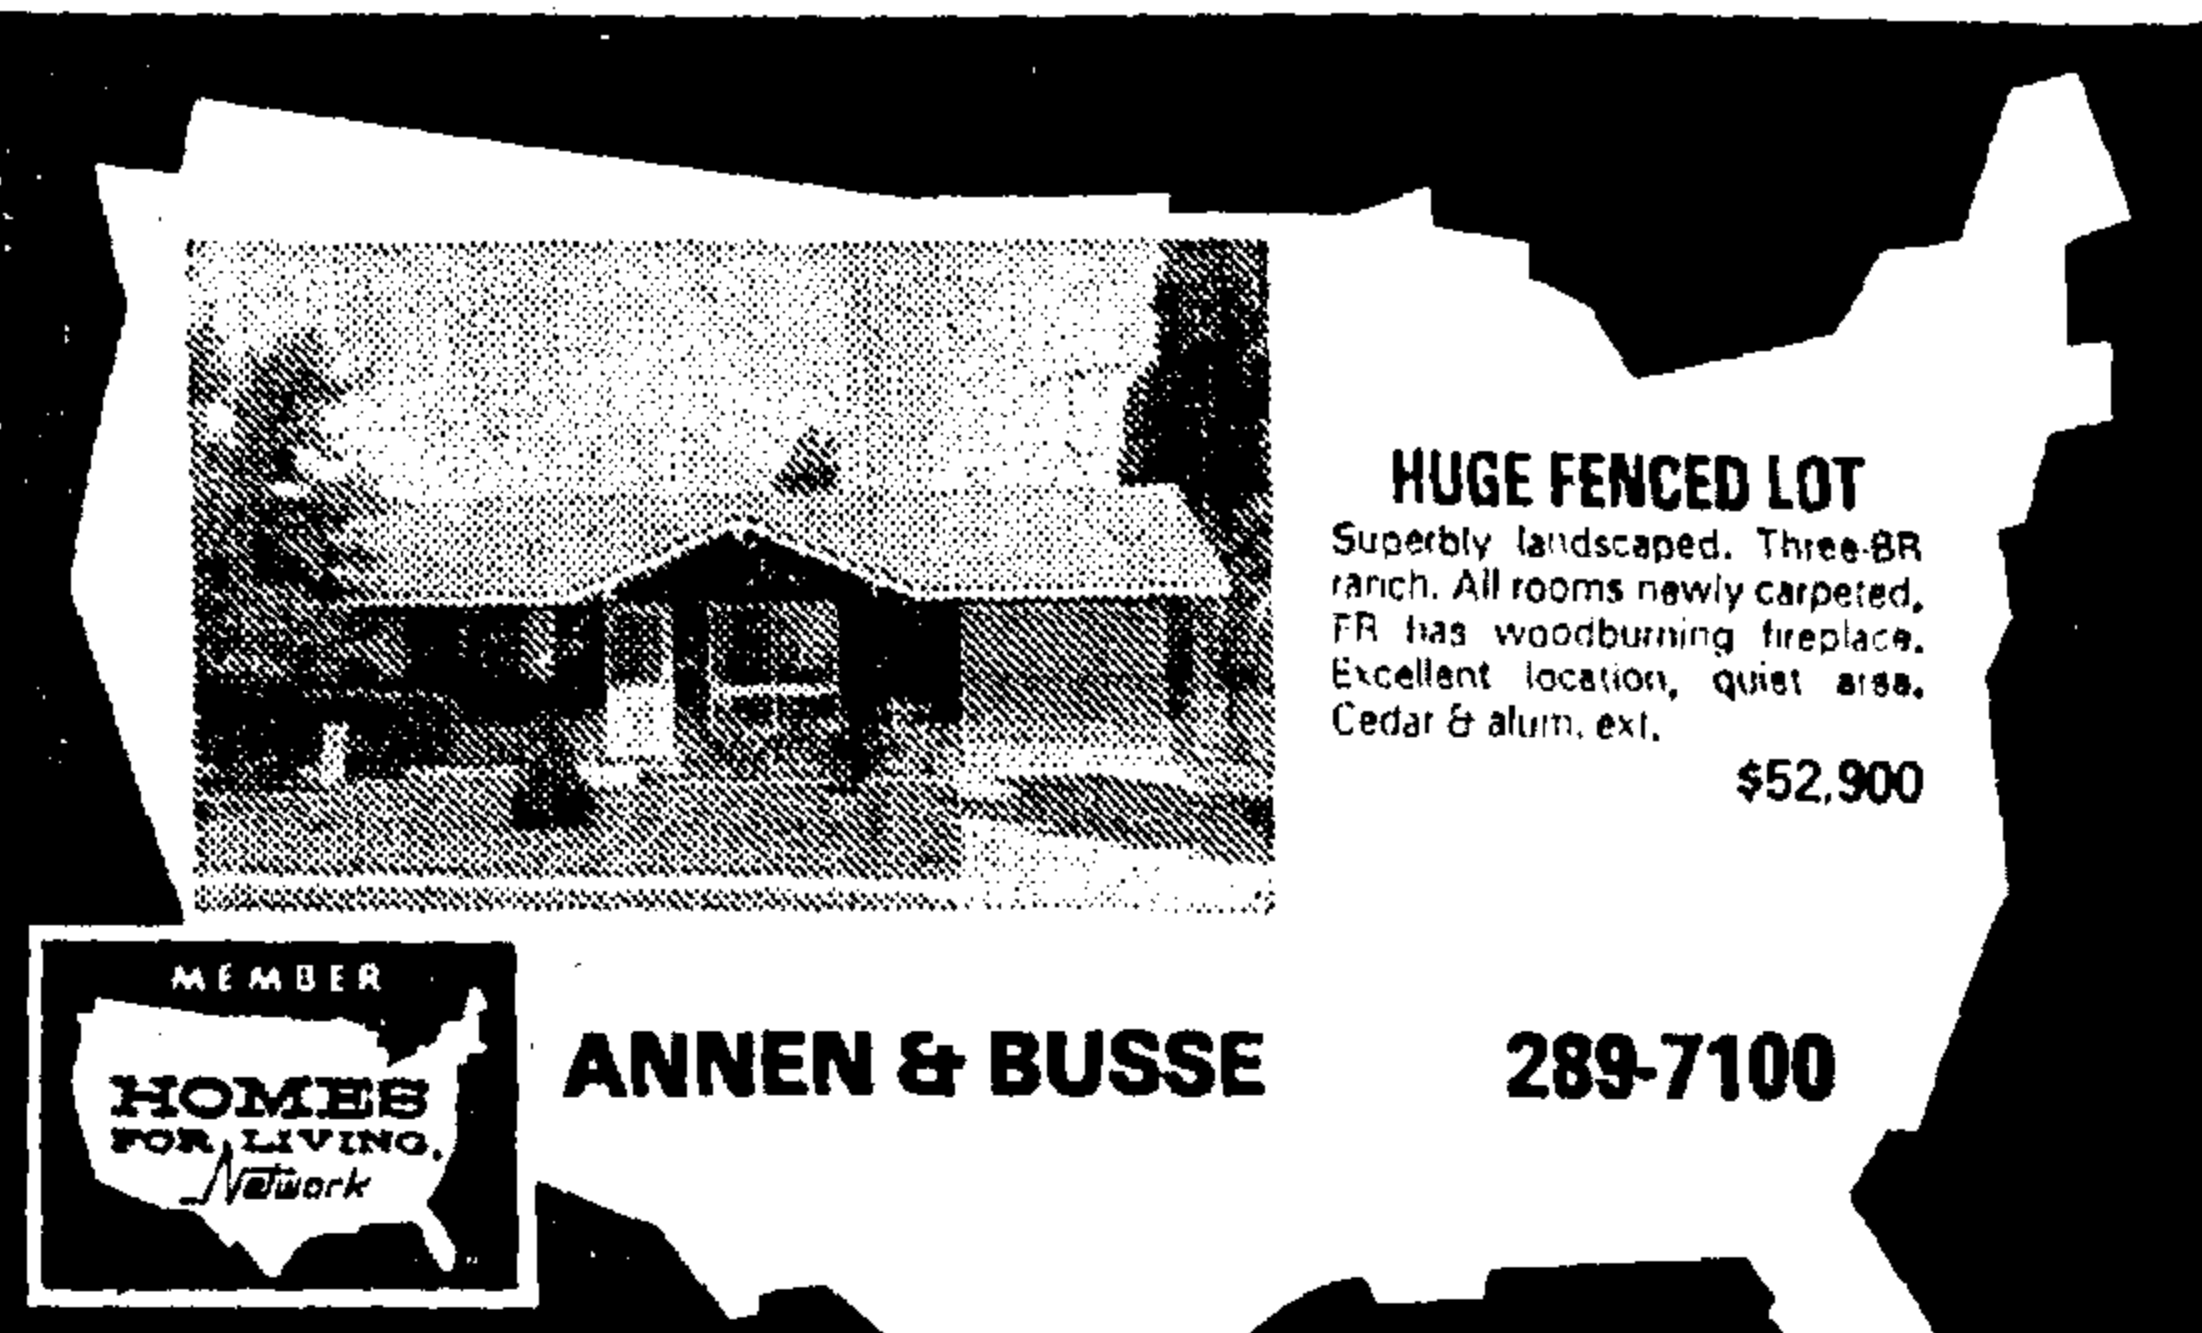

Savings and loan officials and other mortgage lenders who intend to increase their volume of inner city mortgages might do well to emulate small loan and finance companies in their methods of servicing high risk loans, he said.

"THESE COMPANIES, which frequently specialize in high-risk loans, succeed because they spend far more time with their customers, in qualifying them for credit, counseling them and keeping constantly on top of the collection effort," Brimmer said. "They are paid for this extra effort by higher rates. In other cases they may shape the amounts loaned and the repayment schedules to reduce the risk of loss."

Brimmer said the finance companies' loan practices can be applied to mortgage lending: "Some of the extra cost may be paid for by added charges; or if this is not possible, better lending and more care may mean that the amounts charged against other business can be kept low."

He advised that a major task for (Continued on Page 7)

Counseling urged for home buyers

Lenders who embark on counseling programs will be convincing borrowers to listen.

"To be effective, counseling must address homeowners in ways which encourage and facilitate receptivity," Brimmer said. "This can be a particular problem with first-time homeowners who resist help."

"But when good relationships develop between mortgagor and mortgagee, there is a greater likelihood that future problems will be brought to the mortgagor's attention while it is still possible to restructure a loan or re-consolidate consumer debt."

"INCOME VARIABILITY does not have to end in default as long as borrowers are encouraged to discuss problems as they occur instead of waiting until the situation becomes irretrievable," Brimmer said.

He said his study found that lenders have an easier time counseling homeowners who have already defaulted on their loans, because by that time the borrowers have little choice but to accept and follow the advice of the lending institution.

Brimmer said, "The real challenge, then, is in encouraging receptivity in individuals before they feel a need for advice."

California, N.Y. tops in housing units

California and New York not surprisingly have the most dwelling units, but Indiana and Iowa have the highest percentage of owner-occupied housing, the U.S. League of Savings Associations has reported.

Overall, 62.9 per cent of the nation's housing is owner-occupied, the highest percentage in the world, the league said. The United States has a total of 63.5 million housing units, the league said.

The league, a trade association serving the $430 billion savings and loan business, called housing data from 1970 census figures for its 1977 edition of the league's Fact Book, a reference source of savings, home ownership, mortgage financing and home construction information.

MIDWEST AND Great Plains states generally have the highest percentage of owner-occupied housing, league data indicates. With a ratio of 71.7 per cent Indiana and Iowa rank at the top of the home ownership list.

Other states in the "top 10" include Minnesota, with a home ownership ratio of 71.5 per cent; Idaho, 70.1 per cent; Maine, 70 per cent; South Dakota, 69.6 per cent; Utah, 69.4 per cent; Oklahoma, 69.2 per cent; and Wisconsin and Kansas, 69.1 per cent.

California and New York, the nation's most populous states, account for nearly 20 per cent of all housing units. California has 6.5 million dwelling units; New York has 5.9 million.

Other states include Pennsylvania, with 3.7 million housing units; Illinois, 3.5 million; Texas, 3.4 million; Ohio, 3.2 million; Michigan, 2.6 million; Florida and New Jersey, each with 2.2 million units; and Massachusetts, 1.7 million.

Those states, plus California and New York, account for approximately 35 million housing units — 56 per cent of the nation's housing supply, the league said.

Use the 'dime test' to test water quality in swim pool

How can you tell whether the water of a swimming pool is safe? Try the "dime test," says a spokesman for the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

According to public health swimming pool inspectors, you should be able to observe whether a dime is heads or tails when it's lying on the bottom of the deepest part of the pool.

But crystal clear water is not the only thing you should look for when planning to swim in a public pool, the spokesman warns.

ONE OF THE most important things to look for is a lifeguard, especially if you have children with you. If there is no lifeguard on duty, do not let children swim unless they are accompanied by a responsible adult who knows life-saving techniques and first aid.

It's a good idea to check the pool area to be certain that life-saving devices, such as a floating ring buoy or shepherd's crook are readily available for emergency use.

Eye, ear, nose and throat infections are common hazards associated with swimming in contaminated pool water. You can greatly reduce the risk of infection, however, if you swim only in pools where the water quality is properly maintained.

Chances are the water quality is properly maintained if: the water appears crystal clear; the water is continuously circulated and the water level is kept up to the overflow level; and there is no odor of ammonia or chlorine (a strong chlorine odor indicates a chemical reaction caused by an insufficient amount of chlorine in the water).

If you'd call a fat cut in your fuel bills good news have we got great news for you!

The National Weather Service expects a trend toward more bitter winters. Now add to that the current fuel pinch and economists' predictions of a tripling in energy costs in the next few years. You can readily see why astute homeowners are welcoming the marketing of the fuel-saving Comfort Computer Control System.

Sounds good so far... but does it work?

What has evolved from years of engineering refinement is a multi-element, computer-based, thermal monitoring system that's solid state and maintenance-free. And more convenient than thermostat control. In the early 70's a group of executives from a major midwest utility tested it in their own homes. Annual savings were 20% with many bills cut in half during months of wide temperature changes. It proved to be today's best energy conservation system for the home — bar none.

Will it work for me?

Our system is designed to interface with virtually all types of heating — forced air, hot-water, electric, gas, or oil — and it's equally effective in the home, office, store, or industrial plant.

Exactly how does it cut my fuel consumption?

In this area, most residential heating is by forced air. In this case, we install an outdoor sensor to inform the computer of weather change, and attach thermocouple leads to the computer from the plenum (warm-air recycle chamber). No furnace modification is required. The computer then continually monitors outside temperature while maintaining warmth in the plenum which reduces total burn time... which is what saves you money. Now the average NI-Gas customer in this area had an average 1976 bill of about $425. In this instance our exclusive written guarantee specifies a minimum savings of $63.75 (it probably will be more since we have no problem in guaranteeing that 15%). But savings is only half the story.

What more can I expect?

A lot. You get extended furnace life through more moderate use. No more cold startup drafts (older family members in particular appreciate this). Occasional thermostat adjustment is completely eliminated. And you'll have more even room-to-room heat distribution than ever before. In short, we've achieved ideal heating: highest efficiency with optimum comfort.

When is the best time to install?

Since fuel prices are moving steadily in just one direction, the best answer to that is "yesterday." However, you may wish to take advantage of our September Special introductory offer which applies to all purchases made before October 1st:

- Free thorough furnace cleaning by Ray's Heating & Plumbing.
- Standard Installation by Ray's.
- Guarantee of 15% annual savings.
- Money-Back Guarantee.
- Early Installation Scheduling.

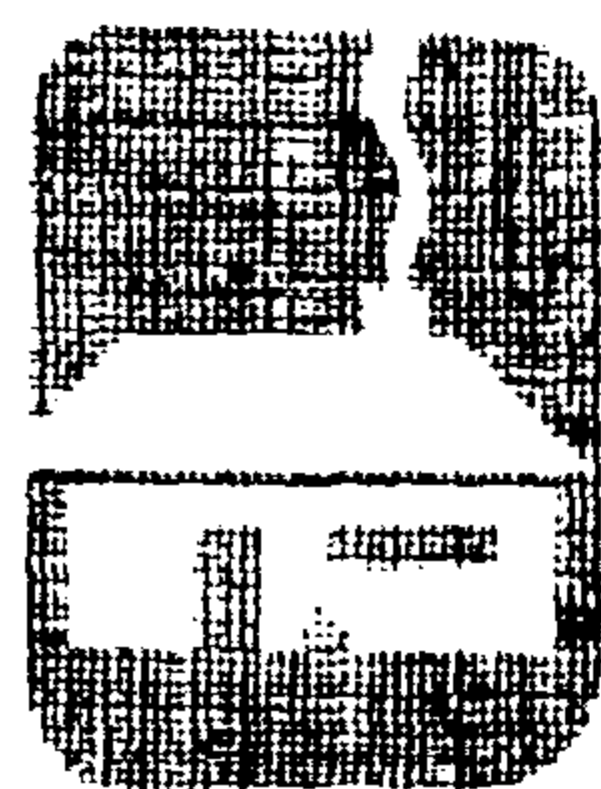

Get your bills NOW and hedge against the future's certain price boosts by calling 894-2780 between 9 am and 9 pm. Our representative will be pleased to visit you at your convenience to assess your requirements and answer your questions. No obligation, of course. And yes, financing is available. If you don't feel that this is the time, just clip this ad and keep it with your bank book.

Time to repair problems with heating unit is now

The discomfort you suffered from your furnace system last winter should be corrected now, because it generally indicates that heating energy was being wasted.

A minor adjustment to your furnace or simple modification of your ducts might be enough to alleviate the discomfort and reduce the consumption of fuel, whether it is oil, gas or electricity.

The numbers listed for each type of complaint can point directly to the cause, according to the Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Complaints

Former officers of GAC sued

MIAMI (UPI) — The court-appointed trustees of the GAC Corp., Florida's largest land sales company, have filed suit against four former officers and Lloyds of London seeking $135 million in damages for "Gross neglect, willful abuse and misapplication of funds."

The suit is the fifth against former GAC Pres. S. Hayward Wills and Former Directors Russell Kemmerer, Paul Stuken and John Ring.

The trustees sued the four and Lloyds of London, which insured them against misdeeds in office. The suit, similar to the one filed in January by the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, contends that the four moved cash from GAC credit to GAC properties, both subsidiaries of GAC Corp.

The suit said the manipulations disguised the true financial condition of the company and its subsidiaries.

Do you know your assets?

An inventory may be wise

Financial security includes not only having enough funds for all your needs, but also knowing where your valuable records, documents, and assets are stored.

"It's essential that both husband and wife have a clear picture of their personal assets and know how to go about retrieving important documents if it should become necessary," said John L. Domeler, chairman and president of GreatAmerican Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

"This information may represent the difference between hidden assets and buried assets," he said.

A SINGLE PERSON or a married couple should take the time to prepare an inventory of all personal assets. The list of assets also should include where important papers are stored, details of the document itself, and who should be contacted to redeem the particular asset, such as an insurance agent or stock broker.

"The items should include bank accounts, contracts, insurance policies, and wills," said Domeler.

Domeler recommended that the inventory be drawn up in this fashion:

- Savings accounts or checking account: For each account, list the names that appear on the account, the name of the savings and loan or bank, branch office, address (including zip code), city and state, type of account, account number, and the location of pass books.

- Insurance policies: For each policy — life, medical, property, fire, automobile, homeowners, and others — note the name of insured, type of protection, amount, policy number, premium due date and amount and the name, address and telephone of the insurance company and agent.

- Investment record: For stocks, mutual funds, bonds and treasury notes, list the description, certificate or serial number, date acquired, unit costs, number of units, total costs, number of shares per value, date sold, per unit price, net proceeds, loss or gain, market value (current), and interest and dividends. Your broker's name, address, and phone should be included in this section. You should also keep copies of securities purchase and sales slip, as proof of the price you paid or sold for.

- Real estate record: List your broker, phone, location of property, description of property, purchase price, mortgage, mortgage amount, mortgage payment, deed (title) in name of, and value (appraisal). If the property is leased: name of lease holder, income, gross income, net income, insured by, broker, company, phone. This record should also note the amount and due date for real estate tax, water, insurance, and assessments.

- Income tax record: Name and social security number of taxpayers, where the copies of previous years tax returns are filed, who prepared the returns and other comments.

- Debts: List names, addresses, and phone numbers of all people or companies that you owe money to. Charge accounts, auto loans, furniture loans, and others should be listed, along with payment schedule and amount of monthly payment. Interest rate should also be recorded for income tax purposes.

- Money owed to you: Who owes you money — name, address, and phone number. Amount due, when payment is to be, when payment is to be received. And purpose of the loan.

- Pensions and profit-sharing plans: List details of pension plan, including company name, address and phone number of person to contact for information. Note retirement age, benefits, amount of payroll deductions (if any) and any other information necessary to process benefits.

- I.R.A. or Keogh: Name of bank that holds account, number of account, amount, restrictions of plan, yearly contributions and other details. Of lawyer, employer, relatives and other important people who should be contacted in times of emergency. List names, work and home phones, address, usual fees, and what portion of your personal inventory they are responsible for.

dress, usual fees, and what portion of your personal inventory they are responsible for.

- Home improvement records: Keep copies of all sales slips, contracts and other papers involved if you made improvements to your house. These sums can be added to the price you paid for the house originally, and thus can reduce any taxable profit you made on the house when you sell it. Adding a room, finishing the basement, buying storm windows, putting in landscaping, and

What's 'private mortgage insurance'?

"Outta sight" is a popular expression that has surpassed all other superlatives. If something is "the greatest," "the biggest" or "the best," it's "outta sight!"

Unfortunately, the same expression is being used more and more to describe the residential real estate market as inflation pushes labor, material and land costs higher.

Dear Mr. Campbell: We are a young couple with an infant daughter. My job pays about $20,000 a year and my wife will return to work when our child is old enough to entrust to nursery schools.

For the past four years we have lived in an apartment and we now want to buy a home of our own. However, it seems that every month we wait the prices go higher. About the only kind of house we would have is now in the $30,000-up bracket. We aren't spendthrifts and I know we could make monthly payments, but how in the world do people like us ever manage to save enough for a down payment — $10,000 or $12,000?

I've heard that "private mortgage insurance" might be the answer, but I can't find out anything about it. Any hints? — Mr. W.W.V.

The private mortgage insurance approach to home financing isn't a particularly new concept, but with inflation sending the median price of a home up, it's become increasingly popular in the past few years.

What "mortgage insurance" means is that a private insurance company is guaranteeing a bank mortgage if a low down payment is involved — frequently as low as 5 per cent. And, in the case of a $47,500 house, this can be the difference between paying

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

however, has put us in touch with a couple who are getting ready to retire and they have suggested that we might be able to buy their house "on contract." I'm not sure I understand what's involved in this, though. Can you tell me? — Mr. A.S.

It simply means that you sign an agreement with the couple under which you buy their home on rent-like monthly payments. You have no equity in the home until you have paid the equivalent of a down payment — and, in the interim, you can be evicted if you miss payments just as any defaulting renter can. Bear in mind that this is a legally binding contract, so you MUST have professional legal help before you sign such an agreement.

Private mortgage insurance costs the homeowner one per cent of the mortgage, payable at closing, and one quarter of one per cent a year on the outstanding balance. It generally is carried about 10 years.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My wife and I want to buy a home, but have no money for a down payment. A friend,

Do you know your assets?

remodeling the kitchen are examples of such improvements. If in doubt, keep the record.

• Miscellaneous documents: "Valuable papers, documents, and keepsakes should be protected from fire, theft, and curious eyes by being placed in a strong box in your home or in a safe deposit box," Domeier said.

If you choose to rent a safe deposit box, make a list of what is in your box and put the list in a safe place at home. This list should include the name of each item in the box, serial numbers and dates of stock or bond certificates, names and details of insurance policies, jewelry appraisals, the date each item was placed in the box or removed from the box, and the date of your last inspection of the box.

Items frequently stored in safe deposit boxes include stock or bond certificates, insurance policies (except life insurance policies — these should be kept in a safe place where they can be retrieved easily), property records, birth certificates, marriage licenses, divorce papers, citizenship papers, adoption papers, diplomas, business contracts and agreements, income tax records, passports, military discharge papers, trust agreements, auto title and bill of sale, heirlooms, letter concerning government insurance compensation for service incurred disability, bottom portion of your Social Security card and valuable jewelry.

"A copy of your will should also be placed in the safe deposit box," Domeier said. "The original should be filed at your lawyer's office, kept in the hands of an executor, or in some other safe but accessible place."

A bank safe deposit box may be sealed by state law for a specified period after the box owner's death, thereby delaying settlement of the estate.

Domeier also suggested that an inventory of all household items of value be placed in the safe deposit box.

"You should list the cost and purchase date of valuable furs, jewelry, art, furniture, stamp or coin collections, serial numbers of TV sets, stereo, camera equipment and other expensive or irreplaceable items," he said.

Domeier recommended that individuals make a copy of their personal inventory of assets and place that in their home strong box or safe deposit box.

"Equally important is that you provide both your next of kin and your attorney or executor with copies of your assets inventory," he added.

"No one likes to contemplate death," Domeier said, "but it's essential that the surviving spouse or relative be able to settle financial affairs with a minimum of heartache. A complete personal inventory of assets should not only give families peace of mind, but will help keep current financial activities in better order. It's the only way to assure that your estate is being transferred the way you want, or much of your yard work will be for nothing."

Interest-paying checking accounts may go national

NEW YORK — For all those Americans who have been wondering when they might start earning interest on their checking accounts, the answer would appear to be almost NOW.

NOW is the banking industry's acronym for "negotiable orders of withdrawal" — a legalistic device designed to circumvent the traditional horror at the thought of paying the customers for something they used to have to pay for themselves: checking accounts. They have been common in New England for two or three years, and banking sources expect them to be authorized nationwide by the end of the year.

The Senate Banking Committee has approved a bill allowing all U.S. commercial and savings banks to offer interest-bearing checking accounts to the public. The full Senate gets the proposal next, with the House Banking Committee standing by in anticipation. The bill's chances are enhanced by its "proconsumer" tinge and by such powerful backers as Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre (D., N.H.) and chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board.

THE BANKING community itself is divided on the merits of the change. Some argue that the benefit to the consumer may be illusory; if the bank incurs new costs, it will have to find some way to pass them on. Generally, the larger commercial banks are in favor, while their smaller brethren object on grounds of unprofitability. Savings banks, which themselves have begun to muscle into the checking-account business, oppose a provision that would permit commercial banks to increase their interest rate on such accounts to 5 1/4 per cent in two years.

For consumers, the change has obvious appeal. After years of paying annoying little fees to maintain a checking account, or else struggling to meet the banks requirement for a "free" account, they will now have the chance to earn an offsetting (and potentially profitmaking) return. The economic justification for the return is that the banks have the use of their customers' checking-account balances — and often use them highly profitably.

But how, in practice, are NOW accounts likely to work out? One authority whose views are worth heeding is Richard D. Hill, chairman of the First National Bank of Boston, which is the nation's 16th largest bank and describes itself as the most successful in New England in terms of the NOW innovation. (Congress is 1974 authorized NOW accounts for banks in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, then broadened the experiment within a year to include all six New England states.)

ALTHOUGH MANY New England banks pay 5 per cent interest on their NOW accounts — the maximum permitted — Hill looks for most banks across the country that actually decide to offer such accounts to pay only between 4 and 4 1/2 per cent interest, in order to minimize possible unprofitability. If he is right, those that offer (or continue to offer) the 5 per cent rate may maintain a competitive advantage.

Fully a quarter of Hill's NOW customers are from beyond his normal banking area (they come from 48 states and 50 foreign countries), though regulations forbid any advertising outside New England. What's more, the NOW depositors tend to be desirable clients — "a fairly large proportion are young to middle-age executives" — who put in much more money than they have to just to avoid service charges. (The original minimum was $200, subsequently raised to $400.)

"Since it clearly benefits the depositor to maintain as high a balance as possible," Hill says, "our average median NOW account balance is approximately six times greater than the minimum."

Whether the Boston bank's happy experience will prove typical once NOW accounts are legal nationwide remains to be seen. But the trend toward blurring the differences between the nation's thrift institutions, and sharpening their competition for your cash, is not about to be checked.

Spending up, Dow gains 3.12

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks rallied for their fifth consecutive gain Wednesday following reports both business and consumers were spending in the face of an economic slowdown. But trading was only moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had fluctuated fractionally in the morning, rallied to gain 3.12 points to 876.39. A 0.96-point winner Tuesday, the closely watched average has risen 17.50 points in the past five sessions.

Late buying was sparked by government reports that showed business plant and equipment spending plans were up 13.3 per cent from 1976 and consumer credit rose $2.32 billion in July following a $2.28 billion June advance.

The reports confirmed a Wall Street Journal study that showed spending plans of consumers who make $15,000 a year or more were strong despite the threat of rising inflation and an economic slowdown.

Business briefs

Firms plan hike in capital spending

American businesses planned a modest increase in their capital spending for plant and equipment in the second half of 1977 to boost the annual increase to 13.3 per cent, the Commerce Dept. said Wednesday. "During the rest of this year, business-fixed investment expenditures will be providing somewhat more stimulus than previously estimated," Commerce Sec. Juanita Kress said in a statement. The report was good, but not significant news for the administration, which rejected the $50 rebate last spring partly on grounds that capital spending would be large enough to sustain the two-year economic recovery. Commerce said the improvement for capital spending was primarily in manufacturing industries. This is an indication job opportunities for factory workers will be enhanced, but it provides little relief for inner city blacks who have been the primary causes of the recent worsening in the unemployment rate. Capital spending is important for the economy because new plant and equipment enables industry to hire more workers and increase production.

New Random House encyclopedia

Random House, Inc., expects to shake up the $600 million a year encyclopedia publishing industry in the United States with its new 2,856 page single-volume color encyclopedia to appear on the market Sept. 20. Advance sales resulting from the display of the volume at the recent American Booksellers Convention in San Francisco in May exceed 75,000 and the initial printing order has been raised to 175,000. It sells for $69.50. The new encyclopedia is a $20 million, 10-year joint venture of Mitchell Beazley, Ltd., of London, and Random House, which put up $5 million of the initial financing. James Mitchell, head of the British firm, dreamed up the project. It departs from standard encyclopedias in that the major part of the book is arranged thematically instead of alphabetically and contains 1,920 pages of full color illustrations. There also is an alphabetic section that gives brief accounts with small black and white illustrations of every topic in the book.

Families could cut gas use: survey

American families could reduce their driving mileage by an average of 11 per cent without experiencing significant hardship, according to a survey conducted for the Conference Board. National Family Opinion Inc. conducted the survey for the Conference Board, a nonprofit business research organization, by asking 5,000 households across the country how much of their driving they could cut back if a gasoline shortage arose. About 38 per cent of the families said either they could not cut their driving mileage at all or by less than 5 per cent. But the other 62 per cent of the families said they could cut back to varying degrees — some of them by more than 20 per cent. The 11 per cent average cut, if put into effect, would save more than 200 million barrels of oil a year. That is the equivalent of about one month's crude oil imports, the Conference Board said. The Board said the ability to cut driving mileage seemed to be linked to family income, with wealthier families able to make greater cuts because more of their driving is for pleasure.

Administration's farm policies could be risky

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is very good at talking about control of inflation, but repeatedly takes actions that add to inflationary pressures. Thus, the White House approved "orderly marketing agreements" that are expected to raise the price of shoes and color TVs, and knuckled under to union pressure for a cargo preference arrangement that will boost shipping costs.

Now President Carter, responding to the demands of agricultural interests trying to stop the decline of farm prices, authorized a 20 per cent cut in wheat acreage for next year.

Carter's economic advisers, including Economic Council Chairman Charles E. Schultze, minimize the effect of the acreage cut on consumer food prices. But the fact is that officials at the Council of Economic Advisers and the Treasury fought hard, and successfully, to limit the acreage "set-aside" to 20 per cent instead of the 25 per cent originally recommended by Agriculture Secy. Bob Bergland.

THE WHITE HOUSE probably is correct that the inflationary impact of the wheat acreage cut will be minimal next year, in view of large existing stocks that have caused wheat prices to plummet from a range of $3.50 to $4.50 a bushel in 1975-76 to around $2, or even less, at the moment.

Moreover, the administration is sensibly moving toward a grain reserve policy by planning to put 30 to 35 million tons in a $4.5 billion emergency stockpile, which — if better managed than in the past — could help head off skyrocketing prices in the future.

Nevertheless, there are reasons to feel uneasy about the future, primarily because farm policy is being made by Congress and the administration in response to short-term crises, rather than by taking the long-term point of view.

Indications are Carter will sign new farm legislation that reverts to price-propping, via supports and target pricing, an exhibition of the power of the farm lobby to bend the Congress to its will whenever prices are low. AS BARRY BOSWORTH, head of the government's Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS) observed in a recent interview, many urban congressmen voted for the farm bill, regardless of its impact on consumer prices, "because of one little thing in it — the food stamp program."

Hobart Rowen

We once again are moving in the direction of restraining production, rather than an expansion of farm exports and the creation of a really adequate grain reserve.

"We're trying the same old policies despite the disastrous outcome of shortages and skyrocketing prices," Bosworth said.

The crop failure possibility also is cited by the Federation of American Scientists in Washington, which said the Carter policy "could lead to another cycle of grain shortages and high food prices for consumers in this country and abroad."

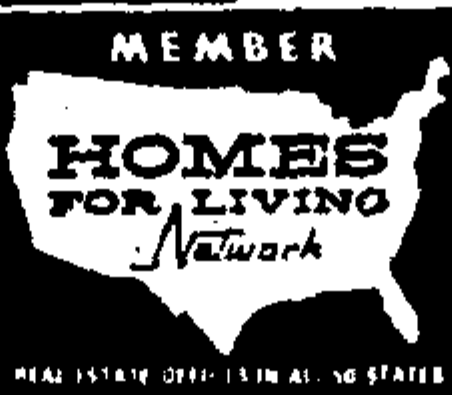

Agriculture expert John Schnitter argues that there is a very low risk of crop failures of the staggering dimensions of 1972-75. "Only major crop failures in Russian spring grain regions or in the Southern Hemisphere can lead to serious price instability during the next eight to 10 months," he said.

BUT EVEN IF we're lucky, and the weather continues to be great for crops, Carter's wheat acreage cut could set a precedent for other reductions. It is probable that a corn acreage cut of 10 per cent will be approved by the administration next year. So a questionable trend is being set in motion, one that relies on limitation of production and on floor prices. That's what worries Bosworth. (c) 1977, The Washington Post Co.

Frozen treats for all seasons

Sweet treats always are in season, and ice cream and frozen yogurt are two of the most popular. These frozen desserts can be dressed up for fancy occasions or served as simple refreshments for the family.

CONFETTI ICE CREAM CAKE

- 1 angel food cake (about 10 ounces) or about 2 quarts torn cake pieces
- 1 quart strawberry ice cream
- 1 quart mint chip ice cream
- 1 cup whipping cream
- Mock Pistachio Nuts*
- Chocolate Leaves**
- Strawberries

Tear angel food cake into bite-size pieces. Place layer of cake pieces in bottom of chilled 10-inch tube pan. Alternate scoops of strawberry and mint chip ice cream to make next layer. Press firmly into cake. (Use ice cream spade, if desired.) Add a layer of cake pieces; then a second layer of ice creams. Finish with layer of cake pieces. Press down firmly to level cake. Cover and freeze at least 6 hours, preferably overnight.

To decorate and serve, remove cake from freezer and let stand at room temperature 5 minutes. Run thin metal spatula around edge of pan. Using center post, lift out cake. Turn upside-down on serving plate. Place a towel wrung out of hot water over bottom of pan for a few seconds. Run spatula between cake and bottom of pan. Remove pan. Return to freezer to firm.

Whip cream in chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff. Pipe through pastry tube around base of cake. Sprinkle with Mock Pistachio Nuts. Pipe rosettes of whipped cream on top of cake, decorate with Chocolate Leaves and fresh strawberries. Serve with Fudge Pecan Sauce. Serves 12 to 16.

*Mock Pistachio Nuts: Place 3 to 4 drops green food coloring with 1 teaspoon water in jar with cover. Add 1/2 cup chopped almonds, shake to color. Spread nuts in shallow baking pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 6 to 8 minutes to dry. Do not brown.

**Chocolate Leaves: Wash and dry thoroughly 10 to 12 small leaves with stems. (Rose or ivy leaves are ideal.) Melt 1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces in heavy saucepan over low heat, stirring until smooth. Cool slightly. Carefully brush a thin layer (about 1/8 inch) of melted chocolate on leaf. Chocolate and leaf will separate more easily if edges are not covered. Place leaves on baking sheet. Chill until firm. Carefully peel leaf from chocolate. Store in refrigerator.

FUDGE PECAN SAUCE

- 1 cup (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 1/2 cup light cream or half and half
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup pecan halves

Melt chocolate with cream in heavy saucepan over low heat, stirring until smooth. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Cool slightly; stir in nuts. Serve warm.

FROZEN PEACH YOGURT

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 1 1/2 cups sliced peaches, fresh or frozen, partially thawed
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 4 cups (32 ounces) peach yogurt
- Orange Raspberry Sauce*

Sprinkle gelatin over water in small saucepan. Stir over low heat until dissolved. Puree peaches with sugar in a blender. Add yogurt and blend at high speed until smooth. Stir about 1 cup of yogurt mixture into dissolved gelatin; return to blender, cover and blend. Pour into ice cream freezer can (1/2 to 2/3 full), and churn-freeze according to manufacturer's directions.

For soft frozen yogurt, remove dasher from ice cream freezer can, cover with foil and place in refrigerator-freezer to ripen 30 minutes to 1 hour. For hard frozen yogurt, spoon frozen yogurt into freezer containers to within 1/2-inch of top. Place plastic wrap directly on yogurt; cover with lid and keep frozen. Allow to soften at room temperature about 15 minutes before scooping. Serve with Orange Raspberry Sauce and additional sliced fresh peaches. Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

Freeze 1 hour. Spoon into large mixer bowl; beat at high speed until smooth but not thawed. Return to pan; freeze 1 hour. Spoon into large mixer bowl; beat again just until smooth and airy. Ripen as above. Yield: 5 cups.

*ORANGE RASPBERRY SAUCE

Yield: 1 1/2 cups

- 1 Tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen raspberries in syrup, thawed
- 1/3 cup orange marmalade

For raspberry sauce, dissolve cornstarch in 2 tablespoons syrup from raspberries. Combine raspberries, remaining syrup and marmalade in saucepan. Heat to boiling. Boil and stir until thickened and clear. Cook 2 additional minutes. Cover and chill.

FROSTY YOGURT SHAKES

BOYSENBERRY

Yield: 1 1/3 cups

- 1 cup (8 ounces) frozen boysenberry yogurt, slightly softened
- 1/3 cup chilled cranberry-apple juice

Combine frozen yogurt and cranberry-apple juice in blender jar; blend until smooth. Or beat with rotary beater or mixer. Serve immediately in chilled glass. Makes 1 1/3 cups.

STRAWBERRY-APPLE

- 1 cup (8 ounces) frozen strawberry yogurt, slightly softened
- 1/3 cup chilled apple juice

Combine frozen yogurt and apple juice in blender jar; blend until smooth. Or beat with rotary beater or mixer. Serve immediately in chilled glass. Makes 1 1/3 cups.

ORANGE VANILLA

- 1 cup (8 ounces) frozen vanilla yogurt, slightly softened
- 1/3 cup chilled orange juice

Combine frozen yogurt and orange juice in blender jar; blend until smooth. Or beat with rotary beater or mixer. Serve immediately in chilled glass. Makes 1 1/3 cups.

Empanadas spice ordinary lunch

Accent the carried lunch with empanadas, the Mexican version of turnovers or English pasties. Use canned tuna and cheese with a few seasonings wrapped in a pastry of cheese, flour and cornmeal for a protein-filled lunch.

For variety, try the chicken or sausage and potato filling for an empanada with a new flavor. If you serve this sandwich for lunch or dinner, freeze the leftovers for school lunches.

Chocolate and cinnamon is a traditional Mexican combination, in both milk drinks or desserts. For a lunchbox treat include Chocolate Chip Cinnamon Bars plus a carton or bottle of milk and fresh fruit for a balanced lunch.

EMPANADAS

Filling:

1 can (8½ ounces) tuna, drained, flaked
¼ cup each chopped onion and green pepper
3 tablespoons catsup
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon each salt and cilantro or dried parsley
¼ teaspoon cumin
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

Dough:

1½ cups all-purpose flour
½ cup yellow cornmeal
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons each butter and lard
½ cup (2 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

6 to 8 tablespoons milk

For filling, combine all ingredients except cheese. Cover and chill. For dough, combine flour, cornmeal and salt. Cut in butter and lard until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in cheese. Add milk, 1 tablespoon at a time, stirring lightly until dough forms a ball. Working with 1 half of dough at a time, roll out dough on a lightly floured surface to about 1/8-inch thickness. Cut out six 5½-inch circles from each half.

To form empanadas, spoon about 1½ tablespoons each tuna filling and cheese on the center of each circle, leaving a ½-inch border around edges. Moisten edges with additional milk. Fold the empanadas in half, press edges together and flute. Prick tops with fork. Bake on cookie sheets in a preheated 400-degree oven 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve hot with prepared sauce. Serves 6.

LUNCHBOX VARIATION: Cool baked empanadas. Wrap each individually in foil and freeze. Remove from freezer in the morning. Pack in lunch boxes but do not remove foil. Empanadas will be thawed and ready to serve cold at lunch time.

CHICKEN FILLING VARIATION: Substitute 1½ cups chopped cooked chicken for tuna in basic recipe.

SAUSAGE-POTATO VARIATION: Substitute ½ pound cooked, crumbled and drained, bulk pork sausage and ¼ cup peeled diced raw potatoes for tuna in basic recipe.

CHOCOLATE CHIP CINNAMON BARS

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon each baking powder, salt and cinnamon

2 tablespoons milk

1 cup (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
Confectioners' sugar.

Cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Blend in vanilla. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Combine flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Add half of flour mixture to creamed mixture. Add milk. Add remaining flour mixture; beat well. Stir in chocolate pieces. Spread batter evenly in a buttered 9-inch square baking pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. cool. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Makes 24 bars.

Try some peachy treats

Puree a cup of well-drained peach slices and stir into mashed sweet potatoes. Sprinkle with a dash or two of nutmeg. Top each serving with a slice of butter and a peach slice.

Mix fresh or frozen whole strawberries with a little brown sugar and cinnamon, then combine with drained, chilled canned cling peach slices.

For an early morning breakfast treat, combine canned cling peach slices with banana rounds and drizzle with orange juice.

Food from other lands on menus

by JAMES L. OVERTON

Some schools across the United States plan to experiment this year with multi-cultural or ethnic menus to spice up traditionally dreary cafeteria fare.

The project is a joint effort of the American School Food Service Assn., the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and various state education departments, says Josephine Martin of Atlanta, president of the association.

"We believe the school food service program provides an opportunity for children to learn to eat, and to eat a variety of food," Ms. Martin said.

THE ASSOCIATION thinks adoption of the program will not only add variety, but also will help reduce waste and ultimately serve to educate parents as well.

"A child has to learn to eat, just like he has to learn to read. It is not something he is born with," she said.

Ms. Martin said schools across the nation are taking a long look at their food service programs, with the idea of attracting more students to the cafeterias and with better results, particularly in multi-racial areas.

"We would like to think the young people will learn to appreciate the foods of different cultures, not just eating and enjoying the food, but also learning the history of the cultures," she said.

The program also will attempt to tie the cafeteria program in with social studies programs, teaching rituals that are associated with food.

"ONE OF THE concepts that we try to teach is that all foods are health foods. An apple is a health food. Milk is a health food. There is a nationwide interest in substituting nutritious snacks for those which just supply calories . . . those things found in vending machines," Ms. Martin said.

She said most schools will prepare meals from scratch on site. Some commercial products will be used when fresh ingredients are not available.

"In September, we will have a Mexican food program. In most instances, the school will buy the taco but will prepare the filling."

Another goal of the program is to make nutritious food more attractive to reduce the craving for junk food, the result of which is shown in weight problems.

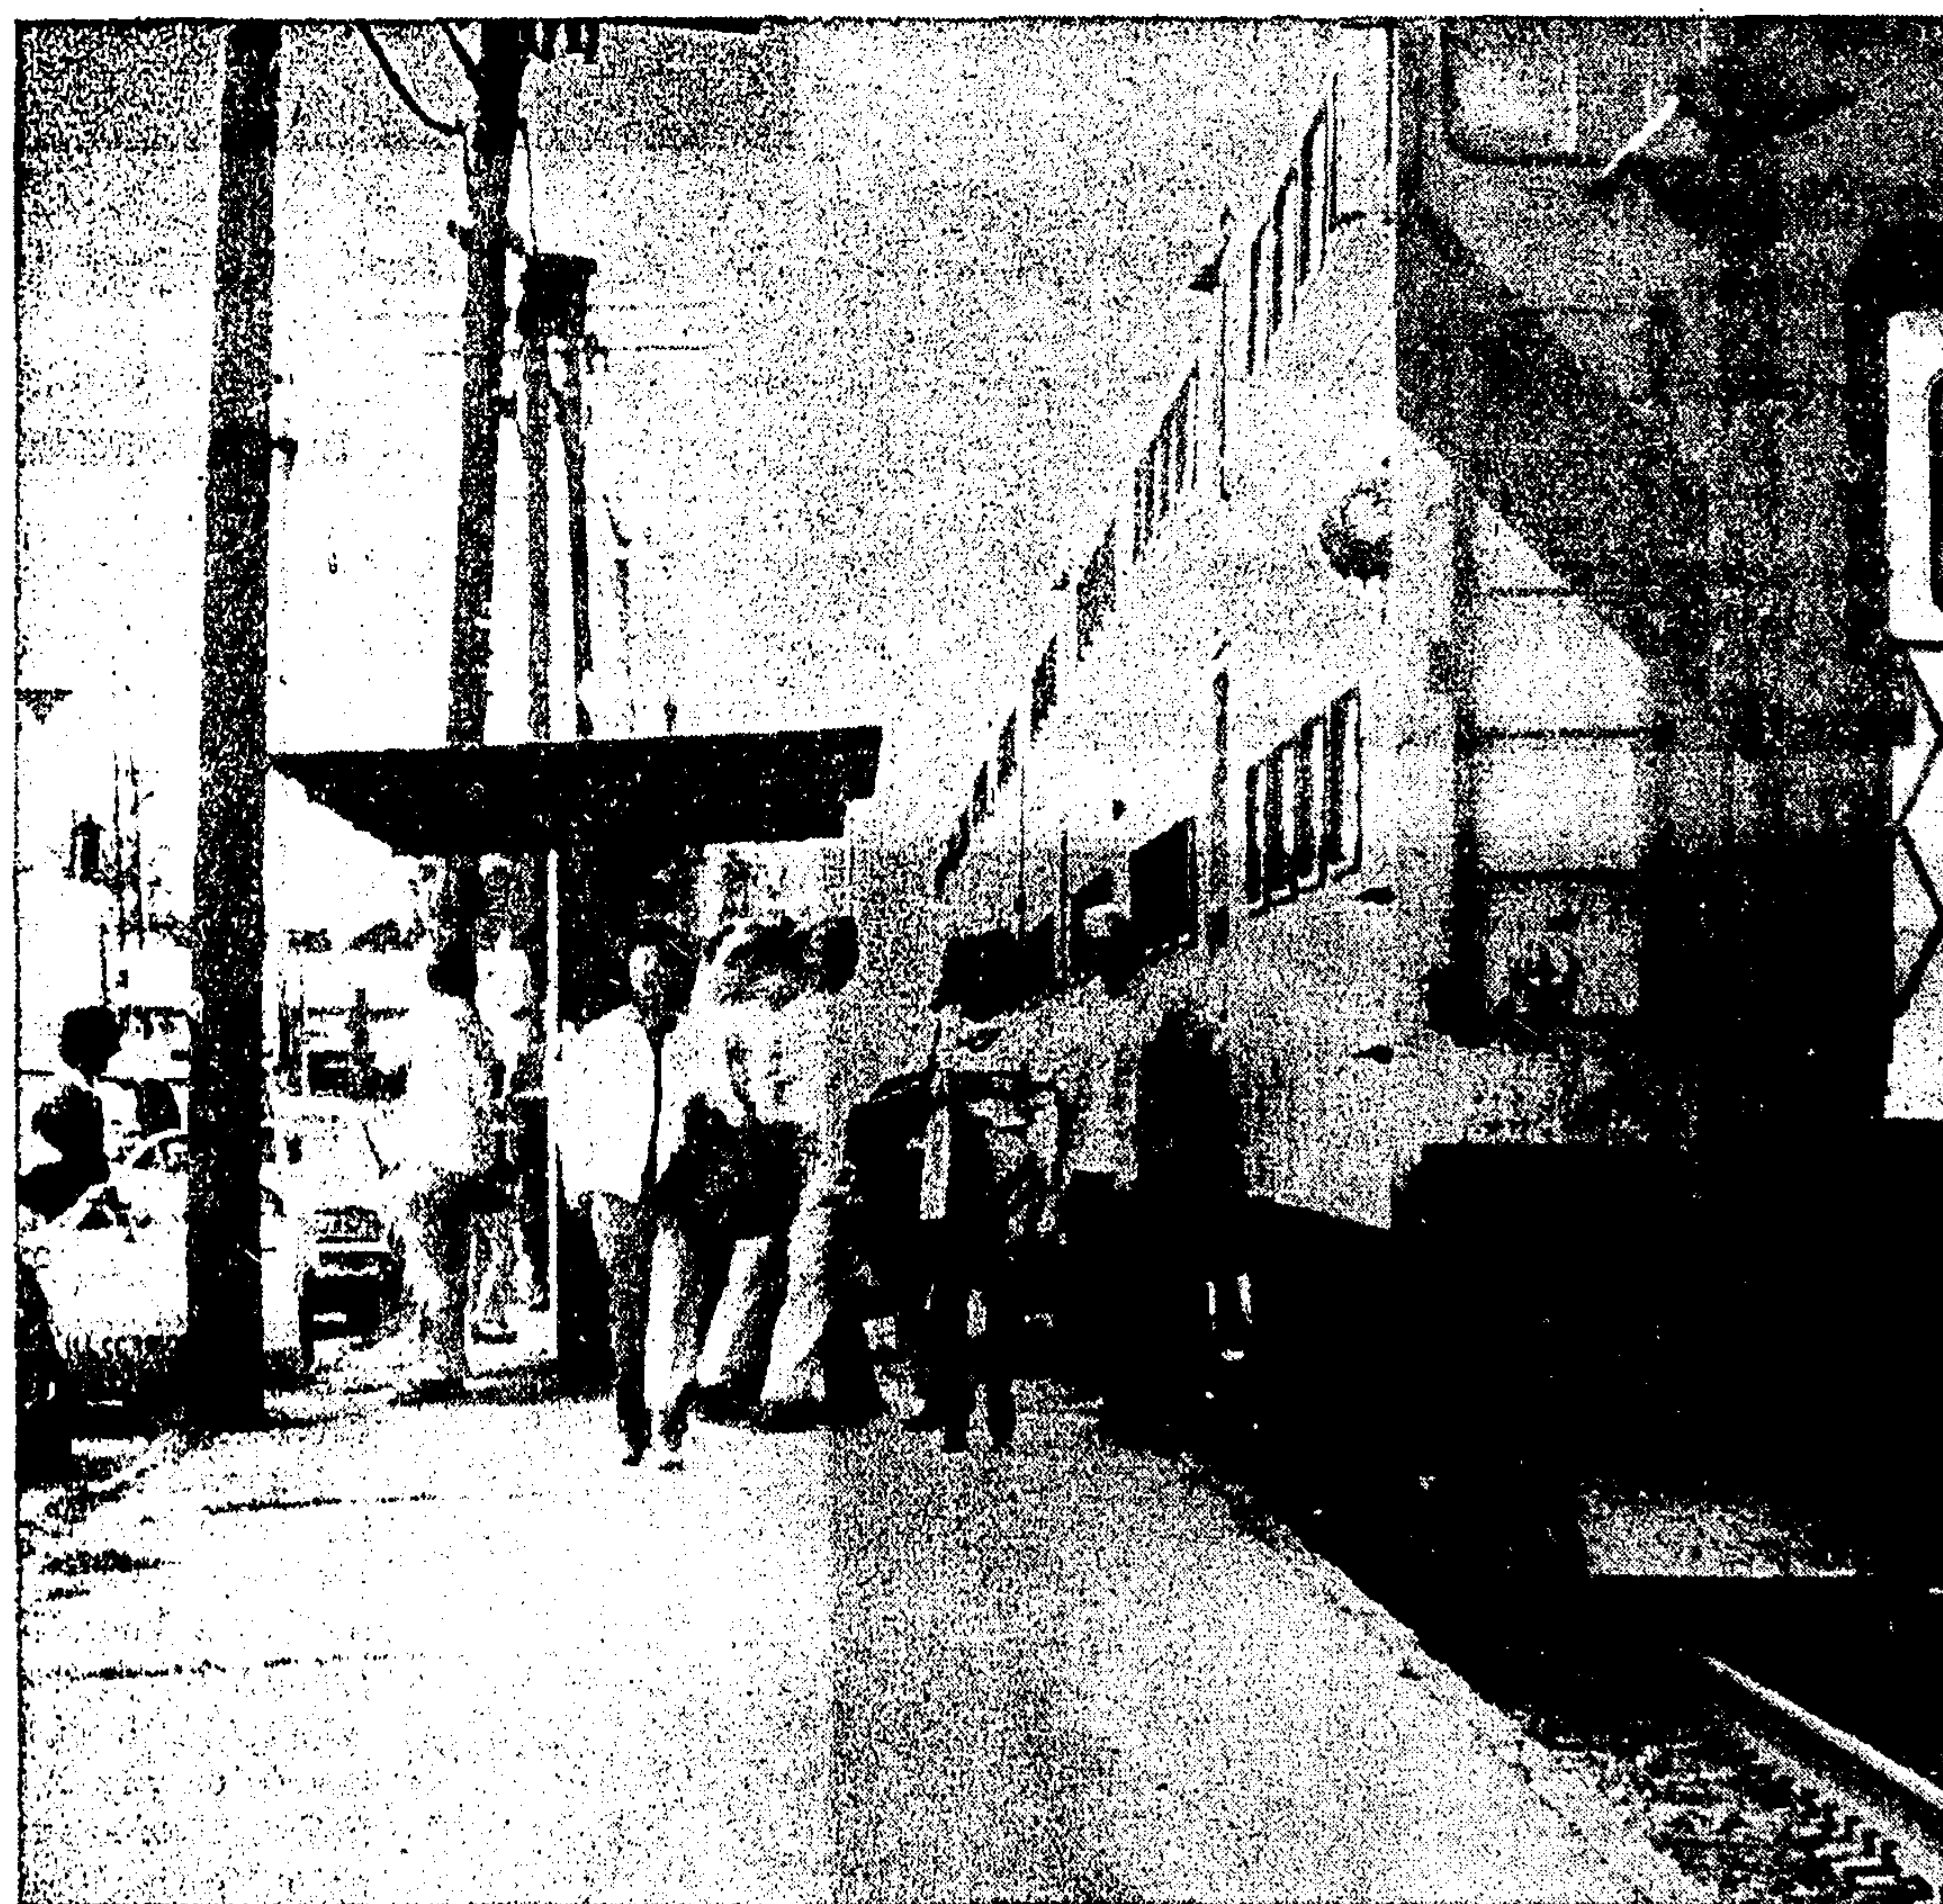

"TEN TO 29 per cent of American school children are said to be obese. We believe the total daily diet should be almost like a budget, this much protein, carbohydrates and fats. We look at this, and we know the vitamins and minerals we need every day," she said.

Ms. Martin hopes for passage of a bill pending in Congress that would make money available to states so schools could start nutrition programs to teach children good eating habits.

"The way we are going to improve eating habits of parents is to improve the eating habits of the children. What we have to do is start with a nutrition program that begins in the school."

Eagle...the Food Experts!

For years, shoppers throughout the Midwest have been coming to Eagle to get more for their food dollars. The reason is simple: they know they can trust the Experts to give them total value for their family's food dollars.

The Pricing Experts! Savings you can count on!

One of the things we've learned is that you want consistent savings. So we give you low prices you can count on throughout the store on a regular, week to week basis.

There are no occasional "specials," no "week-end bargains." You shop for the products you want, when you want, and save with a lower total.

We also know that supermarket games and gimmicks are costly. They mean added expenses for the supermarket that offers them...added expenses that mean higher prices for you. So we don't play games with your food.

More food, less money. Compare the Experts.

Today you're demanding more than low prices from a supermarket. We want you to know that you can count on Eagle to continue to lead the way by giving you more food... more value...for less money.

Information designed to bring out the "Expert" in you.

Look for our ads in the coming weeks. They'll explain our many programs and policies; they'll make you better informed about the many things we do to give you value. It's what you've come to expect from Eagle. The Food Experts!

We're one supermarket that gives you a good price...and a good deal more!

Couple shares cooking skills

Cooking for company is a joint venture shared by Larry and Jan Olson of Arlington Heights. Although a home economist, Jan candidly admits that Larry is the gourmet in the family, motivated to research and prepare unique dishes from appetizers to dessert.

Jan's forte is baking bread and rolls, and she likes having people over to enjoy the dinners she and Larry prepare. However, everyday cooking is done from necessity as their children Scott, 18, Doug, 14, and Laurie, 7, prefer plainer foods and Jan is too busy to spend hours in the kitchen.

For years Larry was the outdoor cook and a whiz with pancakes. When Jan took on a part-time job and en- full-time student at Mundelein College became more involved in the kitchen. The past two years, while Jan was a full-time student at Mundelein College completing her degree in home economics education, Larry helped by cooking a couple of meals each week. A history and literature teacher at Evanston High School, he often was home early enough to get dinner started.

MEMBERSHIP IN A gourmet group where the men did all the cooking was an incentive for Larry to find new recipes he had never tried before. Both he and Jan often browse through the cookbook section of the library in search of new ideas, which is where Larry found one of his special appetizers.

A French recipe, it calls for fresh mussels. Larry adapted its use for clams, using the fresh variety and saving the shells. Several times since he has substituted canned minced clams, using the original shells for baking.

Dairy foods excellent for light snacks

School time means after-school snack time along with the challenge of finding both nourishing and acceptable snack foods for youngsters. If you're looking for versatile snack ideas, try milk and dairy products, foods that are plentiful, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture says.

Milk and dairy products, one of the four food groups, provide calcium for strong bones and teeth and protein to build and repair body tissues and fight infection. Riboflavin, a B vitamin that keeps skin healthy and vision clean, also is found in milk and dairy products.

Try these recipes, tested in the USDA kitchens, for hungry youngsters home from school.

MAPLE FLOAT

1/3 cup maple syrup
1 tablespoon molasses
5 cups milk
1 pint vanilla ice cream
Mix syrup, molasses and milk; stir well. Cut ice cream into 6 pieces and place 1 piece in each glass. Pour maple mixture over ice cream and serve immediately.

A maple float made with whole milk contains about 275 calories, with skim milk about 215 calories.

STRAWBERRY MILK

1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries
1 quart milk
1 cup instant non-fat dry milk
1 quart strawberry ice cream, slightly softened
Thaw strawberries until soft but cold; crush. Add milks to strawberries and blend thoroughly. Add ice cream and beat or shake enough to blend ingredients. Pour into tall glasses and serve immediately. Calories per serving: about 370.

CHEESE BREAD STICKS

1 1/2 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup shortening
1 cup or 4 ounces sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
1/2 cup milk
Poppy seeds, optional
Stir together flour, baking powder and salt. Mix in shortening until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. With a fork, stir in cheese, gradually add milk, using enough to make a soft, but not sticky, dough.
Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Knead dough 2 to 3 minutes on lightly floured surface. Roll pieces of dough between palms to form pencil-like shapes, about 1/2-inch thick. Cut into 4-inch strips and roll in poppy seeds if desired. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet about 10 minutes. Calories per bread stick; about 80. Makes 24.

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

The clam meat is combined with sauteed onion, bread crumbs, clam juice and herbs. Packed into clam shells, the mixture is topped with pine nuts (which can be found at Treasure Island) and a crumb topping and baked until browned. The pine nuts contribute a chewy texture to this rich and buttery clam appetizer, which always is well received by guests.

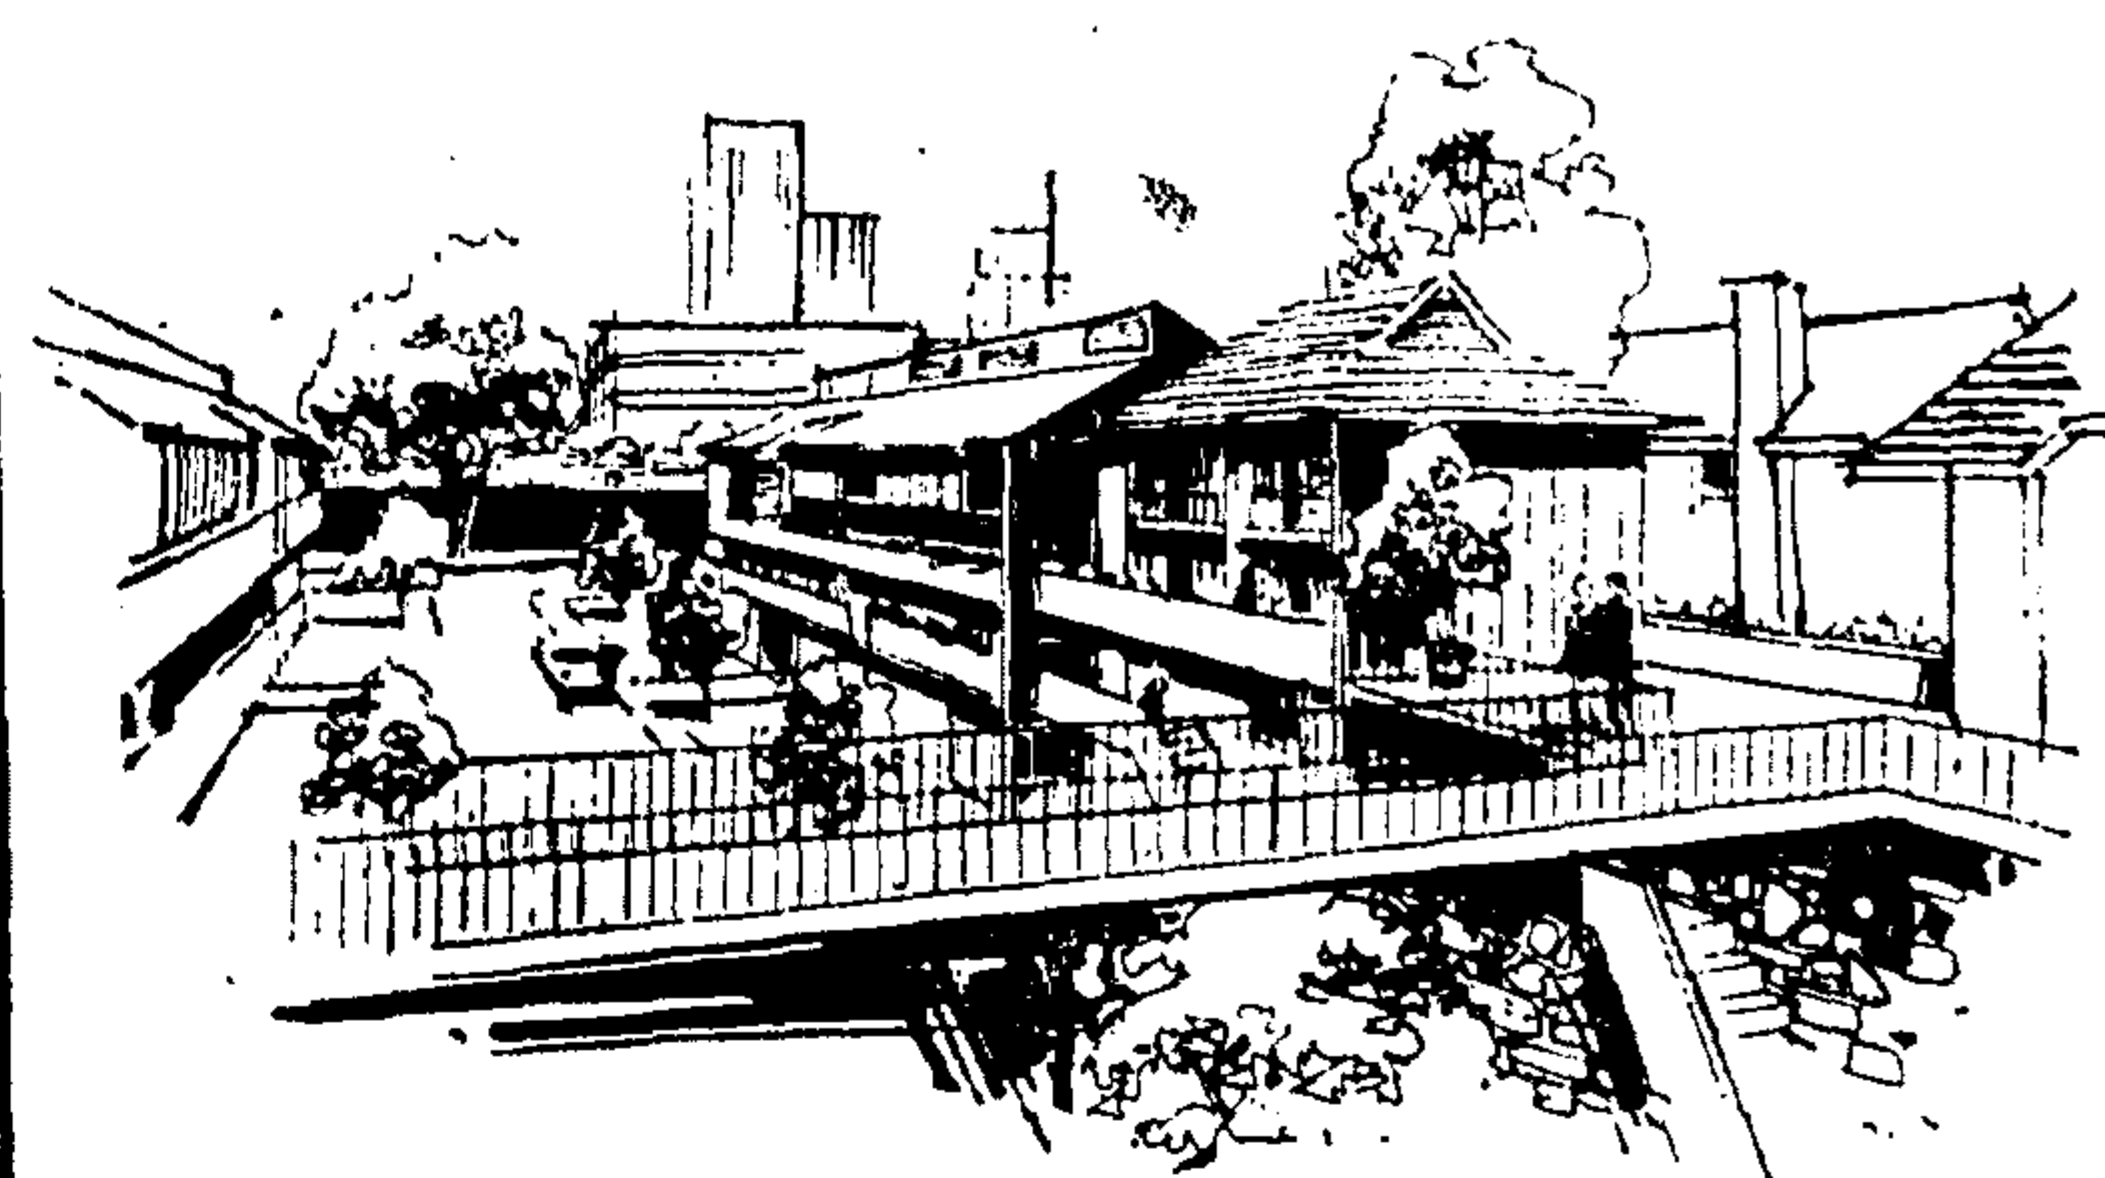

For the entree, Jan and Larry recommend kebabs made with sirloin steak, cherry tomatoes, mushrooms and green peppers. These are cooked on the grill and basted with a tasty lemon butter sauce. The food is removed from the skewers and served on a bed of rice, topped by the sauce.

A DELICIOUS Oriental salad complements the main course. Prepared by Jan, this is made with fresh spinach, water chestnuts, sliced hard boiled eggs, crisp crumbled bacon and bean sprouts. It is served with a sweet-sour dressing seasoned with onion, catsup and Worcestershire sauce.

An elegant dessert to top off this hearty meal is Strawberries with Liqueur and Whipped Cream. Larry discovered this recipe in "The White (Continued on Page 10)

READY FOR DESSERT? Jan and Larry Olson, Arlington Heights, offer a family favorite made with strawberries and cream, topped with a combination of liqueurs and strawberry preserves.

Don't overlook books

Penny H. of Buffalo Grove writes for information on reading material and possible classes in microwave cooking:

"I just received a microwave oven as a gift. Do you have suggestions as to books and recipes for me? I am a new reader to your column now. I hope I can learn to cook good things to eat. I could attend night classes if there are any."

Penny, you've received the right gift at the right time. A microwave oven is a great asset to the cook and the kitchen.

Read over any literature that came with your oven. It should be pretty inclusive and of great help to you. Try not to be intimidated by fancy recipes if the book goes into them heavily — underneath all the frills you'll find the basic information.

Go to your local library. They carry microwave cookbooks and you can thumb through them, check some out and find those you might like to add to your permanent cookbook collection. Don't overlook books only written for one-speed ovens, they can be highly informative.

VISIT BOOKSTORES. The ones in this area carry good supplies of microwave cookbooks. Should you see or hear of a book not readily available, most bookstores can order it for you.

Here's a partial booklist for you:

- "Enjoying Microwave Cooking" — J. Sadlack
- "Mastering Microwave Cooking" — Scott
- "The Amana Guide to Great Cooking"
- "The Magic of Microwave Cookbook" — Joanne Crocker (Magic Chef's Book)
- "Microwave Cookery" — Richard Deacon
- "Better Homes and Gardens Microwave Cook Book"
- "Sunset Book on Microwave Cooking"
- "Homestyle Microwave Cooking" — Cameron
- "Madame Benoit's Microwave Cook Book" — Madame Jehane Benoit
- "Microwave Cooking" — Sally
- "The Litton Books on Microwave Cooking"
- "Let's Cook Microwave" — Barbara Harris
- "Miracle of Microwaves" — Hyla O'Connor
- "Original Microwave Oven Cookbook" — L. Wooding
- "Woman's Day Microwave Cookbook"

THERE ARE plenty of classes in microwave cooking being offered. Here is what I've been able to dig up:

- In Mount Prospect: Continental Cookery Shoppe and School, Countryside Shopping Center, 1144 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect, Ill., 60056, 593-3920.

Tea bags need not be wasteful

by MICHAEL J. CONLON

A complaint from Portland, Maine: "Why don't some tea companies offer smaller tea bags? Since we have switched to being tea drinkers, we find a single tea bag provides much too much tea for a teacup, including a second serving."

"It would be so nice not to feel we're wasting by throwing away if we had a smaller tea bag to use."

The Tea Council of USA, Inc., in New York tells us most tea bags contain the same amount of tea — the equivalent of one teaspoon of loose tea per bag, or about 200 cups to the pound. There are a few brands that use heavier amounts.

BUT ONE teaspoon per bag has been the industry standard for years, and most experts, the council says, believe that amount makes the best cup of tea.

We have one suggestion: Have you considered buying one of those covered teaspoons pierced with tiny holes, which you fill with loose tea and stick in a cup of hot water? That way you could make it as weak as you want, and buying loose tea probably is cheaper than buying bags in the first place.

If you use a bag, the Tea Council says three to five minutes is how long the bag should stay in the water. Rather than leaving it in a shorter time, the council says the best way to make it weaker is to leave it in for the recommended time then add a little hot water afterwards to dilute it. They also frown on using the same tea bag twice.

(United Press International)

Correction

Due to a transposition of lines, the directions for Lemon Meringue Pie in a made in last week's Cook of the Week column were unclear.

The first paragraph should read: Melt butter in top of double boiler. Add lemon rind and juice, salt and 1 cup sugar. Beat the whole eggs and egg yolks and stir into butter mixture. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Remove from heat and cool thoroughly.

Most of the schools have classes starting in September, in case you should be able to start right away. Good luck!

If you have suggestions for future topics, write to Eileen Kelly Klehr in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Ethnic produce versatile

Daikons are long, tapered, hot Japanese radishes. They are available in some produce departments that have Japanese customers. Many Americans by tradition have special likes among fresh fruits and vegetables and some markets cater to these preferences with interesting foods that you might like to try.

Here is how to recognize a few of these so-called ethnic specialties but there are many more you might be on the look out for at your market.

CHAYOTE

One of the most versatile of all fresh vegetables, used in soups, salads, main dishes. Often called vegetable pears, mango squash or miloton, the fruit is round or pear-shaped, smooth or corrugated. The dark green and harder a chayote, the better the eating. To serve, boil, bake or fry with plenty of seasoning because the flavor is very mild.

Fresh approach

CILANTRO:

The Spanish name for coriander, which is sometimes called Chinese parsley or Mexican parsley. Native to Southern Europe and the Orient, the coriander seeds have been used as a spice and a seasoning from ancient times. Kentucky produces more cilantro than any of the other states. Cilantro is the parsley-like leaf of the coriander plant. Its leaves are a bit more tender than parsley, but may be used in any way parsley is used. You will need less cilantro than you would parsley. When shopping, look for good green color and fresh, unwilted leaves. Wash well and store in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.

SAPOTE:

The Mexican custard pie. It looks like a green apple but has no indentation on the blossom end. Eat out of hand. Ripen or soften at room temperature, then refrigerate.

FINOCCHIO:

Also called fennel or anise. Popular vegetable with Italians. Broad leaf stalks overlap each other at the stem, forming a bulb. Quarter it and eat raw with salt or salad dressing, or saute in butter and bake with cheese sauce to top.

PLANTAINS:

Longer and thicker, than the bananas they resemble, they are greenish with rough peel. An important food in all tropical countries, plantains are most often served as vegetables, even when ripe, the fruit is starchy. Bake, mash or fry.

CHERIMOYA:

Means "cold seeds." Popular in Mexico, this fruit is almost heart-shaped. Green-colored when ripe, its skin has a faint medallion-like pattern. It is grown in southern Florida, the Indies, Australia and California. When chilled, it has a natural sherbet texture and is sometimes called "sherbet fruit" or "custard apple." Its flavor resembles a combination of fresh pineapple, strawberry and banana.

The larger cherimoyas are usually the best. Choose fruit with fairly uniform green color, free of mold or cracks at the stem end. Ripen at room temperature until they yield to gentle pressure with the palms of the hands.

Cut in halves or quarters to eat with a spoon, removing the seeds as the fruit is eaten. One 3½-ounce (medium) cherimoya contains 94 calories.

Couple finds cooking for company a joint venture

House Cook Book," and it always wins raves from guests. Strawberries are arranged on a bed of meringue and whipped cream and topped with a glaze made of strawberry preserves sparked with kirsch and Grand Marnier. Impressive in appearance, this pretty dessert is light and refreshing with a beautiful fruit flavor.

Jan and Larry now belong to a gourmet group where cooking chores are shared by the husbands and wives, giving both an opportunity to exercise their culinary skills. Both also are active in Southminster Presbyterian Church and sing in the choir. A pianist, Jan also accompanies the children's choir.

Creative talents abound between the two. Since she was a clothing major in home economics, Jan's favorite hobby is sewing, and she makes most of her own clothes and some for her husband and children. Larry loves to work with wood and turns out beautiful handmade furniture and clocks.

- TUFFED CLAMS
- 1 pint clam meat (about 36 small clams) or 16 ounces canned minced clams
  - 1 cup chopped onion
  - 1/2 cup butter
  - 4 cups soft bread crumbs
  - 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
  - 1/2 teaspoon thyme
  - 1/2 teaspoon marjoram
  - 1/2 cup clam broth
  - 1/2 cup pine nuts

If fresh clams are used, steam them until they open. Remove meat and save broth. Measure 1 pint meat and chop into small pieces.

Saute onion in butter and mix with clams. Add bread crumbs, pepper, herbs and broth. Pack stuffing into 18 of the largest clam shells. Sprinkle each with pine nuts.

- Prepare the following topping:
- 1/2 cup melted butter
  - 1 cup fine cracker crumbs
  - 1/2 cup minced parsley

Mix ingredients together and sprinkle over clam mixture in shells. Bake at 350 degrees until top is nicely browned, about 20 to 25 minutes. Serve at once. Serves 6 to 8 for appetizers.

- BUTTER BARBECUE SAUCE FOR KEBABS
- 1/2 cup butter, melted
  - 1/2 cup lemon juice
  - 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
  - 1 teaspoon prepared mustard

- ORIENTAL SALAD
- 1 bag fresh spinach (about 16 ounces), washed and drained
  - 1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, sliced
  - 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
  - 5 strips bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
  - 1 can (16 ounces) bean sprouts, drained
  - Toss together and serve immediately with the following dressing:
  - 3/4 cup sugar
  - 1 cup oil
  - 1/3 cup catsup
  - 1/4 cup vinegar
  - 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
  - 1 medium onion, grated
- Blend ingredients together and simmer for 5 minutes. Make 3/4 cup sauce, enough for four to five 9-inch kebabs.
- To make kebabs, arrange chunks of sirloin steak, mushrooms, green pepper and cherry tomatoes on skewers. Place on grill 5 to 6 inches from heat and brown 12 to 15 minutes, brushing with butter sauce. Then place kebabs on a double thickness of aluminum foil, top with butter sauce and leave on top of grill to cook slowly for 10 to 15 minutes.
- Remove meat and vegetables from skewers and serve on a bed of rice topped by the butter sauce.

WITH IMAGINATION and ingenuity it's possible to decorate your home without spending a fortune. Interior decorator Arthur Leaman has written a book to help those furnishing a home on a budget, and he knows whereof he writes. He made this chandelier from beads and stamped metal, then painted it white.

Decorator practices economy with style

by JEANNE LESEM

Arthur Leaman is one interior decorator who practices what he preaches: economy with style.

The seat and back cushions of two living room chairs in his Manhattan apartment are covered with blue and white cotton that was part of a $11.99 king-size Japanese bedspread he bought in New York City. That one spread covered a total of 11 pillows.

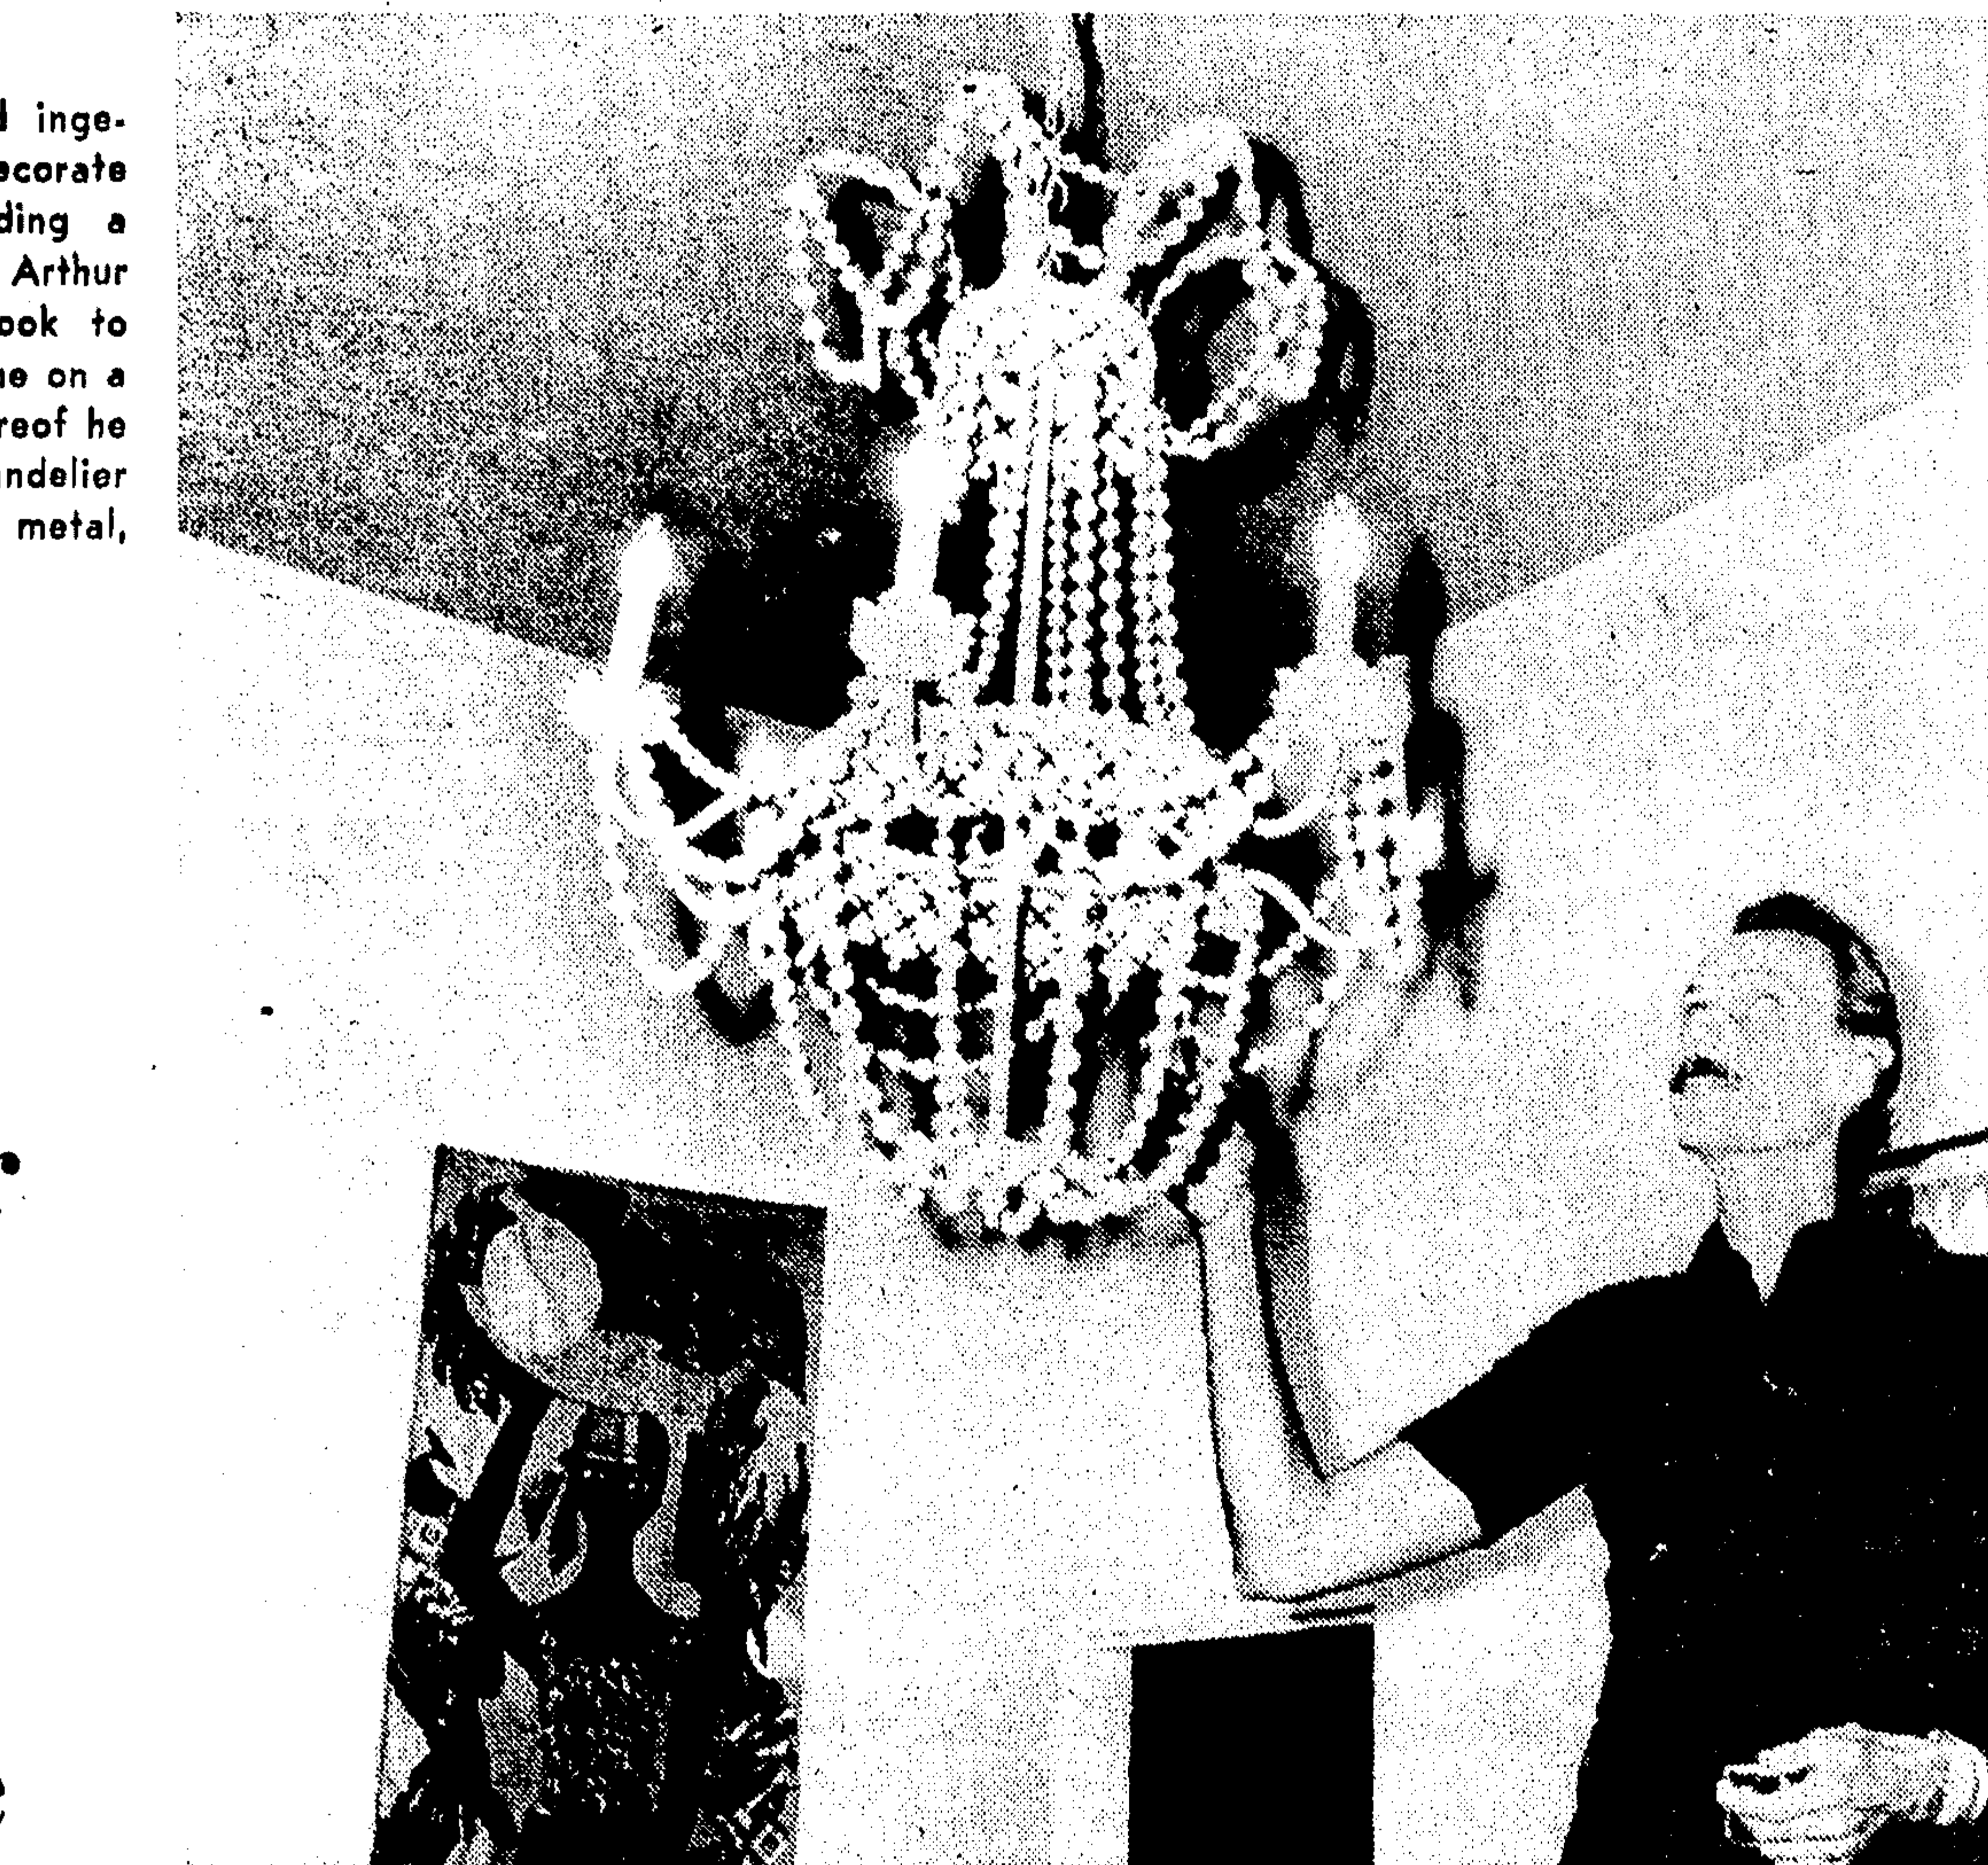

His dining room chandelier is a lacy-looking white affair combining beads and stamped metal.

As Leaman says, "It cost $150, but it looks like $800."

It was transformed by the decorator himself with a can of spray paint.

Leaman, co-author with Jose Wilson of "The Dollar-saving Decorating Book" (Doubleday $9.95), is loaded with similar tips on furnishing a home or apartment on a slim budget.

HIS OTHER treasures include a collection of African art, mostly wood carvings, "very expensive, by and large." He bought the carvings in the West Indies where he lives part of each year at his small hotel, The Golden Lemon, on St. Kitts. The collection cost $150.

The unusual newel post at the top of the stairs in his living room looks like the screw from a cider press. It is.

In an interview, Leaman said garage sales still are a very good place to buy, especially in small towns and cities where the buyer or an acquaintance generally knows who is having a sale and whether there's something worthwhile available.

"Thrifty shops are no longer thrifty," he said, "and Salvation Army stores generally are only in big cities."

He sometimes finds good buys at the latter, sound furnishings that can be restored with minor repairs and/or a new coat of paint.

BUT EXAMINE carefully before you buy, he said; it's no bargain if it needs expensive repairs or refinishing that you cannot do yourself.

In a chapter called, "The Smart Shopper Is the Saver," Leaman and Ms. Wilson, his co-author, describe pitfalls to avoid when shopping for new or used furniture, what features to look for in draperies and upholstery, how to determine the best size lamp for any location or purpose.

Their book also contains nearly 20 pages of listings of sources for furniture and furnishings who issue free or minimal charge brochures or catalogs. These can save hours of time and gallons of gas for shoppers who might otherwise drive from store to store.

Collectors of almost anything have a head start on home decorating, Leaman said. He collects sea shells and blue and white china in old-fashioned Oriental designs.

"By and large, it is very expensive," he said. "If you mix it up with copies, you can't tell the difference."

"PLANTS ARE one of the least expensive ways of decorating," he said, gesturing to the glass shelves in his dining room windows, where many were interspersed with the African carvings.

"If you're an avid reader, make books the focal point. If your hobby is hi-fi, keep the records and the hi-fi set out on open shelves or in stacking plastic cubes or plastic boxes that dairies use to deliver cartons of milk."

"You can even turn them (the milk cartons) upside down to use as tables," he said, by making tops of glass, or wood covered with a contact paper.

Leaman finds the five and 10-cent store "a wonderful place to buy accessories: nice looking plates for ashtrays, simple vases, kitchen utensils such as bright-colored plastic strainers to hold fruit."

Young people just setting up house-keeping know they're going to move, possibly many times. So Leaman suggests painted walls instead of wallpaper, which is more expensive. If you must paper, he said, do a small room so you won't regret the expense when you move out.

"BUY PORTABLE or folding furniture. Pillow sofas are inexpensive and make good beds for guests."

He favors cotton covers for upholstered furniture with special nylon tape fasteners instead of zippers. They go into a washing machine and back on the furniture while slightly damp, so no ironing is needed.

"Most people travel, no matter what their age. One of the nicest ways to assemble a collection is during your travels."

But start collecting before you go, he advises, so you won't be tempted to buy a lot of unrelated things that won't look well together.

(United Press International)

Decorating needn't be difficult if you use guidelines

You've finally found the home of your dreams after a long search. You can't wait to move in and start fixing it up with appealing furnishings and decorative touches.

Unfortunately, the down payment has taken a big chunk out of your savings. Worse still, you are all thumbs and color-blind when it comes to arranging and coordinating furniture, draperies and the like for the best effect.

Yet decorating a home needn't be too difficult if the owners follow a few basic guidelines, says Joan Lowenthal, an interior design consultant and Harper instructor. Her recently published book, appropriately titled "The All-Thumbs, Color-Blind Book of Interior Decorating," offers proof that anyone can decorate like a pro after learning a few do's and don'ts.

MRS. LOWENTHAL first got the idea for the book while standing in a grocery check-out line. A shopper in front of her, flipping through a decorating magazine, remarked that she never could find a simple answer to a specific decorating problem. Inspired by the woman's comment, Mrs. Lowenthal began to compile a list of decorating tips based upon her 15 years experience as a designer, and upon questions from listeners to her "Family Forum" feature on WBBM radio. The book grew out of the list.

"So many people I talked to are so afraid to use an interior designer," she explained. "They want to increase their own knowledge."

A lack of planning, she said, is one of the biggest mistakes made by amateur decorators. "They would eliminate so many problems if they would start with a furniture arrangement. There's only so much room in a room, and you have to take care of that," she said. For example, a piece of furniture on sale is no bargain if it will not fit into the room.

IN PLANNING the furniture arrangement, keep in mind that people like to sit across from each other when in a room together. "What's so important is having a decent conversation area," Mrs. Lowenthal explained.

And though many persons are confused about how to mix colors, this problem is not difficult to solve. Since the colors in a wallpaper pattern are selected by artists, "if you don't know where to begin, start with a fabric or wallpaper pattern and go from there," she suggests. Color can work a few tricks, too. In the case of a room that is long and narrow, a strong contrasting color or paneling on the far wall will help "bring the room in."

Low on money as well as decorating ability? There are many ways you can brighten your home without spending a fortune.

"I'm a great believer that anything like a bed or a sofa that you use a lot should be of good, solid construction,"

Mrs. Lowenthal advises, but adds that accessories or smaller pieces need not be expensive. Wicker and plastic laminate items can offer savings. Plants can add interest to a room, or screens, covered with wallpaper or fabric, can be used to soften a corner.

HEAVY, EXPENSIVE draperies currently are being replaced by the bare window look, as more shades and blinds have become popular, she said. King-size sheets with interesting patterns can be made into curtains or slipcovers, or used to cover the walls. Art prints, stretched fabric and large-scale wallpaper patterns cut out and framed also can fill the walls, as can a hand-painted supergraphic (drawn in pencil first).

In addition, persons who are handy at crafts can save money by making area rugs and dried flower arrangements, or by sewing or gluing square rug remnants into a patchwork-type carpet.

Retirement calls for involvement

by LOU COTTIN

A hobby is an escape, an interest is an involvement.

A hobby is a private and personal pastime. An interest presupposes work or struggle toward a goal.

A hobby just passes time. An interest uses time.

We are not playing word games here. A person newly come from the working world enters the world of hobbies with a sense of dismay. It's a serious problem. So long as directors of senior activities overemphasize "hobbies" we are in trouble. The possibility of taking a responsible place as contributors to society is lost to us. We can be overlooked, disregarded. We are classed with children. We are treated as nonentities.

More important, we need to discuss the hobbies situation with our middle-aged sons and daughters. They are now working, bringing up our grandchildren. They participate in the work of the world. They are something. We are nothing. How will they fare when their turn comes to spend their lives puttering about aimlessly?

Study of the matter can lead to one conclusion only: The hobbies must be turned into interests. A conscious effort must be made to re-educate us as retired Americans. We must search out our qualities, must make our abilities accessible.

SELF-RESPECT demands that we make something out of our hobbies. The center director offers brushes, a palette, a place to work and a modicum of advice. Note that the word is "work," not "shmeer." You may discover after working on a canvas or several canvasses that "shmeer" is all you can do. Painting is not your "thing." You aren't moved to start visiting art galleries. You don't have sweet dreams of exhibiting a finished piece which delights others.

What the heck. Go to some other hobby. Keep trying to find your own medium. Think what you can do in service to others. Try birdwatching, writing, handicrafts, with serious efforts to excel. Do something which will stamp you as a competent producer in the field of your choice.

Hobbies which merely use up time diminish you. Hobbies which become serious interests establish your status. They reassert your right to a place of distinction in society.

The image we seniors present to the world is important. People ask a child: "What do you want to be when you grow up?" When they speak to an elderly person they ask:

"What do you expect to do when you retire?" The implication, the assumption, is that we retirees can't possibly be anything once we've stopped working for wages.

Hobbies which merely use up time diminish you. Hobbies which become serious interests establish your status.

There is a hidden nobility within all of us. It was there through all our many years of toil. We bore the stresses forced upon us by the need to make a living. But somewhere, some time in our lives, a spark of godliness lighted up our hearts. Now in retirement we can, at last, dig into our past and rekindle the dreams so long denied.

IN HIS BOOK "A God Within," Rene Dubos, the eminent bacteriologist and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, speaks of a fundamental pattern of life that survives as long as the whole survives. He quotes from a sonnet by Michelangelo:

"The best of artists has that thought alone which is contained within the marble shell."

"The sculptor's hand can only break the spell

"To free the figures slumbering in the stone."

Let people ask us, "What do you want to be when you retire?" Let us answer them courageously. "We will be artists. We will be politicians. We will join in the struggle to assure a richer life for those in need. We will contribute as we can and work to perfect our qualities as useful members of society."

Earlier this summer a play by 80-year-old Harry Granick was presented by the PAF Playhouse in Huntington, N.Y. The title was "The Bright and Golden Sand."

THE PLAY TELLS the story of the Granick family's early and continued experiences in the United States. Quoting the thoughtful review by Allan Wallach, "The greatest triumph in the play is experienced by the aging Baba Liza." As Granick tells it in the play, Liza dug back into her youthful experience as a "painter on velvet," to become an established artist at age 84.

The directors of centers for the aging may or may not be able to inspire us. What they offer through the hobby activities they make available is the opportunity to find ourselves, to measure our talents.

It may seem like a small thing to make a pretty pair of booties for a grandchild. It may pass the time pleasantly to work with others on a patchwork quilt.

But with such productive activities there is always a next step. We must accustom ourselves to asking, "Where can we go from here?"

Don't wait for others to inquire. "What do you want to be when you retire?" You ask them.

A barber chair that's been elevated to collectible

My son the perennial student finally graduated last month and became my son the job seeker. The fellow at the employment agency suggested he have a new three-piece suit and his hair styled. A certain barber, the agent's own in fact, could style the hair to "fit the image." To get the image fitted, we discovered, costs $17. Son came home and bought a new vest for his old two-piece suit. I trimmed his neckline and combed his hair sideways, and off he went to the interview. We haven't heard if he got the job.

Now grooming the male is nothing new. It's just that the terminology and prices have changed. A hundred years ago Grandpa got a shave 'n a haircut, mustache trim and wax, the whole ritual, for only a few cents. The process involved clouds of lavender tale and splashes of bay rum. (Bay rum was made originally with real rum and bayberry leaves, and later with alcohol and distillates.) And in that strictly male domain — forbid that a lady should enter the door — stood the barber chair in all its magnificence.

The almost throne-like barber chairs, such as the one pictured, so impressed one St. Louis, Mo., boy, Ernest E. Koken, that he made barber chairs and supplies his lifelong business. He started out in 1874 by painting names and decorations on shaving mugs, then began buying and selling used barber chairs. Within less than a decade he had a thriving business, and eventually turned it into the largest manufactory of barber supplies in the world. He held many patents for his ingenious mechanisms for reclining, revolving and elevated chairs.

EARLY CHAIRS were very ornate, richly upholstered and carved. The pictured example marked a new era. It is Koken's Star No. 1 Elevating Chair, patented in 1895, which tilts, revolves and has a hydraulic lift. The side lever controls the revolving movement and the foot pedal the reclining one. This extra fancy model was made of mahogany and was upholstered in either plush or leather.

In came the 1920s and in came the women, winning one of the first in a long line of skirmishes by a hair. Irene Castle, the dancing star who was the toast of two continents, bobbed her hair. According to Robert Blake Powell, author and collector, "practically overnight women flocked to barber shops everywhere — to get their hair bobbed like Irene Castle, and every barber shop had to put in extra chairs to take care of the sudden business boom. This was the beginning of what later developed into the 'Beauty Shops' for American women."

At the 1904 Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis, Powell says, the Koken Company displayed a mammoth barber chair exhibit, highlighted by a giant chair, three times normal size, which had scores of lights trained upon it. No one knows what happened to this outsized chair. Koken also built about a hundred miniature-sized barber chairs, quarter scale, which serves as salesmen's samples. Many competitors also built the small chairs. Koken was named to the Barbering Hall of Fame, the only person ever to gain this distinction without having been a barber.

POWELL ADDS THAT you might find a Koken barber chair in the remotest parts of the world today. It might be in use for its original function, or maybe even serving as a throne for an eastern potentate or jungle chieftan. Or you might find one in a den or a restaurant, treasured by an antique buff. I wonder if I had such a chair in my basement rec room, I might not do a better job of "fitting the image," instead of the kitchen chair, dishtowel around shoulders, sewing scissors routine I've used on my family for so many years. And my son might get a job.

The picture and history are from Powell's article in Tri-State Trader, "Old Barber Chairs," used with his kind permission. His new book, "Occupational and Fraternal Shaving Mugs of the United States," his second on the subject of shaving mugs, will be available from the author, Box 833, Hurst, Texas, 76053 about Nov. 1, price $17.50. Powell will answer inquiries, accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope, about chairs or other barber shop items, especially if you have heard the whereabouts of the giant or miniature chairs!

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

28-year-old woman troubled with acne

I have a problem with my complexion, but I am not an adolescent. I'm 28 and have three children.

The problem started about nine months ago after I had my third child. My husband had a vasectomy then. Until my pregnancy, I had taken birth control pills.

My own doctor diagnosed it as acne and prescribed an antibiotic. After the pills ran out, the problem resumed. I have two refills left, but the cost is high. My face also itches.

I have a friend in the same boat. Her difficulty started also after her husband's vasectomy and the end of her birth control pills.

Does a husband's vasectomy cause a wife to have acne? Yes, Well, indirectly.

Acne in women is related to the balance between the two female hormones, estrogen and progesterone. Women who have a little more estrogen are less likely to have acne. Your birth control pills contained enough estrogen to help prevent the acne. After your husband's vasectomy when you no longer needed the birth control pills, your estrogen levels were lower and acne cropped out.

Some antibiotics help prevent acne because they eliminate small bacteria within the skin pore that acts on the fatty sebum to make it irritating to the skin. I am sending you the Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019. Follow the information in it and it will help you control the problem.

Our daughter who is middle-aged has the habit of flipping the nipple of her breast between her thumb and forefinger. Sometimes one, then the other. She does this whether she is dressed or in her lounging clothes.

She has normal sized breasts, perhaps a little smaller than usual.

Her father says she gets some sex reaction. I've checked the books and magazine articles she reads and the material is never sexy material. She does this when she reads, also other times too.

Is this apt to cause cancer of the breast? Will it cause the breasts to increase in size? Is it dangerous? She is the mother of two grown children.

Your letter proves that a woman may have grown children of her own, but she is still her parents' "little girl," which has its good and not so good points.

Her habit will not cause cancer. Physical injury to the breast is not a cause of breast cancer at all. It is not likely to enlarge the breast either. If it did I would guess from a number of letters I receive that a large number of women would be doing the same thing. And there is no reason to think it will cause her any harm in any way — other than any social embarrassment she might feel if she does it in public and it is noticed or she suddenly realizes she is doing it.

The nipples do respond to sexual stimulation and they are one of the erogenous zones. The nipples even contain erectile tissue. Most likely this is an unconscious nervous habit your daughter has developed and may have no more significance than that. Why don't you ask her about it? She may be totally unaware that she is doing it.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of Suburban Living, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Main meal at lunchtime cuts down on cooking

Dear Roberta: I am so tired of cooking three meals a day. I worry especially about lunches. Besides, the printed recipes these days are too fancy. We try avoiding sandwiches and fried foods. Can you help? — Mary Eastham

Your problem is shared by millions of people, retirees as well as those who go home for lunch. I hope you will consider what my in-laws have done for decades as a way of solving your problem. Coming many years ago from France, they still follow a common European custom of having the day's main meal at mid-day. They have more energy in the morning to prepare a cooked meal. After lunch, they work off the calories by taking walks, going window-shopping, etc. At night they eat salads, simple omelets, cottage cheese with fruit or other light dishes. Energy levels are lower at day's end, and exercise harder to do. When I visit them, I must adjust my habits, but the switch doesn't take long to get used to. They're all healthier than most people their age, perhaps because of this routine. When I follow it, I feel better, too.

Safety Tip: If your doors have dead-bolt locks, the kind that require a key both to open from the inside and to lock from the outside, be sure to keep keys hanging in a safe place near the doors for emergency departures — as in case of fire. And place at a level where a senior citizen or a youngster can reach them.

Dear Roberta: I learned the hard way that one shouldn't put in the dishwasher those plastic bowls with tight-fitting lids used to keep produce fresh. Bowls and tops have now changed shape, and will never fit together again. — Myrna Khoury

She's earned the right to say 'no'

Dear Marian,

I'm a senior and a better than average student, but I don't go in for all the extras. I'd rather work and earn money for clothes like beyond the things my parents buy for me. I have a couple of friends who are not all that close except they live near me and these girls are into drama, chorus, you name it, they're always into something.

My problem is that these girls are just somewhat friendly until they want to borrow tops or dresses or something. Half the time I see my clothes walking down the halls. And not only that, I have to keep asking them to return the things and when they finally get around to it, sometimes they're nearly ruined. I really don't want to lend out my clothes this year, but how can I say so without getting them mad and talking about me behind my back?

Dear B.R.,

Why should you care if they get mad and talk about you? They sound like real creeps who are just using you. Besides, they probably already think you are a fool to fall for their phony friendship. Tell them that you work hard to earn your clothes and want to wear them yourself. If they don't like it, tough.

Dear Marian,

I'm a senior and I'm writing this in study hall. The problem is my mother. She's supposed to wake me up in time so I can shower and dry my hair and stuff, but she gets so uptight if I don't get up the first time she calls. And now she says she is sick of it all and from now on she's going to call me once and that's it. Our school is real strict and I can't stand detentions. How can I convince my mother to be more reasonable?

B.R.

R.C.

Dear R.C.,

Is this a joke? Is your mother also supposed to warm your bottle in the morning? Get a loud alarm clock, kid, and let your poor mother sleep. It sounds as if she deserves it.

Dear Marian,

I want your opinion on a problem of long standing. It seems to be peaking now that I am a junior in high school. As an "A" student who truly enjoys learning and all school activities, including dance, drama, etc., it is frequently difficult to reconcile or justify these to my various groups of friends. Some of the real serious ones criticize me for associating with the-in their minds-goof offs. I get the same hassle from the others. While I enjoy all my friends, I wish there were some tactful way to resolve this and end their snide remarks about each other. Have you any ideas?

In the Middle

Dear Middle,

Each group of friends is probably slightly jealous of the other group. I really can't think of anything you can do to stop the comments except to come out and say, "They're my friends, too, and I can't let you criticize them." That will no doubt get some people mad at you. The only other thing you can do is say something vague and next time someone criticizes your other friends, like, "Well, they have their good points." Maybe when they fail to get you to criticize with them, they'll just shut up.

Edward Foleys to hold open house for 60th wedding date

After 60 years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foley of Arlington Heights will be celebrating the milestone with an open house this Sunday. Friends, neighbors and relatives are welcome to stop in between 2 and 4 p.m. at the couple's home, where they have spent the past 40 years.

Rose and Edward were married Sept. 12, 1917 in the home of the minister of Arlington Heights Presbyterian Church. She is the daughter of the Frank Jahns of Palatine, who moved to Arlington Heights when she was a young girl. Edward was born in Warren, Ill., but came to Arlington in 1913, going into business as a barber the following year. Ten years later he added Foley's Beauty Shop at 5 S. Dunton which he operated for 47 years.

Rose, now 79, and Edward, 84, are retired but enjoying good health and an active life.

They have two children. William and his family live in Grayslake and Lorraine is now Mrs. Bert Wagner of Morton Grove. The Foleys have three grandchildren.

Harper class for mothers

"The Mother Experience — The First Year" will be offered for the first time this fall by Harper College Women's Program. The eight-week course is designed for first-time mothers who need the support of other women in making the adjustment to a new lifestyle.

Mary Stewart of Arlington Heights, who gave birth to her first child a year ago, will lead the sessions. Topics will include information on and discussion of the postpartum experience; coping with anxiety, guilt and fatigue; new relationships with the husband, family and friends; restoration of self-esteem; ways to enrich the caretaker role and the importance of personal pursuits inside and outside the home.

The course will be held Thursdays, beginning Sept. 15, from 7:30 to 9:20 p.m. at Palatine Library, 500 N. Benton St. Tuition is $18.50. The college Admissions Office, 397-3000, ext. 410, may be called to register.

'Washington' fails to live up to 'Roots'

There are not only some television viewers but some ABC officials today who are disenchanted with "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," especially after the elaborate advertising campaign the network used to ballyhoo the Watergate drama as this year's answer to "Roots."

Well, it's not "Roots," much to the dismay of viewers and the ABC brains who put "Washington" together.

The first night of "Washington" Tuesday pulled only a 22 rating and 32 per cent of the Chicago area audience compared to the first night of "Roots" in January which attracted a stunning, local rating of 46 and 60 per cent of the area audience.

WHAT'S MORE, NBC and CBS gave ABC a sufficient run for the money Tuesday night by pitting some heavy programming against the much heralded mini-series.

In Chicago Tuesday night, CBS's movie "Logan's Run" attracted a 19 rating and 29 per cent of the area audience and NBC's "The Hindenburg" attracted a 17 rating and 27 per cent of the audience.

In New York City, the first night of "Washington" and "Logan's Run" tied, each with a 22 rating and 32 per cent of the area audience. "The Hindenburg" trailed with a 16 rating and 25 per cent of the audience. Los Angeles experienced similarly close ratings. National ratings figures for the first night of "Washington" were not available Wednesday.

Now, it may be that because more people watch more television in the winter had something to do with keeping people glued to their television sets last January for seven consecutive nights of "Roots." Certainly, "Roots" was an excellent drama.

But, we are dealing with a different drama and a different time of the year now.

BESIDES THAT, ABC snuck up on its two competitors and a whole nation of viewers with its innovative programming of "Roots" in January. NBC and CBS are wise to the ways of ABC now and were able to counter program all this week with strong shows of their own.

One thing ABC over-looked in the making of its $8 million project is that most people are just plain tired of Watergate and the nightmare that we lived for so long during the Richard Nixon administration.

Many viewers have been angered by the fact that ABC would so closely recreate the abuse of power in the White House during Watergate, even loosely basing the mini-series on John Ehrlichman's book, "The Company."

The American public doesn't want to let ABC play with its emotions. Watergate is still an open, healing wound. The fact that ABC has come so close to recreating history without admitting it is an insult.

So, it looks as though "Washington: Behind Closed Doors" isn't going to be the winner that ABC had planned on. The first night's local ratings in major cities like Chicago indicate that not many were looking forward to the series, that many viewers were grossly turned off by the series at the start and that fewer of them will support the remainder of the six consecutive night drama.

SOME VIEWERS were complaining that "Washington" was slow. That might be because any American citizen who hasn't been in a stupor the past five years knows the Watergate story line by line better than any screenwriter or actor.

But, ABC hasn't lost out completely with "Washington."

The pre-season spectacular, that initially sent NBC and CBS into a programming dither a full two weeks before the official start of the fall season, is providing ABC with an excellent night-after-night opportunity to plug its own new series and specials.

In case you missed it Tuesday night, ABC ran a 15-minute public relations piece following the first two hours of "Washington" hosted by the network's new father image, Dick Van Patten of "Eight is Enough."

Entitled, "Television Grows Up," the self-serving, deceiving puff piece set out to justify how television chooses to recreate and reflect real life — how television has to run to keep up with society's changing lifestyles and morals.

When Van Patten talked about sex on television, he didn't cite ABC's controversial new comedy, "Soap," saturated in bold sex, but he cited an innocent scene from "Eight is Enough" in which the father attempts to explain the facts of life to his adolescent son.

WHEN VAN PATTEN talked about violence on television he didn't cite any gratuitously violent scenes from "Baretta," but, rather, one of the show's few comic scenes featuring its star Robert Blake.

"You are what you choose to watch," Van Patten said, stressing again that television is simply a mirror that reflects our lives and attitudes.

It was blatant propaganda, timely scheduled and well executed. Let's hope many of the "Washington" viewers were smart enough to see the piece for what it was.

On top of that WLS-TV, Channel 7, the ABC owned and operated station in Chicago, decided to commercialize on the network series by sending anchorman John Drury to Washington for the week to do a series of Illinois-related mini-documentaries and live reports on Bert Lance, reconvening of Congress and the Panama Canal treaty.

The first night of "Washington: Behind Closed Doors" was a night to remember with a lesson to be learned. And just think, there's four more nights to go.

TV NOTE:

WMAQ-TV's "Ask Governor Thompson" last Thursday attracted only a 6.8 rating and 13 per cent of the area audience compared to a 9.2 rating for "The Waltons," a 24 rating for "Welcome Back, Kotter" and a 26 rating for "What's Happening" that aired at the same time. Channel 5 officials say, despite poor ratings, that it's a worthwhile public affairs service that will be continued next month with "Ask Michael Bilandic."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

CBS previews its new Saturday morning shows for children, slated to begin Saturday, on "Wacko Saturday Preview" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2. A handful of big name stars like Carol Burnett and Darth Vader from "Star Wars" are featured.

NBC, in attempts to counterprogram ABC's "Washington," presents the "Pro Football Hall of Fame" at 7 p.m. on Channel 5 to be followed at 7:30 p.m. by NFL football between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Dallas Cowboys.

Part three of "Washington: Behind Closed Doors" finds administration aides locking horns with the CIA and FBI over illegal domestic security operations at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

Special store for elderly brings groceries to them

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston has a corner store that comes to the corner, and it serves a very select clientele. You can't shop there if you're under 60, and if you're bedridden or handicapped, you get special treatment.

The two-year-old Mobile Market is a converted bookmobile that makes 30 stops a week at area housing projects where it serves 500 customers.

"We carry some 300 grocery items, canned goods and so forth," manager Al Legros said. "We do a gross business of about $1,000 a week."

The market also carries frozen foods, small cuts of meat and basic cleaning supplies, but no candy or cigarettes, since those require a special license.

It has a staff of three — Legros, a cashier and a driver-maintenance man — paid by federal funds. It is accompanied by a Boston Housing Authority guard, since most stops are at BHA projects.

BECAUSE OF ITS special clientele, the market offers services such as telephone ordering and free delivery, particularly to the handicapped and bedridden.

The Mobile Market was shut down for several months this year because the 15-year-old vehicle needed repairs. It was rededicated during a recent City Hall nutrition seminar attended by about 100 elderly persons some of them in wheel chairs who said they were grateful for the van.

"This is heaven-sent. I hadn't anybody to market for me, and now I don't have to worry if I need a few items. You can't depend on your family if you just need a carton of milk or something," said Caren Anatora, 62, of Boston's South End.

Michael Dogmas, 60, of Boston's Dorchester section, said: "My sister, who's blind and lives in an apartment in New York, when I tell her about the van, she prays some day they will have something there like it so she won't have to bother anyone to go to the store for her."

LEGROS SAYS stocking the market provided a few surprises about eating habits of the elderly. "Contrary to what many people think, they do not buy canned goods in smaller sizes. They will go for the larger. They're price conscious."

Despite that, he said, his customers prefer national brands to local or store brand goods. "They won't buy the store brand coffee even if it's 40 or 50 cents less," he said.

Dietetic foods are popular, he said, and the elderly disdain quick foods.

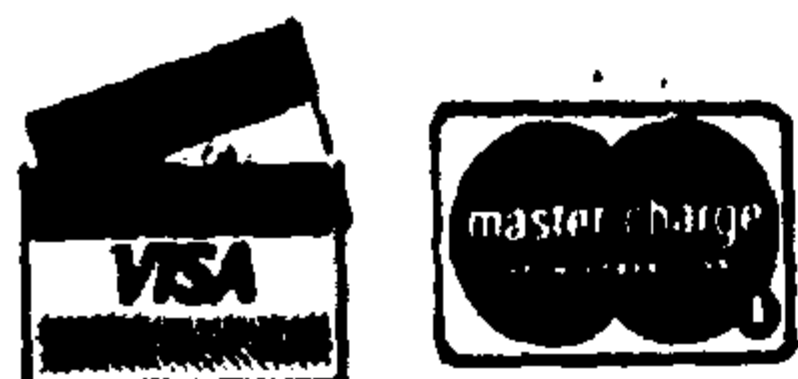

"Instant jellies — they won't go for that. They want the old-fashioned jello. The same thing with cereals. The majority want the old-fashioned cereals that you put on the stove and have 20-25 minutes to cook."

And, he said, "you can't have enough bananas. Bananas and prune juice."

Women beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

Related story on Page 9

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filed, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Provin and soprano Maria Arroyo.

BUT OUTSIDE in the streets of Washington, and in Panama, small groups of antitreaty protesters staged

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land,"

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heimann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heimann's findings.

Dist. 63 teachers OK tentative pact

It's classes today as usual in East Maine Dist. 63.

Twelve days of suspense over a threatened teachers' strike ended late Wednesday when negotiators emerged from 33 hours of nearly continuous bargaining with a tentative two-year teachers' contract.

No details of the pact were being released, pending a mass meeting of teachers tentatively set for after school today at Gemini Junior High School in Niles.

THE FINAL, marathon bargaining session began Tuesday morning and dragged on until 7 p.m. Wednesday with only two breaks — a two-hour interruption Tuesday night for a teachers' union rally, and a four-hour recess to allow the eight negotiating teachers to attend the district's first half-day of classes Wednesday morning.

About half of the districts 300 teachers attended the union rally Tuesday night, heard union negotiators declare the talks in a "precarious position" and authorized union leaders to call a strike if talks became hopelessly bogged down.

But board of education member Jeanenne Oestreich said Wednesday the teachers' negotiating team never informed the board of the strike authorization.

"They never told us, and they never waved a flag in our faces," Mrs. Oestreich said. "The negotiating team did not verbally use strike leverage. Maybe they never reached that point."

THE THREAT of a strike nevertheless was present, with the memory of a three-day teachers' walkout in November 1975 and a series of public warnings that began Aug. 26, when the teachers' union declared the district in a "crisis" situation.

Wary union negotiators appeared at the end of their rope Wednesday

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

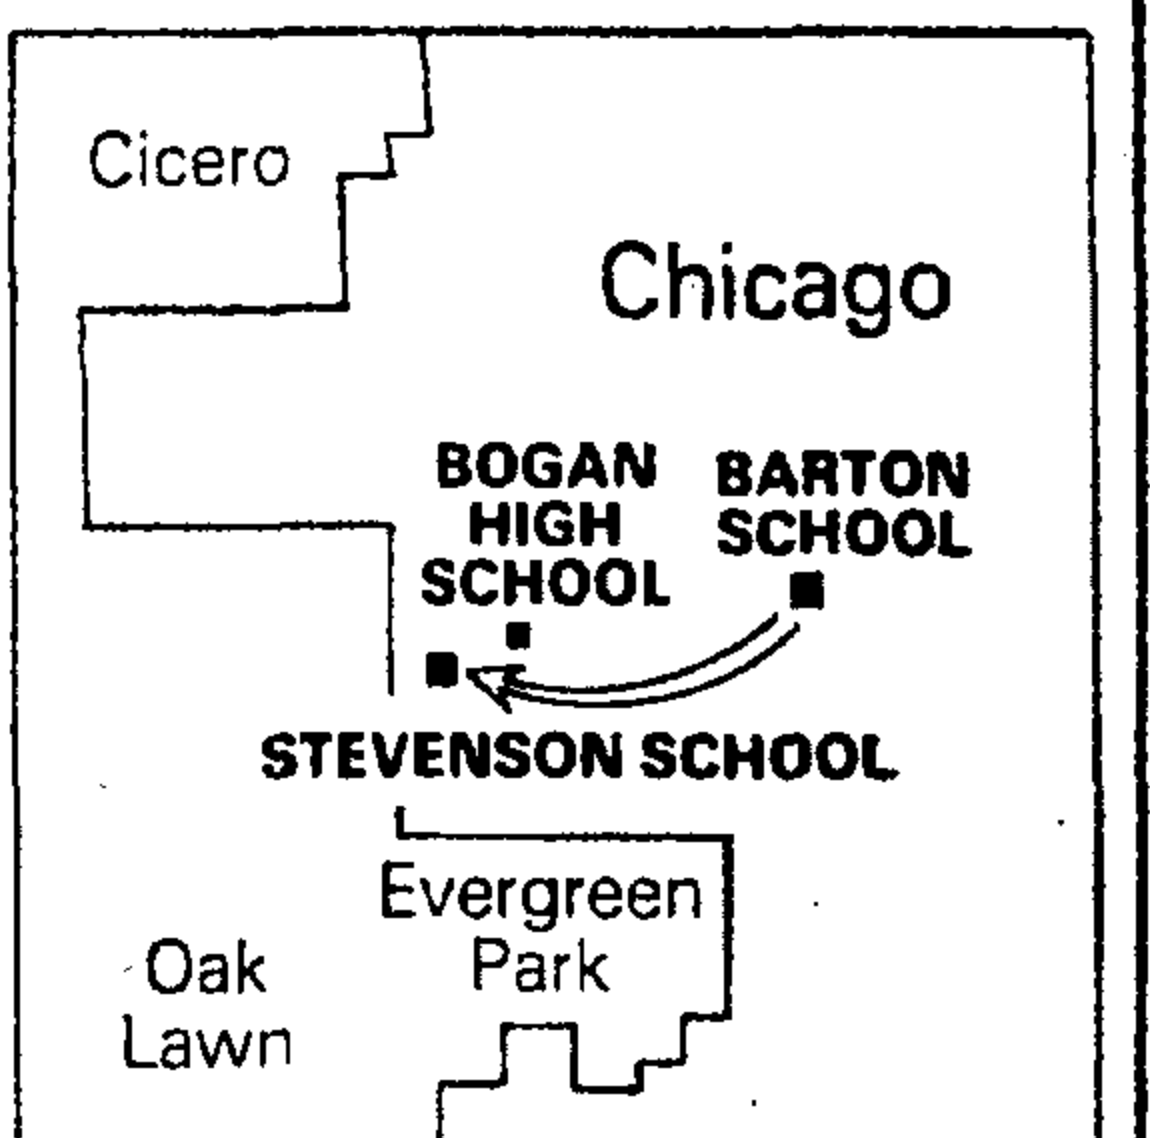

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Exec's divorce bill is horse feed

A retired vice president of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana was ordered Wednesday to pay $250 a month for the upkeep on his daughter's show horse, Monkey Business, as part of a divorce settlement.

Smith also was ordered to turn over title to a $350,000 home in Indiana to his former wife, Joan, who lives there. He had to pay her a total of $150,000 in alimony over a four-year period.

Mrs. Smith also was granted a $250,000 life insurance policy on her former husband and $800 a month in child support, including the payments for the horse.

Memories of 1975 strike cause parents nightmares

There was dread and a touch of exasperation in the voice of Sharon Polisky Wednesday as she recalled the three-day teachers' strike that racked East Maine Dist. 63 two years ago.

"I don't want to go through another nightmare," said Mrs. Polisky, 9112 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, and an active parent at Mark Twain School.

The nightmare Mrs. Polisky remembers is the rift that developed between striking and nonstriking teachers at Twain during that bitter strike in November 1975. And she does not relish the thought of reopening wounds that just now are beginning to heal.

SIMILAR MEMORIES, kept worried parents Wednesday waiting for word from the district's administration center, where weary negotiators huddled after 30 hours of nearly continuous bargaining, itching for showers as well as a settlement that would quash a threatened teachers' strike.

"During the last strike, there was a breakdown in discipline because the kids saw their school in chaos," mused one parent whose three children attend Nathanson School in Des Plaines. "It's bad for the kids, and if you're a teacher, you should be for kids first."

And Marge DePrima, former president of the Apollo Junior High School PTA, recalled the shattered friendships that were the product of the last walkout and flatly declared, "Our district cannot take another strike."

Like many in the district, Mrs. DePrima said the district's 300 teachers deserve more money than the $10,105 currently earned by beginning faculty members.

"But if the district doesn't have it, how can teachers get it?" she asked, echoing the cries of the board of education that declining enrollments and dwindling state aid are bankrupting the school treasury.

OTHERS SAY that because teachers have the opportunity to earn more money during the summer months, the average salary in Dist. 63 — $13,000 or $14,000 — is already high enough.

"Teachers are making more money in five and a half or six months than I make in a year," said Cyril Winn, 9515 Sumac, Des Plaines. "and then they get days off for Lincoln's birthday and every other kind of birthday besides."

Not that Winn envies teachers their jobs.

"I realize teachers have a problem with discipline with kids today," said Winn, father of three grown children and grandfather and godfather of several others. "I wish they'd get $25 grand a year. But I've been in unions all my life, and when I went on strike I didn't hurt kids. If teachers strike, kids don't have a chance."

FOR SOME PARENTS, however, even the prospect of a strike doesn't shake their belief that teachers deserve more than they're getting.

"Being a teacher isn't easy," said Donna Erickson, 9543 Sumac, whose sixth-grade daughter attends nearby Nathanson School. "I wouldn't be thrilled about a strike, but I wouldn't be too upset either. My daughter is good in school and she's nice to have around, so it doesn't make any difference."

"I wouldn't be pleased if they're out a long time, but that's not likely." And for neighbor Beatrice Cameron, with two children in Dist. 63, the story is the same.

"Teachers have all the right in the world to go on strike. After all, they've got to live, too."

afternoon, complaining they had seen little of board negotiators during the lengthy session. Each side was sequestered in its own room in the district administration center, with communication only when one side had a new proposal to present the other.

But six hours later, both sides apparently had made peace with a tentative settlement that Mrs. Oestreich said will dig the financially troubled district deeper into the red but will give "fair salaries" to teachers.

Teachers' top priorities in the talks were a wage and fringe benefit package and a policy covering dismissal of tenured teachers as the district's enrollment declines.

City developing water saving plan

Des Plaines residents would use water more efficiently than they do now under a plan gaining support and likely to win city council approval.

But city officials say a citizen would feel little effect of the water conservation measures unless he goes out of his way to conserve beyond proposed mandatory measures.

Voluntary conservation measures include the following, according to Philip Lindahl, Des Plaines environmental officer:

- Watering lawns less. Lawn watering consumes up to 600 gallons of water an hour, according to estimates by Richard Herout, chairman of the Des Plaines Environmental Control Commission.

- Turning off the shower while soaping and using a water conservation shower head.

- Turning off water while shaving, washing hands and brushing teeth.

Other measures would be mandatory under the proposal headed for the city council. The council may consider the plan as early as Sept. 19.

Mandatory measures are focused on changes in the city building code ordinance.

Among the changes would be toilet flushing devices that operate on less than 7 gallons now; drinking fountains that are not left open continuously and faucets equipped with water-saving devices that restrict flow to 3 gallons per minute.

THE PROPOSALS were developed by the environmental control commission in response to pressure from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, Division of Water Resources.

The division has directed Des Plaines and other communities that use Lake Michigan water to draft water conservation measures by November. Without such measures, the communities face fines of $10,000 and $1,000 daily until they get plans.

"I don't see any alternative" to approving the plans, said Mayor Herbert Volberding.

"We're all in agreement," said Ald. Robert M. Kraves, 6th, chairman of the environmental controls committee of the city council. "We must go through with this procedure."

The committee seemed receptive to recommending the conservation measures for approval, although it took no vote on the matter.

Crusade slated Sept. 20

Officials of the Des Plaines Community Chest are in the final stages of preparing the Sept. 20 start of their annual Crusade of Mercy drive.

Glen Helms, principal at Algonquin Junior High School, has been appointed director to fill the unexpired term of the Rev. Raymond K. Rhoads, associated ministers at the First Methodist Church, who has been transferred to a church in Morris.

James D. Ogg, chairman of the 1977-78 campaign, announced the appointments of division chairmen: Mrs. Evelyn Marrow, Stan Luta and Elmer Grabner, residential chairmen; Tom James and Donna Eskridge, industry; James Kinder and Frank Schmidt, retail and commercial; Rex Wilson and Richard Lingel, financial institutions.

Also: Cliff Boxleitner and Dr. Fred Levin, professional; Jean Branding and Jordan Minerva, hospitals and nursing homes; Betty Wayman and Claudia Slonski, clubs, organizations, churches; Martin Schaefer, municipal employees; James R. Williams, publicity; school systems, Dist. 62, Mrs. Mary Cleary; Maine West High School; Vic Giovannini; Maine North High School, Tom Holson.

Film of historical sites

"Three From Illinois," a film visit to historical sites, will be presented from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Sept. 15 at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave.

The film will show scenes from Galena, a mining and shipping center of the mid-19th century; the Springfield home of poet Vachel Lindsay, including the reading of some of his poetry; and Bishop Hill, a prairie town near Galesburg, where a Swedish sect began an experiment in Christian communes about 100 years ago. Its story is told in the paintings of Olaf Kranz.

Panel decides city heads still will 'fess up in public

Des Plaines city department heads might not like it, but will continue to answer aldermen's questions at council meetings.

Administrators had asked aldermen to quit asking questions of them in public after several of the department heads were openly criticized at council meetings. They wanted aldermen to ask questions in department offices where they could have access to their records. Six of eight department heads supported removal of the agenda item, "questioning of department heads."

However, a council committee disagreed with the department heads, and asked the council to retain the item.

THE COMMITTEE'S recommendation failed in a tie vote before the council Tuesday. That left the item on the agenda.

Later, a proposal to delete the item failed 8-7. That action also left the item on the agenda.

Several of the department heads recently were accused of negligence by aldermen for allowing the city to occupy the Des Plaines Civic Center for two years in violation of city ordinances. The violations came to light at a July council meeting during the period set aside for questioning of department heads.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, who is not a department head but prepares the agenda, said some department heads believe the questioning period has been abused.

Department heads supporting the deletion of the agenda item in a letter to aldermen were Fire Chief Donald Corey; Public Works Comr. Joseph Schwab; Building Comr. Leonard Trost; City Engineer Robert Bowen; Michael Richardson, planning and zoning director; and Jean Branding, health department director.

Department heads who did not sign the letter are Police Chief Arthur Hintz and City Comptroller Duane Blietz.

Limit special ed students, Dist. 26 asks

River Trails Dist. 26 officials will ask the support of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards in a push for legislation that would prohibit Maryville Academy high school students from attending Nipper School, a special education facility on the Maryville grounds.

The resolution, approved this week by the Dist. 26 Board of Education, asks that districts organized to serve elementary children be required to furnish programs for students under 15 only. The elementary districts would not have to provide high school programs, even if corresponding high school districts were unable to do so.

Supt. John Fridlund said legislation would put a reasonable ceiling on the age limit for elementary schools and would ensure that students generally were grouped with children of similar age in educational programs.

IF THE RESOLUTION is approved in November by the Illinois Assn. of School Boards membership, the search will begin for legislators to sponsor a state bill, Fridlund said.

The controversy over the program at Nipper, 1101 E. Gregory, Des Plaines, stems from the building's new status as a special education facility.

Dist. 26 officials turned over operation of the school this fall to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, a cooperative serving 10 local school districts.

Originally, Dist. 26 officials had hoped to provide a special education program for Maryville residents as well as students from the NSSEO elementary districts.

HOWEVER, legislation requiring all Maryville residents with emotional problems to attend Nipper before students from other districts can be admitted was approved by the Illinois House and Senate this summer and is awaiting Gov. James R. Thompson's signature.

Puccio to seek township Dem job

by TOM LEE

Democrats can fare better than they have in Maine Township, says James S. Puccio, and he is setting out to prove it.

Puccio announced his candidacy Tuesday for township Democratic committeeman, setting up at least a two-way race for the four-year term.

Incumbent Nicholas Blase, also Mayor of Niles, said two weeks ago he would seek another term. Blase has held the post 11 years. The election, open to all registered Democrats in Maine Township, is March 21.

Puccio, 28, of 559 N. 7th Ave., Des Plaines, is director of the Cook County Bureau of Vital Statistics. He has been a member of the Maine Township Democratic Organization for 10 years.

Puccio charged that Blase has failed to make Democratic potential in Maine Township bloom.

"People think there are no Democrats in Maine Township," Puccio said at a news conference. "If that were true, you would not have as many primary voters as you do."

Puccio said Democrats turn out for elections, but the GOP forges its 2-1 election victories by attracting many more independent voters.

Puccio said about as many Democrats as Republicans — roughly 13,000 each — are registered in Maine Township. In addition, approximately 40,000 voters are independents.

"With the right kind of effort," Puc-cio said, "we can elect Democrats to the legislature and develop qualified candidates, who will come forward seeking office."

Puccio cited the population flight from Chicago to suburbs as the source of Democratic potential in the Northwest suburbs. But, he said, Democrats turn Republican after a short time in the suburbs — a phenomenon that must end for Democrats to win, he said.

Blase disagreed with Puccio's pessimistic picture, and cited what he called "increases in Democratic support" since he became committeeman.

Blase cited Maine Township victories in recent years by U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, Illinois Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon, Illinois Comptroller Michael Bakalis and County Board Pres. George Dunne.

9 rangers to leave Ned Brown

Special Cook County Forest Preserve rangers are no longer needed to quell disturbances at Ned Brown Forest Preserve near Elk Grove Village and will be transferred soon to other areas, Chief Richard Sloan said.

Thirteen members of the Cook County ranger tactical squad were called to Busse Woods at Ned Brown in August to curb drug and traffic violations there.

Busse Woods is quiet now and nine of the 13 rangers can be moved to other preserves, Sloan said.

THAT WILL leave four tactical squad rangers and the normal contingent of 10 rangers to patrol Ned Brown, Sloan said.

Arrests declined dramatically since rangers raided the preserve Aug. 13 and 14 and arrested 173 persons on charges ranging from illegal drug use to parking violations.

During the last full week of August, 127 persons were arrested. Last week there were 44 arrests.

The number of troublemakers at Busse Woods has decreased greatly, Sloan said. Elderly persons and others have thanked rangers for moving violators out of the preserve, he said.

"EVEN COUNTY board commissioners are happy about it," Sloan said.

Sloan said he has personally visited Busse Woods and is satisfied that the trouble has been cleared up and will not return.

Rangers confiscated an undetermined amount of drugs as a result of the crackdown, Sloan said.

Some of the drugs are exotic and dangerous, including animal tranquilizers.

"They're selling bad stuff," Sloan said.

Other substances sold as drugs are not, he said. Rangers apprehended a girl who thought she bought marijuana but actually got a bag of ordinary weeds, Sloan said.

The ranger force was increased at Busse after a July 31 melee involving about 100 persons, some armed with knives, chains and baseball bats.

As many as four squad cars at a time have patrolled the half-mile road in Busse Woods since then, Sloan said.

Journey home a tragic end to a 'perfect day'

by BILL HILL

It had been a perfect day. The couple took a boatride on Lake Geneva, strolled leisurely among the fancy homes in the resort town and then had a pleasant dinner before heading back to Chicago.

But the evening drive brought tragedy.

Wesley Swartz, 38, was killed Monday night when his light blue Volkswagen was struck from behind on Palatine Road in Wheeling Township by a speeding auto that never stopped and still has not been found.

SWARTZ' WIFE, Mary Ann, remembers little about the tragedy, which occurred about 10:15 p.m. near the intersection of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

"I was asleep. All I remember is the car whirling around and then stopping. I looked around inside the car and I remember seeing everything was intact," she said.

"I remember being surprised that I was still in one piece. My husband looked like he was asleep," said Mrs. Swartz, 35, of 1540 W. Pratt Blvd., Chicago.

Poet nominated for freedom medal

Fred Stein, 3000 Orchard Pl., Des Plaines, has been nominated for the Medal of Freedom for patriotic poetry he has written.

Bellwood Mayor Sigel C. Davis, an acquaintance of the 71-year-old Stein, nominated him to President Carter. Stein's poetry has been published in newspapers throughout the nation. The Medal of Freedom is a civilian award presented for contributions to the nation's heritage.

By then the other automobile was out of sight.

Two witnesses told Cook County sheriff's police it was a brown Ford with a black top. Police said Tuesday they believe the car was about a 1971 model. But they have no other clues to the identity of the hit-and-run driver.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS including a nurse were at the scene immediately to offer assistance and tell police what little they knew about the speeding brown car.

"I felt good about that. All the people were very kind. One man, he had me sit in his car where it was warm. He said my husband had been knocked unconscious," Mrs. Swartz said.

"But after the (paramedics) got there I could hear the little machine. I could tell that the beats were very irregular and I knew that was a very bad sign," she said.

A few minutes later, police told Mrs. Swartz her husband was dead.

Police said Swartz, a laboratory supervisor at Billings Hospital, Chicago, probably died from a broken neck, caused by the whiplash effect of being struck from behind.

"I GUESS THE force of the accident did something to the seats — at least to his," Mrs. Swartz said. "There was a plant in a big container that we were going to plant in our backyard that was wedged behind my seat. I guess that's what saved me," she said. She was not injured.

She treasures the memories of her final hours spent with her husband.

"We have a lovely afternoon. That's the only thing that gives me some consolation. He always enjoyed going on the boat rides and walking around, looking at the homes up there. And we had a real nice dinner. It was a very perfect day.

"I hope they find the car. But that won't bring my husband back, will it?"

tricity to the apartment also has been shut off even though Mrs. Herron said she paid her electric bill. She said the tactics are attempts by the management to force her to move from the complex. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

Candlelit dinners' appeal burns out

by NANCY GOTLER

Maria Brody and her neighbors are getting used to candlelight dinners and eating meals out, but the Buffalo Grove residents aren't happy about it. It is the result of six power outages in their Lake County Strathmore subdivision in the past month, leaving half-cooked dinners in the oven and making eating by candlelight an annoying necessity. "It happens mostly at night when we're having dinner," said Mrs. Brody, 871 Shady Grove Ln. "So now we keep a full supply of candles and flashlight batteries in the house." BUT FOR SOME residents, the malfunctioning electrical cables, which have been out of order from three to seven hours, are more than an inconvenience. Two weeks ago burned-out cables affected telephone service in the area for seven hours, leaving Dr. Jerry Seckler, 870 Silver Rock Ln., cut off from his patients. Gordon Baer, a Commonwealth Edison representative, said that power outage was caused by lightning striking underground electrical cables. But the five other blackouts, the latest Sunday night, are the result of deteriorating cables, he said, 50,000 feet of which have been replaced in the neighborhood during the past year. "USUALLY CABLES last 50 to 100 years," he said. "But this was some of the earliest underground cables of this type ever used." They were installed eight years ago and Baer said the replacement has cost "tens of thousands of dollars." He would not be more specific about the price. He said as sections of cable fail they are replaced, but that until they malfunction nothing will be done. Meanwhile, residents of the area wait for what they think inevitably will be another power failure. "We're afraid to go out and leave the air conditioning on because if the power goes out and comes back on while we're gone it can really blow the unit," Mrs. Brody said. AND DR. SECKLER and his wife, Madelyn, are considering buying a $1,000 private generator. But most of all they fear the problem will persist this winter. "If we have a winter as severe as the last one, every time this happens we'll be without heat for hours," Mrs. Brody said. "With the high cost of electric bills we think we should have better service than that."

Beer issue comes to head early

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The Fourth of July is 10 months away, but already the battle lines are being drawn for the fight over who will get the beer concession at Rolling Meadows' next celebration. The American Legion again is threatening not to march in the parade unless it can operate the lucrative beer booth. Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who as liquor commissioner will decide who operates the booth, said the booth may be more trouble than it's worth and is talking about doing away with it. And the city's chamber of commerce, which has operated the booth the past two years, is sitting back and waiting. WILL HOWES, commander of American Legion Post 1251, and other legionnaires believe that Meyer treated the legion unfairly this year when he granted the chamber the license for the booth. Meyer awarded the license to the chamber in February. He did not heed a recommendation from the Fourth of July Committee that it be withdrawn and the legion allowed to run the booth. This time the legion got its application in early. Two weeks after this summer's celebration, the organization applied for the 1978 license. Howes said he expected an answer by the end of August. But again the chamber was one step ahead of the legion. It got its 1978 application in first, one week before July 4, 1977. MEYER SAID he'll wait until after the first of the year to grant the license because he got more than one application. But Howes doesn't believe it. "Are you sure the chamber put the application in, or did Meyer?" he asked. Harry O'Brien, executive director of the chamber, confirmed that the group got its application in before the Fourth. "We sent it in way back when because of the arguing over this year's booth," he said. In 1976 the organization made about $800. Howes said he believes Meyer always will favor the chamber or some other business-oriented group over the legion. BUT MEYER SAID he simply granted the license to the first group that asked for it. He said the Fourth committee had no authority to decide who should get the booth. Win Wittig, Fourth of July chairwoman, said although she knew she did not have the authority to grant a liquor license, she thought it was her committee's job to choose the partici-

Women beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moers with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

BUT OUTSIDE in the streets of Washington, and in Panama, small groups of antitreaty protesters staged

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heimann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heimann (Continued on Page 3)

Planner sought for $18,240 post

The Village of Wheeling is seeking a full-time planner to replace a part-time planning consultant service. The full-time position could cost the village up to $18,240 a year.

William Lewis, village financial director, Tuesday told trustees it would be more economical to hire a full-time planner for a salary of between $18,000 to $20,000 than to continue with the consulting firm.

The firm, Harland Bartholomew and Associates, Northbrook, was hired to serve as planner after the resignation in July of Thomas Markus, former assistant village manager, who previously handled planning. The service was to be discontinued when a permanent planner was hired.

"I feel it's in the best interests of the village to seek out a full-time planner. Taxes are high and I can't justify to the taxpayers paying $18,000 a year for a part-time planner," he said.

UNDER THE agreement with Harland Bartholomew, the village pays $29 an hour or $350 a week for planning consultant to spend 12 hours reviewing development plans before the village. Lewis said that if the practice continues for a full year, Wheeling would be paying more than $18,000 for part-time planning services.

"I don't know how long this can drag on. We could have three times more service for $1,000 more," he said.

Larry Oppenheimer, village director of public works, said the staff is in need of more planning help.

"There are a lot of developments coming into town. We also have Milwaukee Avenue (downtown redevelopment). We have a $20,000 study and nobody to carry it forward. We don't have any staff," he said.

LEWIS SAID Harland Bartholomew agreed to work with the new planner during the first few weeks to ease the transition.

Oppenheimer said there is too much (Continued on Page 5)

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

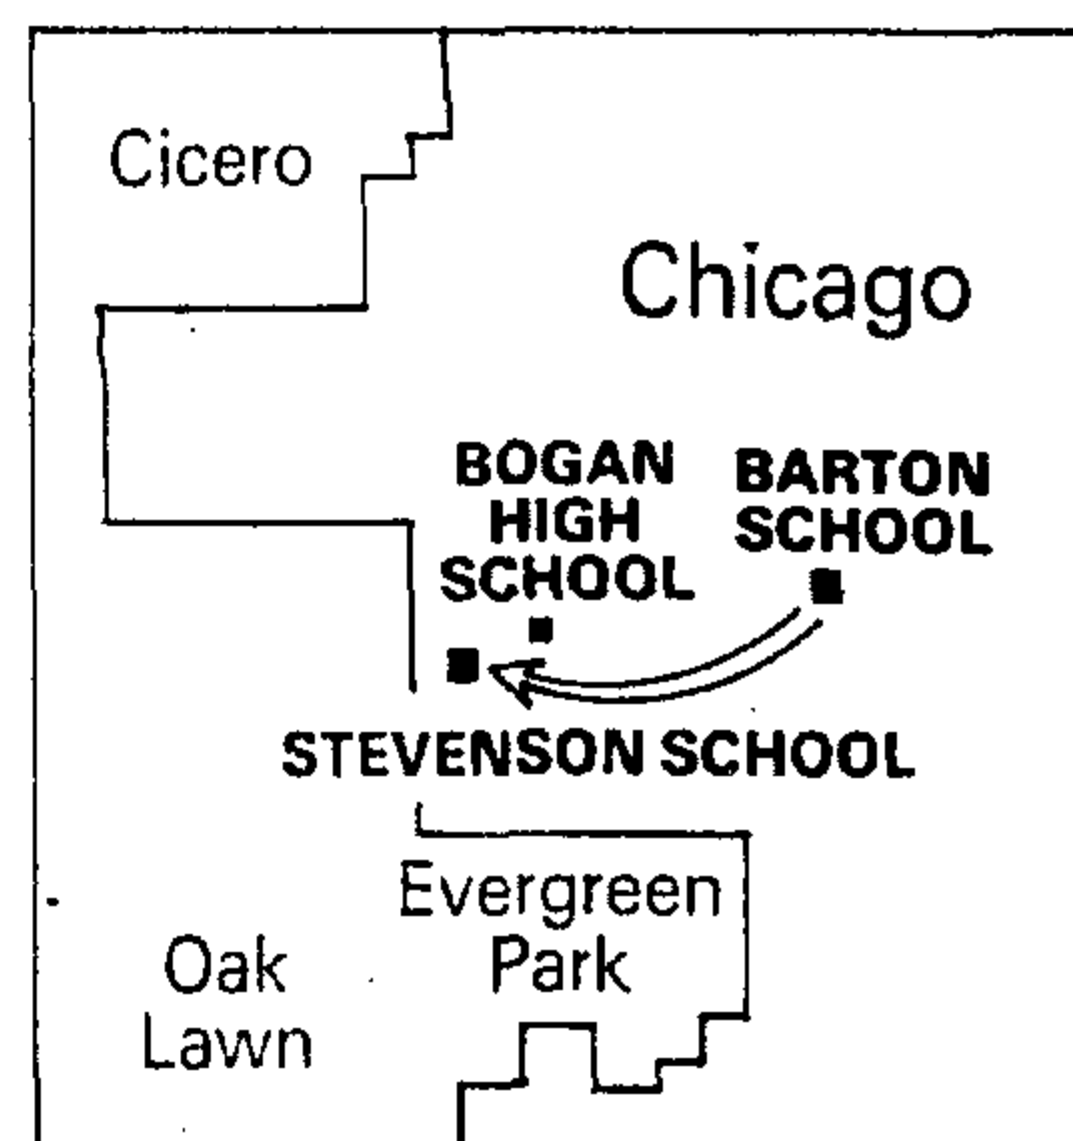

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

MRS. HERRON SAID other black families live at Arrowhead but she is not close friends with any of them. She said she believes the management wants her to leave because she has applied for low-income housing assistance.

Mrs. Herron said Amdur-Katz took over management of the complex early this year but she had no problems with the firm until April, when her lease expired.

"I never had any problems with the old management," she said.

Mrs. Herron said she has contacted several groups including Operation PUSH, in an effort to help her get the problems corrected until she can move. She said Wednesday she was still waiting to hear from the groups.

And until she does, Mrs. Herron said there is little she can do until she can find another place to live.

"I want to move as soon as I can," she said.

Full-time planner sought for village

work to be handled by a part-time planner.

"The guy's here 12 hours a week and he just can't keep up with it," he said.

Trustees authorized Lewis to begin a search for a planner after the finance director assured them there were funds in the budget to cover the salary. He said former Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle already had received about 40 resumes from applicants for the position.

Village board wrapup

Self-service gas station law passed

An ordinance permitting self-service gas stations in the village Tuesday was approved unanimously by the Wheeling Village Board.

The ordinance, proposed by Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepen, will take effect in two weeks. Service stations seeking the permits are Standard Oil, Mobil Oil, Citgo, Shell Oil, Martin and Pi-Lo. The stations must receive permission from both the state fire marshal and village officials before starting self-service operations.

Village ordinances previously prohibited anyone except the service station owner or his authorized employees from dispensing gasoline or other volatile liquids. Koepen said he sees no reason to prohibit self-service operations.

The ordinance also includes a provision requiring service stations to advertise the full prices of gasoline, including sales tax. Many service station owners post the pump prices, but they show the price of the gasoline and tax separately.

Bracke to be acting police chief

Wheeling Police Lt. Ted Bracke will serve as acting police chief until the appointment of a new village manager.

Gregory J. Peters, acting village manager, Tuesday told trustees he believes Bracke should be reappointed acting chief on Sept. 16, when Chief M.O. Horcher retires. Horcher appointed Bracke to serve as acting chief during his vacation, which continues through his retirement date.

In a memo to the board, Peters said there "could conceivably be a problem with the validity" of Horcher's appointment after the Sept. 16 retirement date. Under village law, only the village manager has the power to hire a police chief, although the police chief may select an acting chief to serve in his absence. The police chief, however, may not appoint his successor.

Peters said Bracke should continue as acting chief until appointment of a new manager "to alleviate any problems with the lines of responsibility and authority within the police department and to maintain the status quo."

Experienced manager sought

The village board Tuesday said it will seek a manager with 3 to 5 years of managerial experience to replace former Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle, who resigned last month following a confrontation with Wheeling Village Pres. William Hein and several trustees.

The board said it will seek applicants with bachelor's degrees and preferably master's degrees. The salary will be between $26,000 to $28,000 plus a village-owned car and other benefits.

9 rangers to leave Ned Brown

Special Cook County Forest Preserve rangers are no longer needed to quell disturbances at Ned Brown Forest Preserve near Elk Grove Village and will be transferred soon to other areas, Chief Richard Sloan said.

Thirteen members of the Cook County ranger tactical squad were called to Busse Woods at Ned Brown in August to curb drug and traffic violations there.

Busse Woods is quiet now and nine of the 13 rangers can be moved to other preserves, Sloan said.

THAT WILL leave four tactical squad rangers and the normal contingent of 10 rangers to patrol Ned Brown, Sloan said.

Arrests declined dramatically since rangers raided the preserve Aug. 13 and 14 and arrested 173 persons on charges ranging from illegal drug use to parking violations.

During the last full week of August, 127 persons were arrested. Last week there were 44 arrests.

The number of troublemakers at Busse Woods has decreased greatly, Sloan said. Elderly persons and others have thanked rangers for moving violators out of the preserve, he said.

"EVEN COUNTY board commissioners are happy about it," Sloan said.

Sloan said he has personally visited Busse Woods and is satisfied that the trouble has been cleared up and will not return.

Rangers confiscated an undetermined amount of drugs as a result of the crackdown, Sloan said.

Some of the drugs are exotic and dangerous, including animal tranquilizers.

"They're selling bad stuff," Sloan said.

Other substances sold as drugs are not, he said. Rangers apprehended a girl who thought she bought marijuana but actually got a bag of ordinary weeds, Sloan said.

The ranger force was increased at Busse after a July 31 melee involving about 100 persons, some armed with knives, chains and baseball bats.

As many as four squad cars at a time have patrolled the half-mile road in Busse Woods since then, Sloan said.

Village zoning scandal suit delayed

A hearing on a lawsuit filed by Wheeling against officials and firms involved with payoffs in the 1974 zoning shakedown scandal was continued Tuesday until Oct. 31.

The suit, filed in August 1976, seeks $1 million in damages and a return of all bribe money received by the officials in the zoning scandal. The village also seeks restitution from the firms who paid bribes to the officials for favorable village zoning decisions and other favors.

The hearing was continued at the request of Circuit Court Judge John F. Hechinger so he can finish reviewing legal briefs in the case.

The suit names James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman; William Bleber, former village building commissioners; and William Hart, former village trustee.

Firms named in the suit are Zale Construction Co., Arlington Heights; Harmony Builders, Wheeling; Meister-Neiberg Co., Wheeling; Wickes Corp., Wheeling and Ben Pekin, Corp., Wheeling.

The village also is seeking $25,000 from the Ohio Casualty Insurance Co., which bonded the village officials for "honest and faithful performance of duties."

Brown to seek sheriff's post

Thomas Brown, a lieutenant and 12-year veteran of the Lake County Sheriff's Dept., has announced his candidacy for sheriff.

Brown, of Gurnee, has taken a leave of absence from the department to seek the Republican nomination.

With a motto of "Your neighborhood sheriff," Brown wants to start a program that would make patrolling deputies better known in the communities they patrol.

The deputies would spend most of their time in communities rather than on the highway, Brown said.

A greater emphasis on narcotics enforcement also is proposed by Brown, who helped form the sheriff's narcotics division in 1970.

Brown has headed the narcotics division and the investigative division. He currently is watch commander of the uniform division.

"It's been almost 12 years since we've had a sheriff elected from the department. It's good to have a man that knows the office," Brown said.

Lake County Board member Harry Robin also has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for sheriff, and Democratic incumbent E. J. LaMagdeleine has announced he will run for re-election.

Journey home a tragic end to a 'perfect day'

by BILL HILL

It had been a perfect day. The couple took a boatride on Lake Geneva, strolled leisurely among the fancy homes in the resort town and then had a pleasant dinner before heading back to Chicago.

But the evening drive brought tragedy.

Wesley Swartz, 38, was killed Monday night when his light blue Volkswagen was struck from behind on Palatine Road in Wheeling Township by a speeding auto that never stopped and still has not been found.

SWARTZ' WIFE, Mary Ann, remembers little about the tragedy, which occurred about 10:15 p.m. near the intersection of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

"I was asleep. All I remember is the car whirling around and then stopping. I looked around inside the car and I remember seeing everything was intact," she said.

"I remember being surprised that I was still in one piece. My husband looked like he was asleep," said Mrs. Swartz, 35, of 1340 W. Pratt Blvd., Chicago.

By then the other automobile was out of sight.

Two witnesses told Cook County sheriff's police it was a brown Ford with a black top. Police said Tuesday they believe the car was about a 1971 model. But they have no other clues to the identity of the hit-and-run driver.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS including a nurse were at the scene immediately to offer assistance and tell police what little they knew about the speeding brown car.

"I felt good about that. All the people were very kind. One man, he had me sit in his car where it was warm. He said my husband had been knocked unconscious," Mrs. Swartz said.

"But after the (paramedics) got there I could hear the little machine. I could tell that the beats were very irregular and I knew that was a very bad sign," she said.

A few minutes later, police told Mrs. Swartz her husband was dead.

Police said Swartz, a laboratory supervisor at Billings Hospital, Chicago, probably died from a broken neck, caused by the whiplash effect of being struck from behind.

"I GUESS THE force of the accident did something to the seats — at least to his," Mrs. Swartz said. "There was a plant in a big container that we were going to plant in our backyard that was wedged behind my seat. I guess that's what saved me," she said. She was not injured.

She treasures the memories of her final hours spent with her husband.

"We have a lovely afternoon. That's the only thing that gives me some consolation. He always enjoyed going on the boat rides and walking around, looking at the homes up there. And we had a real nice dinner. It was a very perfect day.

"I hope they find the car. But that won't bring my husband back, will it?"

Lower speed on Higgins urged to slow truckers

A village trustee wants to slow down truckers speeding through Hoffman Estates.

Trustee William Cowin has called Higgins Road a "truckers' raceway" after a Hoffman Estates woman was killed Tuesday when her car was hit by a semi trailer truck at the Barrington Road intersection.

Nancy L. Garst, 35, of 1830 Stockton Dr., was turning left on a green arrow from Higgins Road when she was hit by a truck driven by James H. Tinnell, 35, of Edmier Trucking Co., said Sgt. Donald Martin, of the Hoffman Estates police.

WITNESSES TOLD police the truck was going west on Higgins Road at about 60 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The truck then swerved and hit a car driven by Roy E. Erickson, 30, 1318 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, police said.

Tinnell was charged with running a red light, Martin said, and the accident report will be turned over to the state's attorney's office for possible criminal charges.

Erickson and Tinnell were not hurt. It was the third traffic fatality in Hoffman Estates this year.

"WE ARE POTENTIAL victims of the same kind of accident," Cowin said. "It's about time we declared war against these oversized speedsters."

He suggested that the village ask the state to post a lower speed limit for truckers on Higgins Road. "They know they can't stop so they hit the horn and go right on through," he said.

33-hour effort produces initial Dist. 63 teacher pact

It's classes today as usual in East Maine Dist. 63.

Twelve days of suspense over a threatened teachers' strike ended late Wednesday when negotiators emerged from 33 hours of nearly continuous bargaining with a tentative two-year teachers' contract.

No details of the pact were being released, pending a mass meeting of teachers tentatively set for after school today at Gemini Junior High School in Niles.

THE FINAL, marathon bargaining

session began Tuesday morning and dragged on until 7 p.m. Wednesday with only two breaks — a two-hour interruption Tuesday night for a teachers' union rally, and a four-hour recess to allow the eight negotiating teachers to attend the district's first half-day of classes Wednesday morning.

About half of the districts' 300 teachers attended the union rally Tuesday night, heard union negotiators declare the talks in a "precarious position" and authorized union leaders to call a strike if talks became hopelessly bogged down.

But board of education member Jeanette Oestreich said Wednesday the teachers' negotiating team never informed the board of the strike authorization.

"They never told us, and they never waved a flag in our faces," Mrs. Oestreich said. "The negotiating team did not verbally use strike leverage. Maybe they never reached that point."

THE THREAT of a strike nevertheless was present, with the memory of a three-day teachers' walkout in November 1975 and a series of public warnings that began Aug. 26, when the teachers' union declared the district in a "crisis" situation.

Wary union negotiators appeared at the end of their rope Wednesday afternoon, complaining they had seen little of board negotiators during the lengthy session. Each side was sequestered in its own room in the district administration center, with communication only when one side had a new proposal to present the other.

But six hours later, both sides apparently had made peace with a tentative settlement that Mrs. Oestreich said will dig the financially troubled district deeper into the red but will give "fair salaries" to teachers.

Teachers' top priorities in the talks were a wage and fringe benefit package and a policy covering dismissal of tenured teachers as the district's enrollment declines.

1975 strike causes nightmares

There was dread and a touch of exasperation in the voice of Sharon Polisky Wednesday as she recalled the three-day teachers' strike that racked East Maine Dist. 63 two years ago.

"I don't want to go through another nightmare," said Mrs. Polisky, 9112 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, and an active parent at Mark Twain School.

The nightmare Mrs. Polisky remembers is the rift that developed between striking and nonstriking teachers at Twain during that bitter strike in November 1975. And she does not relish the thought of reopening wounds that just now are beginning to heal.

SIMILAR MEMORIES, kept worried parents Wednesday waiting for word from the district's administration center, where weary negotiators huddled after 30 hours of nearly continuous bargaining, itching for showers as well as a settlement that would quash a threatened teachers' strike.

"During the last strike, there was a breakdown in discipline because the kids saw their school in chaos," mused one parent whose three children attend Nathans School in Des Plaines. "It's bad for the kids, and if you're a teacher, you should be for kids first."

And Marge DePrima, former president of the Apollo Junior High School PTA, recalled the shattered friendships that were the product of the last walkout and flatly declared, "Our district cannot take another strike."

Like many in the district, Mrs. DePrima said the district's 300 teachers deserve more money than the $10,105 currently earned by beginning faculty members.

"But if the district doesn't have it, how can teachers get it?" she asked, echoing the cries of the board of education that declining enrollments and dwindling state aid are bankrupting the school treasury.

OTHERS SAY that because teachers have the opportunity to earn more money during the summer months, the average salary in Dist. 63 — $13,000 or $14,000 — is already high enough.

"Teachers are making more money in five and a half or six months than I make in a year," said Cyril Winn, 9515 Sumac, Des Plaines, "and then they get days off for Lincoln's birthday and every other kind of birthday besides."

Not that Winn envies teachers their jobs.

"I realize teachers have a problem with discipline with kids today," said Winn, father of three grown children and grandfather and godfather of several others. "I wish they'd get $25 grand a year. But I've been in unions all my life, and when I went on strike I didn't hurt kids. If teachers strike, kids don't have a chance."

FOR SOME PARENTS, however, even the prospect of a strike doesn't shake their belief that teachers deserve more than they're getting.

"Being a teacher isn't easy," said Donna Erickson, 9543 Sumac, whose sixth-grade daughter attends nearby Nathans School. "I wouldn't be thrilled about a strike, but I wouldn't be too upset either. My daughter is good in school and she's nice to have around, so it doesn't make any difference."

"I wouldn't be pleased if they're out a long time, but that's not likely."

THE GEORGE Kyprianidis family has lived at Brandenberry Park East apartments in Arlington Heights for four years, but now must leave for no apparent reason. Village officials are investigating why they were given only one week's notice that their lease will not be renewed. From left, are Nia, Billy, George, Mario and Dino.

Family upset by order to move from apartment

by BILL HILL

The two-bedroom apartment is slightly crowded, but for four years it has been home for the George Kyprianidis family.

However, George, his wife, Nia, and their three boys have been told by the management at Brandenberry Park East Apartments that they must move. They have been charged double the normal rent since Aug. 31 when their lease expired.

It is upsetting for the young family to move now, especially when the three boys are happily settled in school and the two-bedroom apartment is all they can afford.

Brandenberry has refused to tell Kyprianidis why the lease is not being renewed. Because Kyprianidis said he was given no explanation and only one week's notice, Arlington Heights officials are investigating whether the Brandenberry management is violating housing discrimination laws. The apartments are located at 2224 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

"They want to throw me out before I can find a new place to live. They don't want to give no reason cause they'll be automatically guilty," Kyprianidis said.

KYPRIANIDIS SAID he can only guess why Brandenberry refuses to renew his lease. One of his theories is that they are trying to weed out tenants with children. He said he knows of other families that in the past year have not been allowed to renew their leases.

Kyprianidis also said he thinks the management of Brandenberry may be retaliating against him for complaining to village health officials last winter about a lack of heat, a broken water tank, poor water pressure, broken drapery rods and doors and the need for new paint on the walls.

Brandenberry officials Wednesday refused to comment, except to say they plan to pressure Kyprianidis as a "holdover" tenant, meaning they will seek damages, legal fees and double rent for every day the Greek family remains in the apartment.

Kyprianidis' lease on the $229-a-month apartment expired Aug. 31. It was not until Aug. 21 that he received a letter informing him he could extend his lease for one month, but that it could not be renewed.

"I say to them, why not? I say I need more time," Kyprianidis said. "Now I have to move anyway cause they're gonna be on my back. You make trouble out you go," said the 33-year-old employee of O'Hare Metal

Co., Elk Grove Village. DANIEL TARRY, environmental health officer for Arlington Heights, sent a letter to Brandenberry officials Sept. 2 to inform them the village was investigating the circumstances around the sudden refusal to renew Kyprianidis' lease. Tarry also asked for detailed reasons for that decision.

Brandenberry officials have not responded to Tarry, but the next day Kyprianidis received a letter saying that "nothing the village says or does short of a court order will relieve you of the full liability you have for illegally holding our apartment, including all damages, legal fees and double rent for every day you remain."

Kyprianidis said Wednesday he hopes to move his family by the end of September. But he does not know what to do about the "double rent" charges and he continues to ask for an explanation for Brandenberry's refusal to renew his lease.

"It's because I opened my mouth. It's because I complained that they won't paint the apartment, that there's no heat, that there's no hot water. One of my boys has chronic bronchitis. We have to have heat," Kyprianidis said.

Tarry said that it is becoming apparent that there are many tenants of Arlington Heights apartment complexes that are "up against the wall." The over-all vacancy rate at Arlington Heights apartments has dropped below 5 per cent, resulting in a seller's market, he said.

"WE FREQUENTLY get complaints like this one, not just from Brandenberry," Tarry said. "The people always say, 'Please don't use my name because the management will retaliate.' I always thought that was a little hard to believe. But now I think maybe there's some validity to it, that maybe there is retaliation, possibly in the form of not renewing the lease," he said.

"What strikes me about this case is that here is a man and his family, they've been there four years. What happened all of a sudden? They deserve a reason and he should have been entitled to at least a 30-day notice," Tarry said.

Village officials jumped into another housing controversy in April when the Twelve Oaks Apartments, 1126 S. Wilke Rd., announced plans to charge $15 extra a month for each child living in the complex. The village board passed an ordinance prohibiting such a policy and the plan was dropped.

Candlelit dinners' appeal burns out

by NANCY GOTLER

Marla Brody and her neighbors are getting used to candlelight dinners and eating meals out, but the Buffalo Grove residents aren't happy about it. It is the result of six power outages in their Lake County Strathmore subdivision in the past month, leaving half-cooked dinners in the oven and making eating by candlelight an annoying necessity.

"It happens mostly at night when we're having dinner," said Mrs. Brody, 871 Shady Grove Ln. "So now we keep a full supply of candles and flashlight batteries in the house."

BUT FOR SOME residents, the malfunctioning electrical cables, which have been out of order from three to seven hours, are more than an inconvenience.

Two weeks ago burned-out cables affected telephone service in the area for seven hours, leaving Dr. Jerry Seckler, 870 Silver Rock Ln., cut off from his patients.

son representative, said that power outage was caused by lightning striking underground electrical cables.

But the five other blackouts, the latest Sunday night, are the result of deteriorating cables, he said, 50,000 feet of which have been replaced in the neighborhood during the past year.

"USUALLY CABLES last 50 to 100 years," he said. "But this was some of the earliest underground cables of this type ever used." They were installed eight years ago and Baer said the replacement has cost "tens of thousands of dollars." He would not be more specific about the price.

He said as sections of cable fail they are replaced, but that until they malfunction nothing will be done.

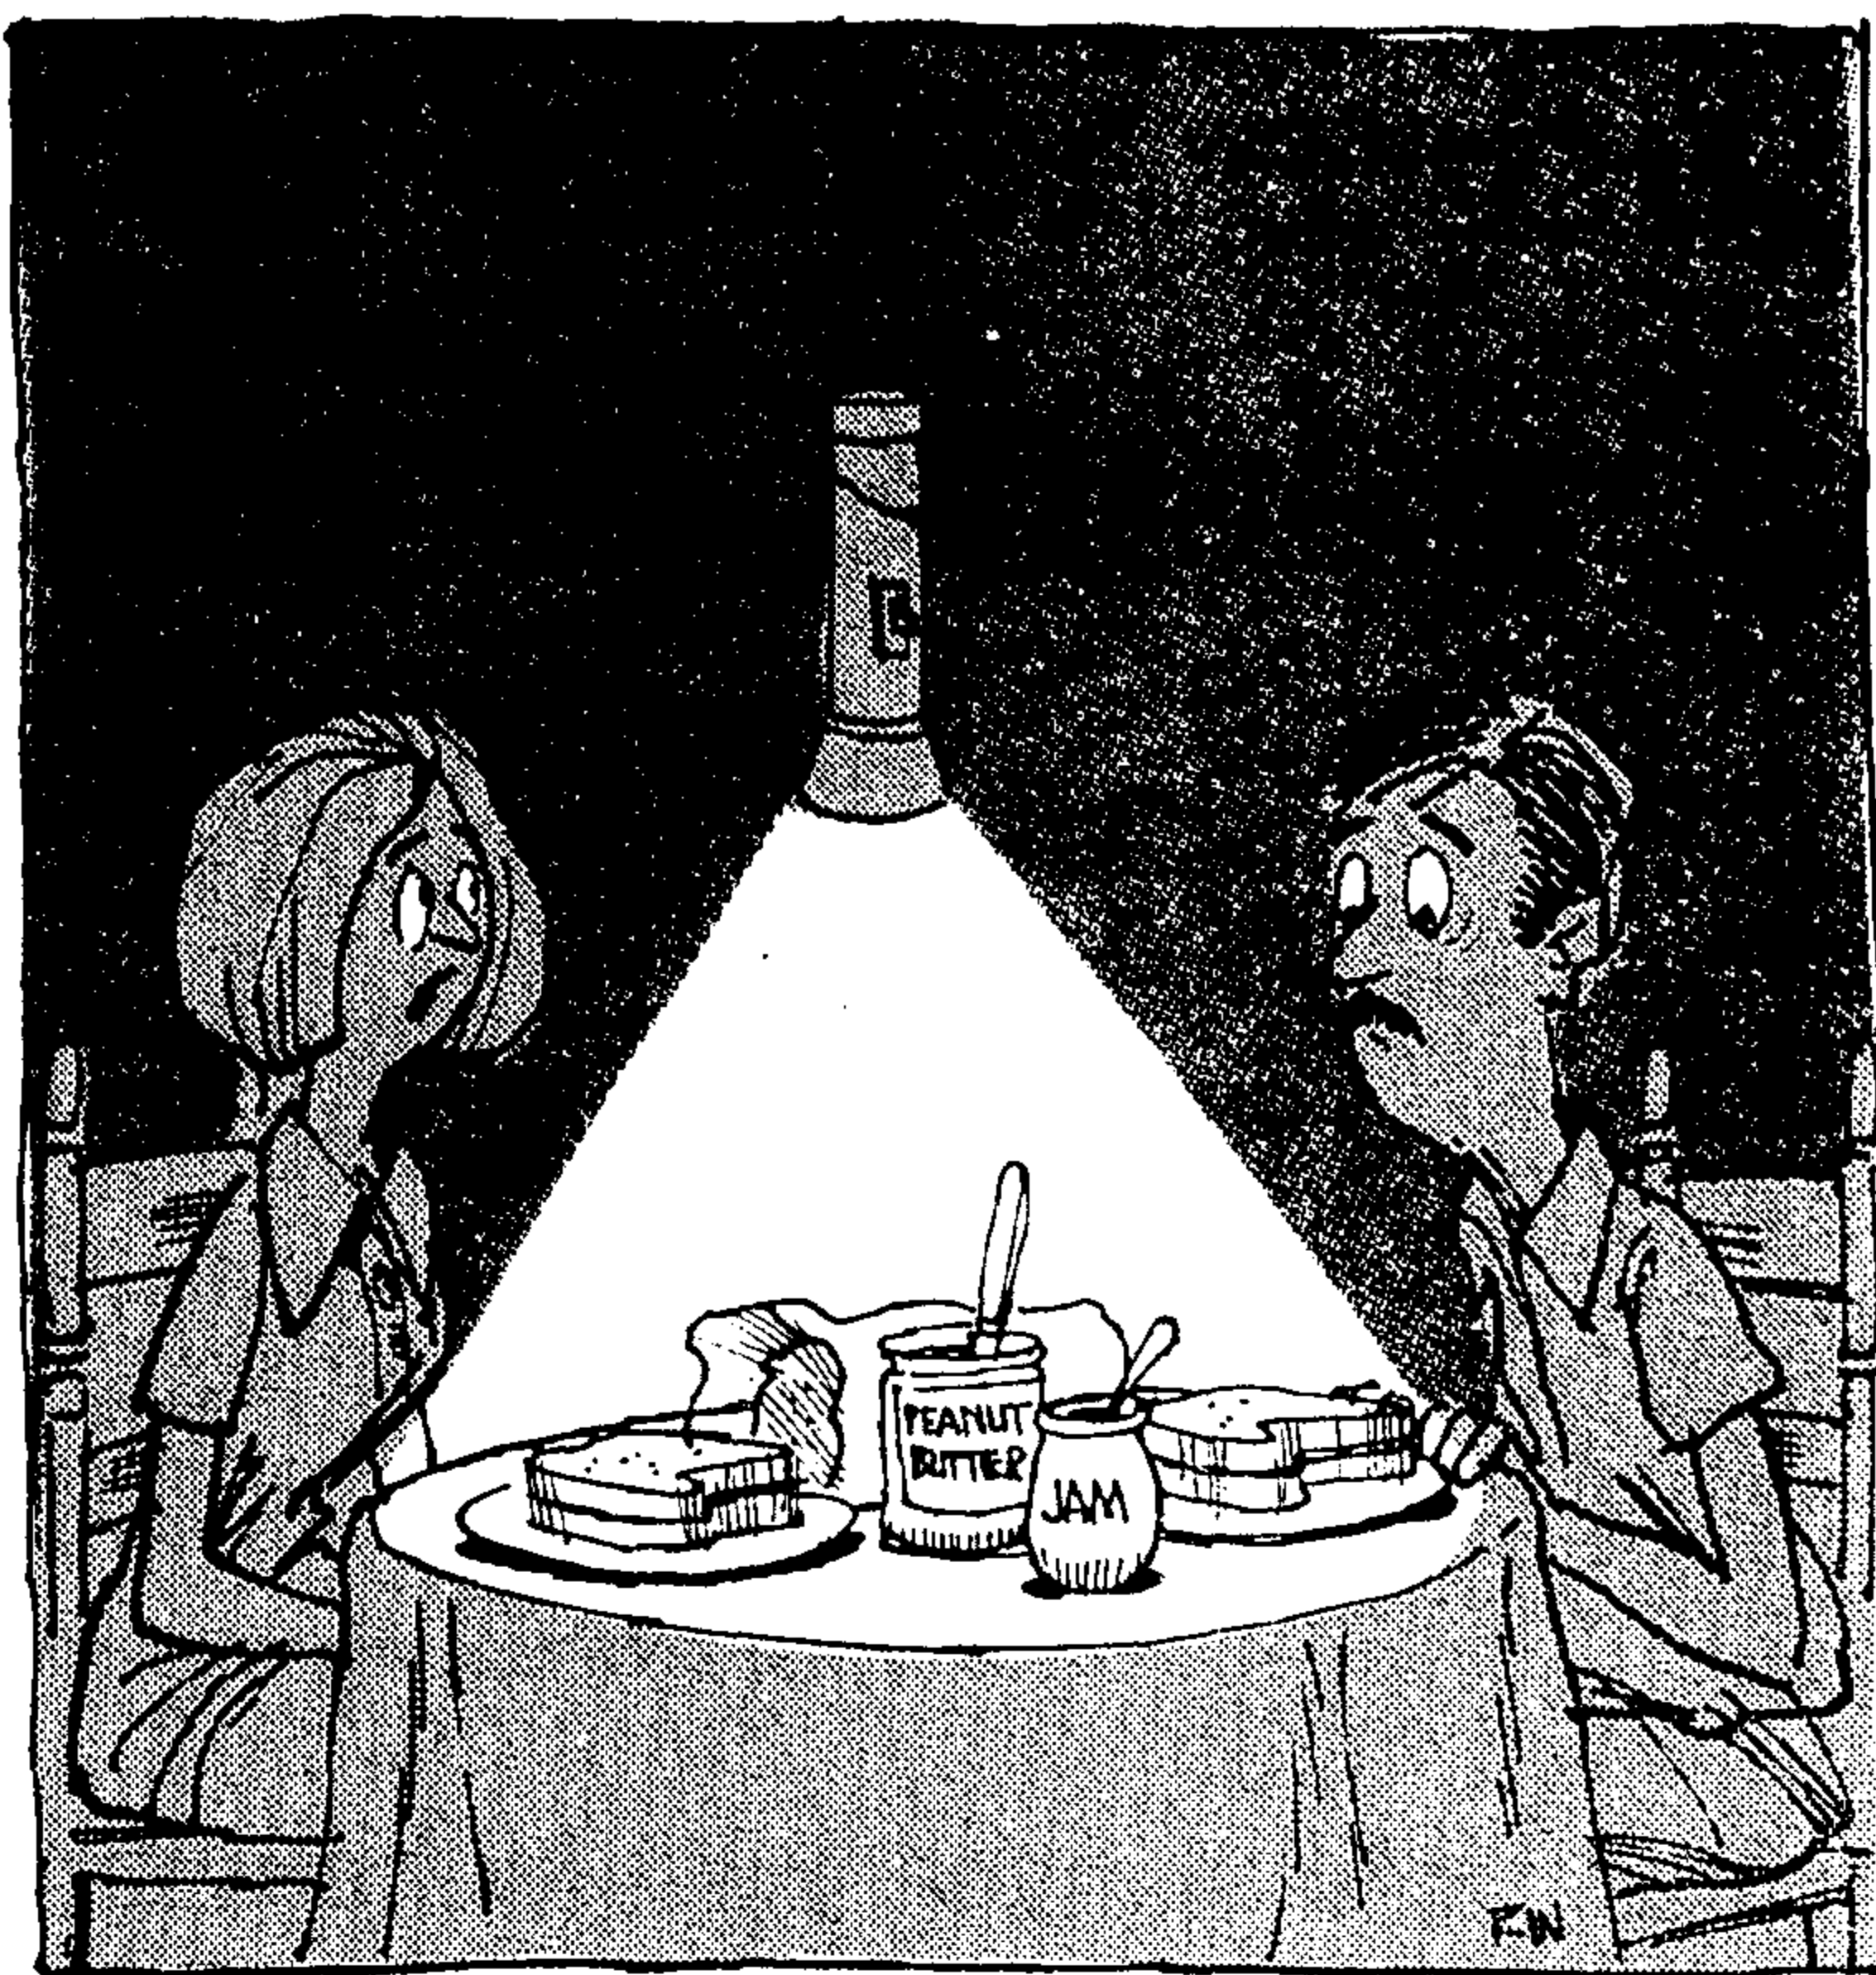

Meanwhile, residents of the area wait for what they think inevitably will be another power failure.

"We're afraid to go out and leave the air conditioning on because if the power goes out and comes back on while we're gone it can really blow the unit," Mrs. Brody said.

AND DR. SECKLER and his wife, Madelyn, are considering buying a $1,000 private generator.

But most of all they fear the problem will persist this winter.

"If we have a winter as severe as the last one, every time this happens we'll be without heat for hours," Mrs. Brody said. "With the high cost of electric bills we think we should have better service than that."

Beer issue comes to head early

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The Fourth of July is 10 months away, but already the battle lines are being drawn for the fight over who will get the beer concession at Rolling Meadows' next celebration.

The American Legion again is threatening not to march in the parade unless it can operate the lucrative beer booth.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who as liquor commissioner will decide who operates the booth, said the booth may be more trouble than it's worth and is talking about doing away with it.

And the city's chamber of commerce, which has operated the booth the past two years, is sitting back and waiting.

WILL HOWES, commander of American Legion Post 1251, and other legionnaires believe that Meyer treated the legion unfairly this year when he granted the chamber the license for the booth.

Meyer awarded the license to the chamber in February. He did not heed a recommendation from the Fourth of July Committee that it be withdrawn and the legion allowed to run the booth.

This time the legion got its application in early. Two weeks after this summer's celebration, the organization applied for the 1978 license. Howes said he expected an answer by the end of August.

But again the chamber was one step ahead of the legion. It got its 1978 application in first, one week before July 4, 1977.

MEYER SAID he'll wait until after the first of the year to grant the license because he got more than one application. But Howes doesn't believe it.

"Are you sure the chamber put the application in, or did Meyer?" he asked.

Harry O'Brien, executive director of the chamber, confirmed that the group got its application in before the Fourth.

"We sent it in way back when because of the arguing over this year's booth," he said. In 1976 the organization made about $800.

Howes said he believes Meyer always will favor the chamber or some other business-oriented group over the legion.

BUT MEYER SAID he simply granted the license to the first group that asked for it. He said the Fourth committee had no authority to decide who should get the booth.

Win Wittig, Fourth of July chairwoman, said although she knew she did not have the authority to grant a liquor license, she thought it was her committee's job to choose the participants.

Women beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

Related story on Page 9

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

JUDGE ARCHIE Simonson of Madison, Wis. puts a round on election day.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

BUT OUTSIDE in the streets of Washington, and in Panama, small groups of antitreaty protesters staged

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the United States the right to defend the canal's "neutrality" after that. They would replace the 1903 accord negotiated by President Theodore Roosevelt as a triumph of his big-stick diplomacy and the "manifest destiny" policies of that era.

American conservatives have already begun a vociferous campaign to

Dodge firm cited for lack of tags

by JOHN N. FRANK

Grand Spaulding Dodge has failed to purchase $1,215 worth of Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers, leaving itself open to fines totaling as much as $46,500, village officials said.

Using a new computer crackdown program this summer, Buffalo Grove discovered Grand Spaulding had not purchased 1977 vehicle stickers for 93 cars it registered with the state at its Buffalo Grove address, 935 W. Dundee Rd., said Sgt. Art Voigt of the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. The cars are involved in Grand Spaulding's auto leasing operation. Grand Spaulding also has a Chicago showroom.

The village clerk informed Grand Spaulding of the problem in a July 15 letter, Voigt said. But William Brown, director of Grand Spaulding's leasing operations replied that the 93 cars were either not kept in Buffalo Grove or were no longer being leased therefore, not requiring village stickers.

Purchasing stickers for cars Brown said were no longer being leased would cost $285 while purchasing stickers for the cars Brown said were not kept in the village would cost $930 bringing the total cost of stickers involved to $1,215.

AN AUG. 5 opinion by Village Atty.

William Raysa, contends stickers must be purchased for the autos whether or not they are kept in Buffalo Grove. Brown was sent a copy of the opinion.

State law provides for a village to require a vehicle sticker on cars which have the village as a base, the attorney wrote. Since Grand Spaulding listed its Buffalo Grove facility with the state for the autos in question, "the burden of proof is upon Grand Spaulding to prove that a Buffalo Grove license is not required," Raysa wrote.

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

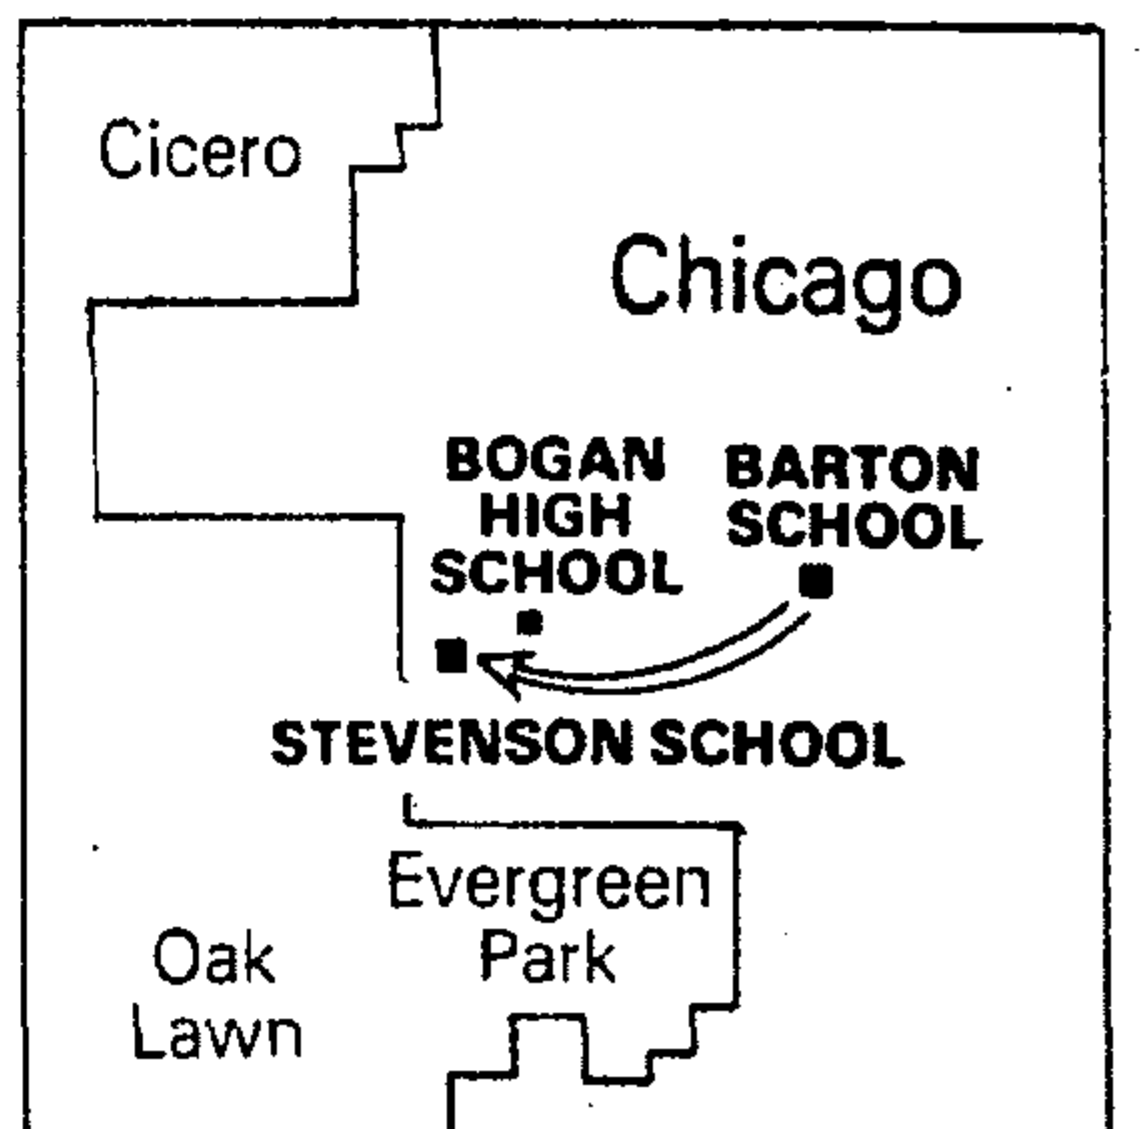

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Too many candlelight dinners burns out their appeal

by NANCY GOTLER

Marla Brody and her neighbors are getting used to candlelight dinners and eating meals out, but the Buffalo Grove residents aren't happy about it.

It is the result of six power outages in their Lake County Strathmore subdivision in the past month, leaving half-cooked dinners in the oven and making eating by candlelight an annoying necessity.

"It happens mostly at night when we're having dinner," said Mrs. Brody, 871 Shady Grove Ln. "So now we keep a full supply of candles and flashlight batteries in the house."

BUT FOR SOME residents, the malfunctioning electrical cables, which have been out of order from three to seven hours, are more than an inconvenience.

Two weeks ago burned-out cables affected telephone service in the area for seven hours, leaving Dr. Jerry Seckler, 870 Silver Rock Ln., cut off from his patients.

Gordon Baer, a Commonwealth Edison representative, said that power outage was caused by lightning striking underground electrical cables.

But the five other blackouts, the latest Sunday night, are the result of deteriorating cables, he said, 50,000 feet of which have been replaced in the neighborhood during the past year.

"USUALLY CABLES last 50 to 100 years," he said. "But this was some of the earliest underground cables of this type ever used." They were installed eight years ago and Baer said the replacement has cost "tens of thousands of dollars." He would not be more specific about the price.

He said as sections of cable fail they are replaced, but that until they malfunction nothing will be done.

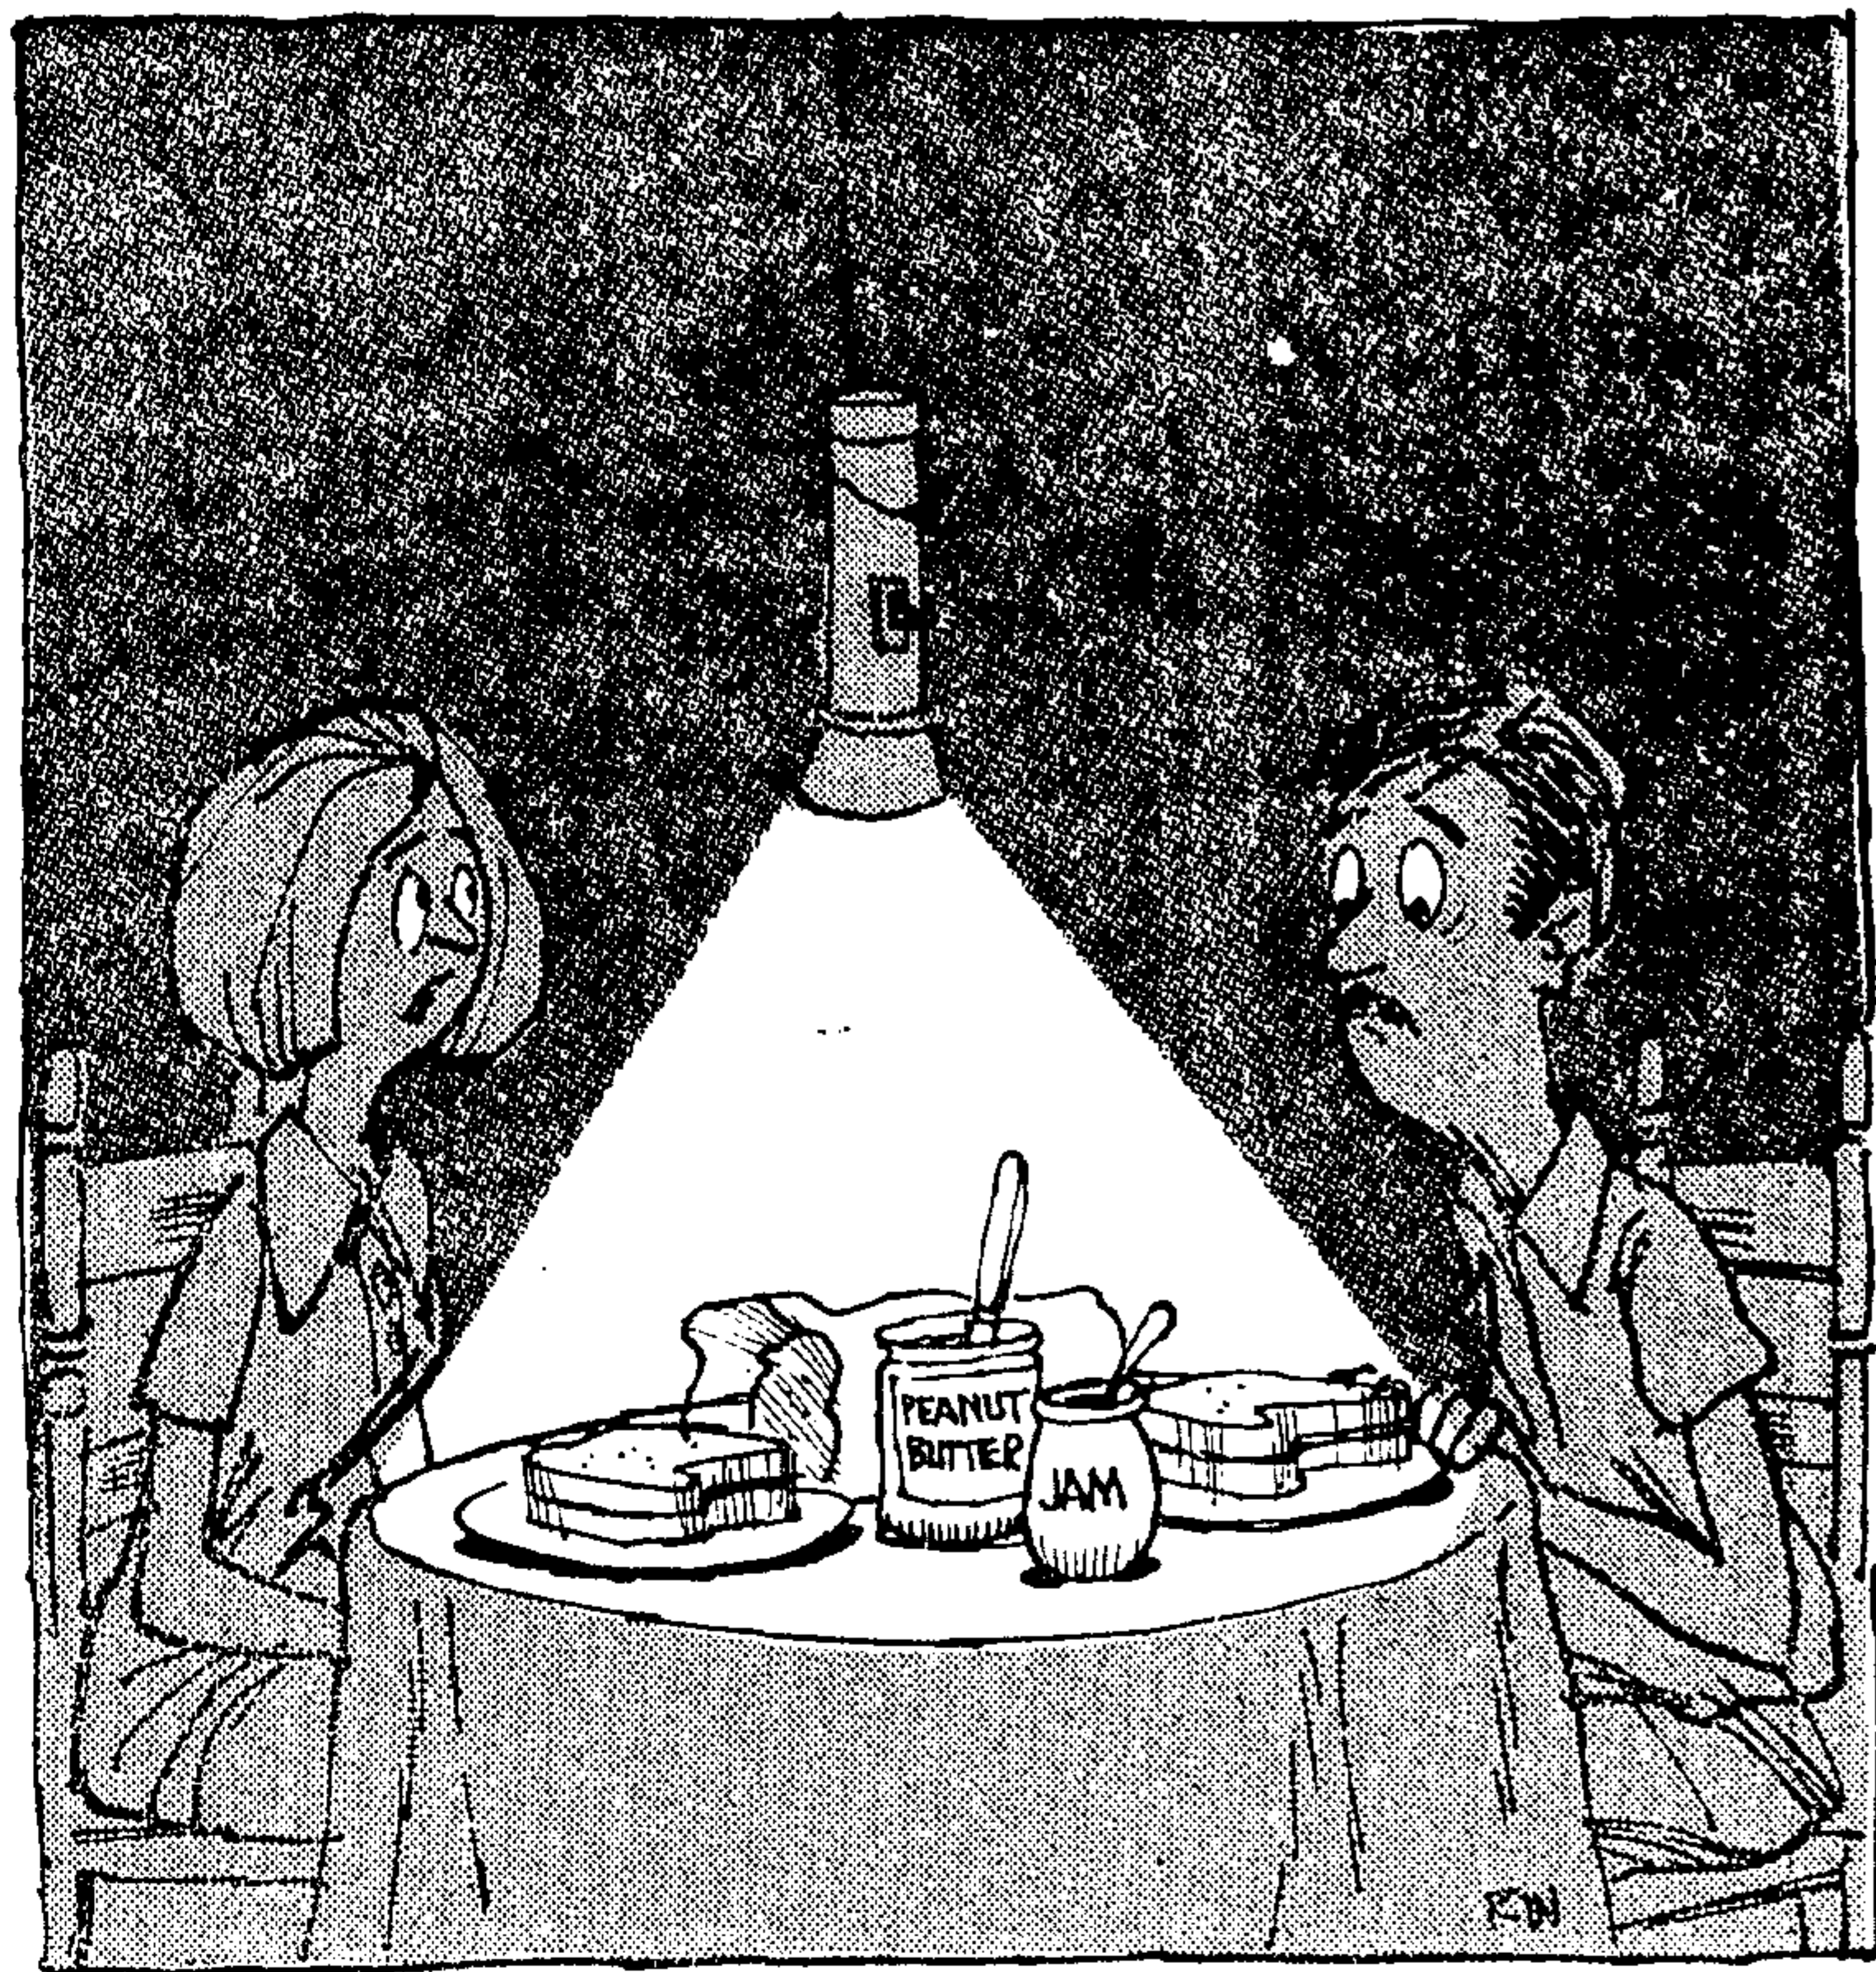

Meanwhile, residents of the area wait for what they think inevitably will be another power failure.

"We're afraid to go out and leave the air conditioning on because if the power goes out and comes back on while we're gone it can really blow the unit," Mrs. Brody said.

AND DR. SECKLER and his wife, Madelyn, are considering buying a $1,000 private generator.

But most of all they fear the problem will persist this winter.

"If we have a winter as severe as the last one, every time this happens we'll be without heat for hours," Mrs. Brody said. "With the high cost of electric bills we think we should have better service than that."

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

Plan panel takes no stand on housing in Lake County

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Wednesday night failed to take a stand on a housing plan for Lake County.

Commission members said they needed more time to study the matter.

The panel could not agree on a statement prepared by Comr. Pat Shields that said the village "agrees in principle with the Lake County housing report and reacts favorably to the concept proposed."

THE COUNTY housing plan seeks to encourage a balance of low-, moderate- and high-income housing in the county's municipalities.

Comr. Stephen Goldspiel said he could not agree with the county plan because he believes planning should rest at the village level.

"I'm worried by their apparent desire to undercut traditional zoning," Goldspiel said.

Shields said the statement he developed was not meant to endorse Lake County interference with local zoning or planning, but rather to acknowledge the need for a housing plan calling for a balance of housing.

Goldspiel agreed to draft a new proposal for the plan commission to consider at its meeting next Wednesday.

THE LAKE COUNTY plan makes the following recommendations:

- Changing building codes to allow cheaper construction material for some phases of home construction in order to lower housing costs.
- Lowering minimum lot sizes again to lower the cost of new homes.
- Reviewing engineering and zoning requirements to ensure that they serve a legitimate purpose rather than merely raising the cost of housing.

"Do we really want to have Lake County doing the planning and basically all the zoning in Lake County," Goldspiel asked the commission.

Such planning, especially in regard to low-income housing, is best done on the local level, Goldspiel said.

The plan was developed last January by the Lake County Dept. of Planning, Zoning and Environmental Quality. It since has been presented to several communities for their comments.

A public hearing on the plan has been scheduled for Sept. 22 at Stevenson High School in Prairie View.

YVONNE HERRON holds her 19-month-old daughter as she sits near the empty doorway of her Arrowhead Village apartment in Palatine Township. The door to the apartment was removed Friday by the management and has yet to be replaced. Electricity to the apartment also has been shut off even though Mrs. Herron said she paid her electric bill. She said the tactics are attempts by the management to force her to move from the complex.

Brown to seek sheriff's post

Thomas Brown, a lieutenant and 12-year veteran of the Lake County Sheriff's Dept., has announced his candidacy for sheriff.

Brown, of Gurnee, has taken a leave of absence from the department to seek the Republican nomination.

With a motto of "Your neighborhood sheriff," Brown wants to start a program that would make patrolling deputies better known in the communities they patrol.

The deputies would spend most of their time in communities rather than on the highway, Brown said.

A greater emphasis on narcotics enforcement also is proposed by Brown, who helped form the sheriff's narcotics division in 1970.

Brown has headed the narcotics division and the investigative division. He currently is watch commander of the uniform division.

"It's been almost 12 years since we've had a sheriff elected from the department. It's good to have a man that knows the office," Brown said.

Lake County Board member Harry Robin also has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for sheriff, and Democratic incumbent E. J. LaMagdeleine has announced he will run for re-election.

Dodge firm cited for lack of stickers

reached for further comment. Brown has not responded to Raysa's opinion.

The matter will be turned over to the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. for enforcement if Grand Spaulding refuses to buy the stickers, Voigt said. Such action would entail issuing citations for the cars and then going to Cook County Circuit Court to collect the required $10 or $15 fees and fines ranging from $15 to $500 per car.

Grand Spaulding recently has been involved in a suit brought by the Illinois Attorney General's office this spring charging that the dealership defrauded scores of customers using its auto repair service.

Dist. 63 teachers OK initial pact

It's classes today as usual in East Maine Dist. 63.

Twelve days of suspense over a threatened teachers' strike ended late Wednesday when negotiators emerged from 33 hours of nearly continuous bargaining with a tentative two-year teachers' contract.

No details of the pact were being released, pending a mass meeting of teachers tentatively set for after school today at Gemini Junior High School in Niles.

THE FINAL marathon bargaining session began Tuesday morning and dragged on until 7 p.m. Wednesday with only two breaks — a two-hour interruption Tuesday night for a teachers' union rally, and a four-hour recess to allow the eight negotiating teachers to attend the district's first half-day of classes Wednesday morning.

About half of the districts 300 teachers attended the union rally Tuesday night, heard union negotiators declare the talks in a "precarious position" and authorized union leaders to call a strike if talks became hopelessly bogged down.

But board of education member Jeanne Oestreich said Wednesday the teachers' negotiating team never informed the board of the strike authorization.

"They never told us, and they never waved a flag in our faces," Mrs. Oestreich said. "The negotiating team did not verbally use strike leverage. Maybe they never reached that point."

THE THREAT of a strike nevertheless was present, with the memory of a three-day teachers' walkout in November 1975 and a series of public warnings that began Aug. 26, when the teachers' union declared the district in a "crisis" situation.

Wary union negotiators appeared at the end of their rope Wednesday afternoon, complaining they had seen little of board negotiators during the lengthy session. Each side was sequestered in its own room in the district administration center, with communication only when one side had a new proposal to present the other.

But six hours later, both sides apparently had made peace with a tentative settlement that Mrs. Oestreich said will dig the financially troubled district deeper into the red but will give "fair salaries" to teachers.

Teachers' top priorities in the talks were a wage and fringe benefit package and a policy covering dismissal of tenured teachers as the district's enrollment declines.

Memories of 1975 cause nightmares

There was dread and a touch of exasperation in the voice of Sharon Polisky Wednesday as she recalled the three-day teachers' strike that racked East Maine Dist. 63 two years ago.

"I don't want to go through another nightmare," said Mrs. Polisky, 9112 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, and an active parent at Mark Twain School.

The nightmare Mrs. Polisky remembers is the rift that developed between striking and nonstriking teachers at Twain during that bitter strike in November 1975. And she does not relish the thought of reopening wounds that just now are beginning to heal.

SIMILAR MEMORIES, kept worried parents Wednesday waiting for word from the district's administration center, where weary negotiators huddled after 30 hours of nearly continuous bargaining, itching for showers as well as a settlement that would quash a threatened teachers' strike.

"During the last strike, there was a breakdown in discipline because the kids saw their school in chaos," mused one parent whose three children attend Nathanson School in Des Plaines. "It's bad for the kids, and if you're a teacher, you should be for kids first."

And Marge DePrima, former president of the Apollo Junior High School PTA, recalled the shattered friendships that were the product of the last walkout and flatly declared, "Our district cannot take another strike."

Like many in the district, Mrs. DePrima said the district's 300 teachers deserve more money than the $10.05 currently earned by beginning faculty members.

"But if the district doesn't have it, how can teachers get it?" she asked, echoing the cries of the board of education that declining enrollments and dwindling state aid are bankrupting the school treasury.

OTHERS SAY that because teachers have the opportunity to earn more money during the summer months, the average salary in Dist. 63 — $13,000 or $14,000 — is already high enough.

"Teachers are making more money in five and a half or six months than I make in a year," said Cyril Winn, 9515 Sumac, Des Plaines, "and then they get days off for Lincoln's birthday and every other kind of birthday besides."

Not that Winn envies teachers their jobs.

"I realize teachers have a problem with discipline with kids today," said Winn, father of three grown children and grandfather and godfather of several others. "I wish they'd get $25 grand a year. But I've been in unions all my life, and when I went on strike I didn't hurt kids. If teachers strike, kids don't have a chance."

FOR SOME PARENTS, however, even the prospect of a strike doesn't shake their belief that teachers deserve more than they're getting.

"Being a teacher isn't easy," said Donna Erickson, 9543 Sumac, whose sixth-grade daughter attends nearby Nathanson School. "I wouldn't be thrilled about a strike, but I wouldn't be too upset either. My daughter is good in school and she's nice to have around, so it doesn't make any difference."

"I wouldn't be pleased if they're out a long time, but that's not likely."

And for neighbor Beatrice Cameron, with two children in Dist. 63, the story is the same.

"Teachers have all the right in the world to go on strike. After all, they've got to live, too."

Family upset by order to vacate their apartment

by BILL HILL

The two-bedroom apartment is slightly crowded, but for four years it has been home for the George Kyprianidis family.

However, George, his wife, Nia, and their three boys have been told by the management at Brandenberry Park East Apartments that they must move. They have been charged double the normal rent since Aug. 31 when their lease expired.

It is upsetting for the young family to move now, especially when the three boys are happily settled in school and the two-bedroom apartment is all they can afford.

Brandenberry has refused to tell Kyprianidis why the lease is not being renewed. Because Kyprianidis said he was given no explanation and only one week's notice, Arlington Heights officials are investigating whether the Brandenberry management is violating housing discrimination laws. The apartments are located at 2424 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

"They want to throw me out before I can find a new place to live. They don't want to give no reason cause they'll be automatically guilty," Kyprianidis said.

KYPRIANIDIS SAID he can only guess why Brandenberry refuses to renew his lease. One of his theories is that they are trying to weed out tenants with children. He said he knows of other families that in the past year have not been allowed to renew their leases.

Kyprianidis also said he thinks the management at Brandenberry may be retaliating against him for complaining to village health officials last winter about a lack of heat, a broken water tank, poor water pressure, broken drapery rods and doors and the need for new paint on the walls.

Brandenberry officials Wednesday refused to comment, except to say they plan to prosecute Kyprianidis as a "holdover" tenant, meaning they will seek damages, legal fees and double rent for every day the Greek family remains in the apartment.

Kyprianidis' lease on the $280-a-month apartment expired Aug. 31. It was not until Aug. 24 that he received a letter informing him he could extend his lease for one month, but that it could not be renewed.

"I say to them, why not? I say I need more time," Kyprianidis said. "Now I have to move anyway cause they're gonna be on my back. You make trouble out you go," said the 38-year-old employee of O'Hare Metal Co., Elk Grove Village.

DANIEL TARRY, environmental health officer for Arlington Heights, sent a letter to Brandenberry officials Sept. 2 to inform them the village was investigating the circumstances around the sudden refusal to renew Kyprianidis' lease. Tarry also asked for detailed reasons for that decision.

Brandenberry officials have not responded to Tarry, but the next day Kyprianidis received a letter saying that "nothing the village says or does short of a court order will relieve you of the full liability you have for illegally holding our apartment, including all damages, legal fees and double rent for every day you remain."

Kyprianidis said Wednesday he hopes to move his family by the end of September. But he does not know what to do about the "double rent" charges and he continues to ask for an explanation for Brandenberry's refusal to renew his lease.

"It's because I opened my mouth. It's because I complained that they won't paint the apartment, that there's no heat, that there's no hot water. One of my boys has chronic bronchitis. We have to have heat," Kyprianidis said.

Tarry said that it is becoming apparent that there are many tenants of Arlington Heights apartment complexes that are "up against the wall."

THE GEORGE Kyprianidis family has lived at Brandenberry Park East apartments in Arlington Heights for four years, but now must leave for no apparent reason. Village officials are investigating why they were given only one week's notice that their lease will not be renewed. From left, are Nia, Billy, George, Mario and Dino.

Lower speed on Higgins urged to slow truckers

A village trustee wants to slow down truckers speeding through Hoffman Estates.

Trustee William Cowin has called Higgins Road a "truckers' raceway" after a Hoffman Estates woman was killed Tuesday when her car was hit by a semi trailer truck at the Barrington Road intersection.

Nancy L. Garsi, 35, of 1880 Stockdon Dr., was turning left on a green arrow from Higgins Road when she was hit by a truck driven by James H. Tinnell, 35, of Edmire Trucking Co., said Sgt. Donald Martin, of the Hoffman Estates police.

WITNESSES TOLD police the truck was going west on Higgins Road at about 60 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The truck then swerved and hit a car driven by Roy E. Erickson, 30, 1318 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, police said.

Tinnell was charged with running a red light, Martin said, and the accident report will be turned over to the state's attorney's office for possible criminal charges.

Erickson and Tinnell were not hurt. It was the third traffic fatality in Hoffman Estates this year.

"WE ARE POTENTIAL victims of the same kind of accident," Cowin said. "It's about time we declared war against these oversized speedsters."

He suggested that the village ask the state to post a lower speed limit for truckers on Higgins Road. "They know they can't stop so they hit the horn and go right on through," he said.

July 4 beer booth issue comes to a head a year early

TWO TOW TRUCKS had to be called Wednesday to right a gravel truck that overturned when it hit a car on Ill. Rte. 68 near Northwest Highway. Barrington police, who would not identify the driver of the truck said the vehicle hit the front end of another car. Police said no one was injured. The truck is owned by Walter Construction Co., Elgin.

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The Fourth of July is 10 months away, but already the battle lines are being drawn for the fight over who will get the beer concession at Rolling Meadows' next celebration.

The American Legion again is threatening not to march in the parade unless it can operate the lucrative beer booth.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who as liquor commissioner will decide who operates the booth, said the booth may be more trouble than it's worth and is talking about doing away with it.

And the city's chamber of commerce, which has operated the booth the past two years, is sitting back and waiting.

WILL HOWES, commander of American Legion Post 1251, and other legionnaires believe that Meyer treated the legion unfairly this year when he granted the chamber the license for the booth.

Meyer awarded the license to the chamber in February. He did not heed a recommendation from the Fourth of July Committee that it be withdrawn and the legion allowed to run the booth.

This time the legion got its application in early. Two weeks after this summer's celebration, the organization applied for the 1978 license. Howes said he expected an answer by the end of August.

But again the chamber was one step ahead of the legion. It got its 1978 application in first, one week before July 4, 1977.

MEYER SAID he'll wait until after the first of the year to grant the license because he got more than one application. But Howes doesn't believe it.

"Are you sure the chamber put the application in, or did Meyer?" he asked.

Harry O'Brien, executive director of the chamber, confirmed that the group got its application in before the Fourth.

"We sent it in way back when because of the arguing over this year's booth," he said. In 1976 the organization made about $800.

Howes said he believes Meyer always will favor the chamber or some other business-oriented group over the legion.

BUT MEYER SAID he simply granted the license to the first group that asked for it. He said the Fourth committee had no authority to decide who should get the booth.

Win Wittig, Fourth of July chairwoman, said although she knew she did not have the authority to grant a liquor license, she thought it was her committee's job to choose the participants.

Woman beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

Simonson, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

Related story on Page 9

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

JUDGE ARCHIE Simonson of Madison, Wis. puts a round on election day.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA
MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE
In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

United States the right to defend the canal's "neutrality" after that.

They would replace the 1903 accord negotiated by President Theodore Roosevelt as a triumph of his big-stick diplomacy and the "manifest destiny" policies of that era.

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heumann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heumann.

Residents oppose Devon auto shop

A high fence won't keep out the noise, air pollution and ugliness of an auto repair and equipment rental business, a group of homeowners said Wednesday night.

About 20 persons from Elk Grove Village and a nearby unincorporated area, told the village plan commission not to let a gas station owner put up a repair and rental shop at 224 W. Devon Ave.

Ronald Piszczek, owner of the Arco station at Devon Avenue and Arlington Heights Road, has asked the village to annex a 1.5-acre lot and change its zoning from residential to commercial

A home Piszczek owns and rents out is on the site. It would be torn down for the new business, he said.

The shop he proposes would do tune-ups, repair breaks and align wheels, as well as more complicated jobs such as rebuilding transmissions and valve work, Piszczek said.

It would rent U-haul trailers and trucks, and small equipment such as saws, compressors and rug cleaners, he said.

Although Piszczek promised to put up a 10-foot fence and hedges, the homeowners were not satisfied.

"AFTER TWO YEARS, if the fence needs repair, we have no assurance it will be," said Elmer Foltz, 220 E. Devon Ave.

Besides, a 10-foot fence would be ugly enough itself, he said.

Foltz, who said he lives next to the site, said homeowners bought their property because they liked the residential area.

Piszczek's attorney, John Summerfield, said the Devon Avenue area has been changing from residential to commercial over the years and the new business would be compatible with the change.

But the site is surrounded by

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK
Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

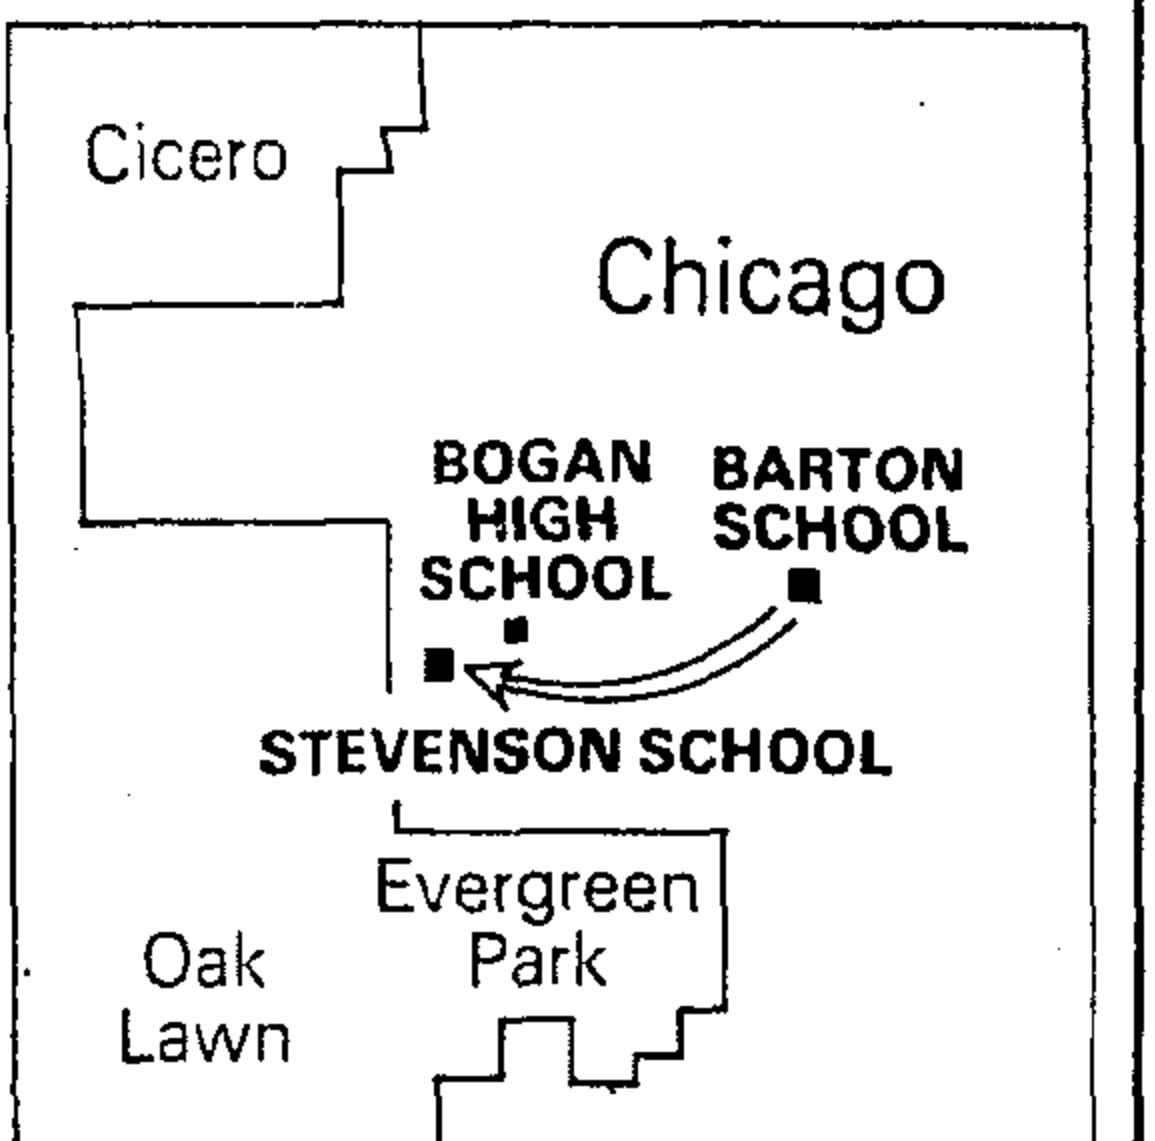

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

MRS. HERRON SAID other black families live at Arrowhead but she is not close friends with any of them. She said she believes the management wants her to leave because she has applied for low-income housing assistance.

Mrs. Herron said Amdur-Katz took over management of the complex early this year but she had no problems with the firm until April, when her lease expired.

"I never had any problems with the old management," she said.

Mrs. Herron said she has contacted several groups including Operation PUSH, in an effort to help her get the problems corrected until she can move. She said Wednesday she was still waiting to hear from the groups.

And until she does, Mrs. Herron said there is little she can do until she can find another place to live.

"I want to move as soon as I can," she said.

YVONNE HERRON holds her 19-month-old daughter as she sits near the empty doorway of her Arrowhead Village apartment in Palatine Township. The door to the apartment was removed Friday by the management and has yet to be replaced. Electricity to the apartment also has been shut off even though Mrs. Herron said she paid her electric bill. She said the tactics are attempts by the management to force her to move from the complex.

Trip home a tragic end to 'perfect day'

by BILL HILL

It had been a perfect day. The couple took a boatride on Lake Geneva, strolled leisurely among the fancy homes in the resort town and then had a pleasant dinner before heading back to Chicago.

But the evening drive brought tragedy.

Wesley Swartz, 38, was killed Monday night when his light blue Volkswagen was struck from behind on Palatine Road in Wheeling Township by a speeding auto that never stopped and still has not been found.

SWARTZ' WIFE, Mary Ann, remembers little about the tragedy, which occurred about 10:15 p.m. near the intersection of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

"I was asleep. All I remember is the car whirling around and then stopping. I looked around inside the car and I remember seeing everything was intact," she said.

"I remember being surprised that I was still in one piece. My husband looked like he was asleep," said Mrs. Swartz, 35, of 1540 W. Pratt Blvd., Chicago.

By then the other automobile was out of sight.

Two witnesses told Cook County sheriff's police it was a brown Ford with a black top. Police said Tuesday they believe the car was about a 1971 model. But they have no other clues to the identity of the hit-and-run driver.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS including a nurse were at the scene immediately to offer assistance and tell police what little they knew about the speeding brown car.

"I felt good about that. All the people were very kind. One man, he had me sit in his car where it was warm. He said my husband had been knocked unconscious," Mrs. Swartz said.

"But after the (paramedics) got there I could hear the little machine. I could tell that the beats were very irregular and I knew that was a very bad sign," she said.

A few minutes later, police told Mrs. Swartz her husband was dead.

Police said Swartz, a laboratory supervisor at Billings Hospital, Chicago, probably died from a broken neck, caused by the whiplash effect of being struck from behind.

"I GUESS THE force of the accident did something to the seats — at least to his," Mrs. Swartz said. "There was a plant in a big container that we were going to plant in our backyard that was wedged behind my seat. I guess that's what saved me," she said. She was not injured.

"IF THE LOT goes commercial, we don't want to start out with something like that," said John Petres, 216 Devon Ave.

Several homeowners said the new business would look like a junk yard.

Joyce Spinner, 231 Walnut Ln., said youths will climb over a fence and vandalize the shop's equipment.

Plan Commission Chairman William Shannon said legal problems must be resolved before the business could be allowed, even if annexation and zoning were granted.

A business on Devon would have to have a frontage of 150 feet, and the frontage planned for the business is 130, Shannon said.

The commission will meet later and make a recommendation to the village board, Shannon said.

Two men charged in invasion of home

Two Rolling Meadows men charged in connection with a Rolling Meadows home invasion are scheduled to appear Sept. 20 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Bruce Keener, 20, of 2102 George Dr., and Kevin Smith, 19, of 4608 Sycamore Dr., allegedly broke into the apartment of Michael Contine, 19, of 2300 Algonquin Pkwy. Aug. 19.

Keener allegedly put a knife to the throat of Contine's friend, Kevin Dillon, 19, of 2403 Algonquin Parkway and demanded money. Keener took $145 from Dillon, police said.

Smith and Keener allegedly took a $200 stereo belonging to Contine. Neither Contine or Dillon were injured in the robbery.

Keener is charged with armed robbery, robbery and escape. He was charged with escape after he fled the Rolling Meadows police station during booking, police said.

Smith is charged with robbery and armed robbery. He also is facing a charge of assault stemming from an incident in which he held off police for an hour after allegedly threatening to slash his mother with two broken pop bottles.

Smith was arrested Aug. 24. Keener was arrested Saturday by Cook County Forest Preserve rangers who found him overdosed on drugs in the Busse Woods Forest Preserve off Arlington Heights and Higgins roads, authorities said.

Keener was treated and released from Cermak Memorial Hospital, Chicago, police said. Keener was then released on bond originally set at $50,000 Monday but reduced to $15,000 Tuesday in Arlington Heights Court.

Dist. 63 teachers OK initial pact

1975 strike causes nightmares

There was dread and a touch of exasperation in the voice of Sharon Polisky Wednesday as she recalled the three-day teachers' strike that racked East Maine Dist. 63 two years ago.

"I don't want to go through another nightmare," said Mrs. Polisky, 9112 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, and an active parent at Mark Twain School.

The nightmare Mrs. Polisky remembers is the rift that developed between striking and nonstriking teachers at Twain during that bitter strike in November 1975. And she does not relish the thought of reopening wounds that just now are beginning to heal.

SIMILAR MEMORIES, kept worried parents Wednesday waiting for word from the district's administration center, where weary negotiators huddled after 30 hours of nearly continuous bargaining, itching for showers as well as a settlement that would quash a threatened teachers' strike.

"During the last strike, there was a breakdown in discipline because the kids saw their school in chaos," mused one parent whose three children attend Nathanson School in Des Plaines. "It's bad for the kids, and if you're a teacher, you should be for kids first."

And Marge DePrima, former president of the Apollo Junior High School PTA, recalled the shattered friendships that were the product of the last walkout and flatly declared, "Our district cannot take another strike."

Like many in the district, Mrs. DePrima said the district's 300 teachers deserve more money than the $10,105 currently earned by beginning faculty members.

"But if the district doesn't have it, how can teachers get it?" she asked, echoing the cries of the board of education that declining enrollments and dwindling state aid are bankrupting the school treasury.

OTHERS SAY that because teachers have the opportunity to earn more money during the summer months, the average salary in Dist. 63 — $13,000 or $14,000 — is already high enough.

"Teachers are making more money in five and a half or six months than I make in a year," said Cyril Winn, 9515 Sumac, Des Plaines. "And then they get days off for Lincoln's birthday and every other kind of birthday besides."

Not that Winn envies teachers their jobs.

"I realize teachers have a problem with discipline with kids today," said Winn, father of three grown children and grandfather and godfather of several others. "I wish they'd get $25 grand a year. But I've been in unions all my life, and when I went on strike I didn't hurt kids. If teachers strike, kids don't have a chance."

FOR SOME PARENTS, however, even the prospect of a strike doesn't shake their belief that teachers deserve more than they're getting.

"Being a teacher isn't easy," said Donna Erickson, 9543 Sumac, whose sixth-grade daughter attends nearby Nathanson School. "I wouldn't be thrilled about a strike, but I wouldn't be too upset either. My daughter is good in school and she's nice to have around, so it doesn't make any difference."

"I wouldn't be pleased if they're out a long time, but that's not likely."

And for neighbor Beatrice Cameron, with two children in Dist. 63, the story is the same.

"Teachers have all the right in the world to go on strike. After all, they've got to live, too."

It's classes today as usual in East Maine Dist. 63.

Twelve days of suspense over a threatened teachers' strike ended late Wednesday when negotiators emerged from 33 hours of nearly continuous bargaining with a tentative two-year teachers' contract.

No details of the pact were being released, pending a mass meeting of teachers tentatively set for after school today at Gemini Junior High School in Niles.

THE FINAL, marathon bargaining session began Tuesday morning and dragged on until 7 p.m. Wednesday with only two breaks — a two-hour interruption Tuesday night for a teachers' union rally, and a four-hour recess to allow the eight negotiating teachers to attend the district's first half-day of classes Wednesday morning.

About half of the districts' 300 teachers attended the union rally Tuesday night, heard union negotiators declare the talks in a "precarious position" and authorized union leaders to call a strike if talks became hopelessly bogged down.

But board of education member Jeanne Oestreich said Wednesday the teachers' negotiating team never informed the board of the strike authorization.

"They never told us, and they never waved a flag in our faces," Mrs. Oestreich said. "The negotiating team did not verbally use strike leverage. Maybe they never reached that point."

THE THREAT of a strike nevertheless was present, with the memory of a three-day teachers' walkout in November 1975 and a series of public warnings that began Aug. 26, when the teachers' union declared the district in a "crisis" situation.

Wary union negotiators appeared at the end of their rope Wednesday afternoon, complaining they had seen little of board negotiators during the lengthy session. Each side was sequestered in its own room in the district administration center, with communication only when one side had a new proposal to present the other.

But six hours later, both sides apparently had made peace with a tentative settlement that Mrs. Oestreich said will dig the financially troubled district deeper into the red but will give "fair salaries" to teachers.

Teachers' top priorities in the talks were a wage and fringe benefit package and a policy covering dismissal of tenured teachers as the district's enrollment declines.

Lower speed on Higgins urged to slow truckers

A village trustee wants to slow down truckers speeding through Hoffman Estates.

Trustee William Cowin has called Higgins Road a "truckers' raceway" after a Hoffman Estates woman was killed Tuesday when her car was hit by a semi trailer truck at the Barrington Road intersection.

Nancy L. Garsi, 35, of 1880 Stockton Dr., was turning left on a green arrow from Higgins Road when she was hit by a truck driven by James H. Tinnell, 35, of Edmier Trucking Co., said Sgt. Donald Martin, of the Hoffman Estates police.

WITNESSES TOLD police the truck was going west on Higgins Road at about 60 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The truck then swerved and hit a car driven by Roy E. Erickson, 30, 1318 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, police said.

Tinnell was charged with running a red light, Martin said, and the accident report will be turned over to the state's attorney's office for possible criminal charges.

Erickson and Tinnell were not hurt.

It was the third traffic fatality in Hoffman Estates this year.

"WE ARE POTENTIAL victims of the same kind of accident," Cowin said. "It's about time we declared war against these oversized speedsters."

He suggested that the village ask the state to post a lower speed limit for trucks on Higgins Road. "They know they can't stop so they hit the horn and go right on through," he said.

Grand Spaulding Dodge cited in sticker violation

by JOHN N. FRANK

Grand Spaulding Dodge has failed to purchase $1,215 worth of Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers, leaving itself open to fines totaling as much as $16,500, village officials said.

Using a new computer crackdown program this summer, Buffalo Grove discovered Grand Spaulding had not purchased 1977 vehicle stickers for 93 cars it registered with the state at its Buffalo Grove address, 935 W. Dundee Rd., said Sgt. Art Voigt of the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. The cars are involved in Grand Spaulding's auto leasing operation. Grand Spaulding also has a Chicago showroom.

The village clerk informed Grand Spaulding of the problem in a July 15 letter, Voigt said. But William Brown, director of Grand Spaulding's leasing operations replied that the 93 cars were either not kept in Buffalo Grove or were no longer being leased therefore, not requiring village stickers.

Purchasing stickers for cars Brown said were no longer being leased would cost $285 while purchasing stickers for the cars Brown said were not kept in the village would cost $930 bringing the total cost of stickers involved to $1,215.

AN AUG. 5 opinion by Village Atty. William Raysa, contends stickers must be purchased for the autos whether or not they are kept in Buffalo Grove. Brown was sent a copy of the opinion.

State law provides for a village to require a vehicle sticker on cars which have the village as a base, the attorney wrote. Since Grand Spaulding listed its Buffalo Grove facility with the state for the autos in question, "the burden of proof is upon Grand Spaulding to prove that a Buffalo Grove license is not required," Raysa wrote.

Neither Brown nor Raysa could be reached for further comment. Brown has not responded to Raysa's opinion.

The matter will be turned over to the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. for enforcement if Grand Spaulding refuses to buy the stickers, Voigt said. Such action would entail issuing citations for the cars and then going to Cook County Circuit Court to collect the required $10 or $15 fees and fines ranging from $15 to $500 per car.

Grand Spaulding recently has been involved in a suit brought by the Illinois Attorney General's office this spring charging that the dealership defrauded scores of customers using its auto repair service.

Woman beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and we are supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

BUT OUTSIDE in the streets of Washington, and in Panama, small groups of antitreaty protesters staged

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heilmann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heilmann. (Continued on Page 3)

Don't buy airport: financial experts

by PAUL GORES

Schaumburg Airport should not be purchased by the village, a team of financial experts says, because there's no guarantee the airport will be able to support itself.

That recommendation is a severe setback for a proposal that the village spend $2.2 million to buy and upgrade the airport. It also may mean the 120-acre airfield will be converted into an industrial park.

Robert Starzyk, chairman of a financial committee appointed by Village Pres. Raymond Kessell last March to study the proposal, listed four reasons for the recommendations:

- The purchase of an airport "is too speculative from an out-and-out business standpoint, especially for a municipality;"

- There is uncertainty about the present and future need for a municipal airport;

- A 1975 study of the cost of taking over the airport may have understated the cost to the village in terms of labor, maintenance and insurance;

- The location of the airport may not be good because it lies within the O'Hare Terminal Control Area. O'Hare has the authority to lower the Schaumburg Airport 1,600-foot ceiling, Starzyk said.

Kessell said he is ready to abide by the recommendation of the committee.

"The three people on the committee are very qualified to judge it," Kessell said. "I must respect their integrity and ability in making the recommendation."

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

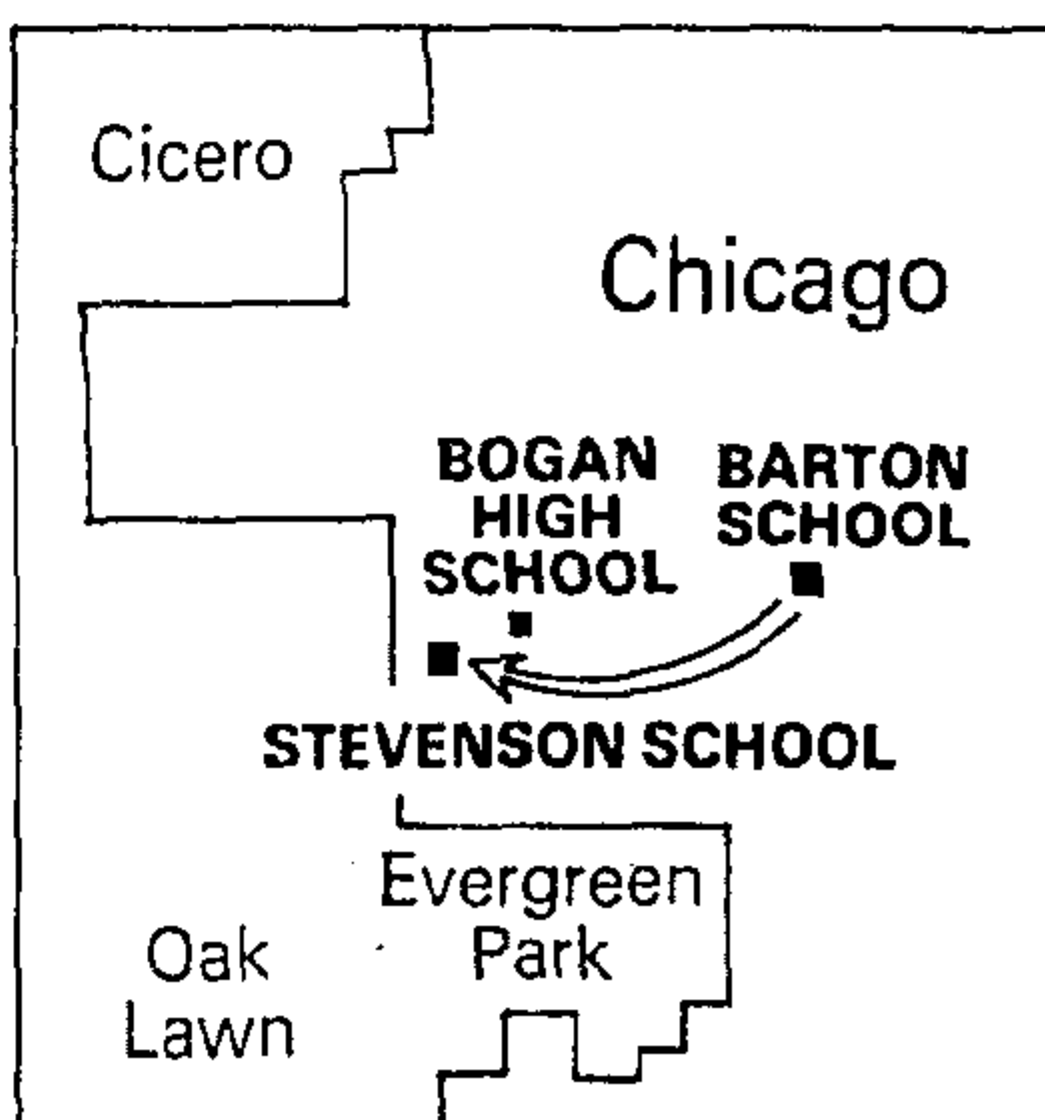

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Pavey quits as trustee; Dodgion nominated to post

Hoffman Estates Trustee Jeanne Pavey has resigned from the village board effective Nov. 1, and Lee Dodgion has been nominated to fill her post.

Mrs. Pavey, who was elected in 1975, is moving with her husband to Lake Barrington Shores this fall. She has lived in the village almost eight years and was the biggest vote getter in the election two years ago.

Mrs. Pavey said she told Village Pres. Virginia Hayter about her decision to move two weeks ago.

Dodgion's nomination will not be confirmed until the boards first November meeting, after the seat is actually vacated, Mrs. Hayter said.

Like Mrs. Pavey, Dodgion, 115 Park Ln., lives in the Winston Knolls subdivision north of the Northwest Tollway. He is a past president of the homeowners association.

HE RAN AS AN independent for village trustee in 1973, finishing fourth in a race for three seats. He is a member of the Paaltine Township Republican party.

Dodgion, a member of the village's fire and police commission, is a planner for Union Oil Co., Schaumburg.

Mrs. Hayter said she nominated him because he is "a good businessperson" and "is active in civic and community affairs." Like Mrs. Pavey, she added, Dodgion is a "conservative Republican."

If Dodgion is appointed he will fill the remaining two years of Mrs. Pavey's term, until April 1979.

"I'M DELIGHTED that Mr. Dodgion was the board's choice" to fill her post, Mrs. Pavey said. She said it would be harder to leave if her successor's philosophy differed from hers.

Mrs. Pavey said her time on the board has been rewarding. "I hate to give it up," she said. "I'd do it again."

One of her projects has been to push for efforts to bring more business and industry to the village.

"I've been bugging everybody about that for two and a half years," she said, adding that she thought the board was about to start a program to attract more business.

"I've always had an interest in government and I can't see that that will stop," Mrs. Pavey said. "No matter what, I'll be very interested in what happens in Hoffman Estates."

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

MRS. HERRON SAID other black families live at Arrowhead but she is not close friends with any of them. She said she believes the management wants her to leave because she has applied for low-income housing assistance. Mrs. Herron said Amdur-Katz took over management of the complex early this year but she had no problems with the firm until April, when her lease expired.

"I never had any problems with the old management," she said.

Mrs. Herron said she has contacted several groups including Operation PUSH, in an effort to help her get the problems corrected until she can move. She said Wednesday she was still waiting to hear from the groups.

And until she does, Mrs. Herron said there is little she can do until she can find another place to live.

"I want to move as soon as I can," she said.

Don't buy airport: financial experts

ations and profit planning at Union Oil Corp.

When Kessell appointed the panel, he asked them to study the question of buying the airport from a "purely profit" point of view.

Consultants recommended in a 1975 study that the village buy and improve the privately owned 120-acre field at Wright Boulevard and Irving Park Road. The consultants projected the village's share of the purchase and improvement cost at about $2.2 million. Contributions from federal and state funds would make up the remainder of the anticipated $8.4 million development cost for the airport. Starzyk said these projections already are outdated.

The consultants said the village's share should be financed through the issue of revenue bonds to be repaid over 30 years by fees collected from airport users.

TORISKY HAS questioned that plan, contending that if there is insufficient revenue from the airport, the village will be liable for repaying the bonds.

The airport property is owned by Jack Pritzker of Chicago in partnership with the Bennett and Kahnweiler real estate firm and William Lambert of Park Ridge.

Lambert said he is "not going to worry" about the financial study committee's recommendation.

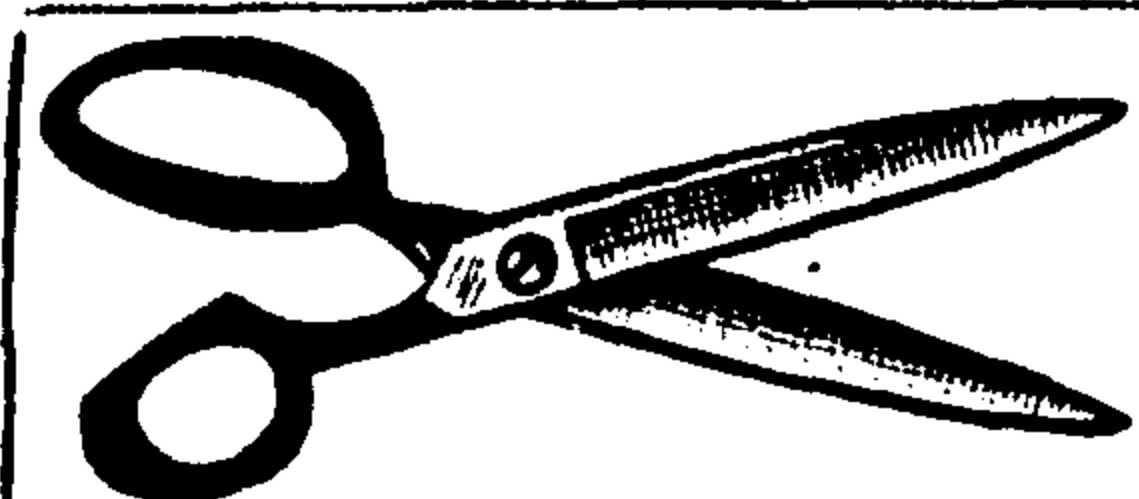

He said there would be sufficient air traffic to make the airport profitable for the village if they would "dress it up a little."

"If they can't use it we'll have to do something else with it," Lambert said. "We'll have to go industrial."

The final recommendation on whether to buy and improve the airport will come from the mass transportation committee, which saw the financial committee's recommendation Wednesday night.

Fred Dietrich, chairman of the committee, said he will ask the financial committee to meet Sept. 21 with his panel to draft a final recommendation to the village board. Dietrich indicated there may be some opposition to the financial committee's findings.

Development of 5 parks planned

The Hoffman Estates Park Board and the developers of the Westbury subdivision are preparing to seed and develop five park sites there this fall.

Plans to transfer the deeds for five park sites in Westbury to the park district were cleared when the board voted Wednesday night to accept a 16-month-old letter to the developers, Allister Construction Co. of Hoffman Estates, as an official agreement for the transfer.

The letter, dated April 1, 1976 was sent to Don Kirk, president of the construction company, from George Rush, then-chairman of the park board.

KIRK HAS said the letter was binding agreement for the park board to accept Westbury park sites. But the board has said it was not a valid agreement because they had not voted on it, saying it was unacceptable to them.

So when Allister began sending parks site deeds to the board earlier this summer, the board returned them and asked the firm to grade the property, spread four inches of top soil and seed the sites. The board also wanted the Allister firm to donate $25 for each of 300 houses in Westbury to buy park equipment.

Last week, Kirk threatened to deed the Westbury park sites to the village if the park board did not accept the letter as an agreement.

The letter says Allister will turn the land over to the park district in "final grade condition," which means the land is graded and has top soil but is not seeded.

THE ALLISTER firm also was to provide walkways on all sides and one street for access and hand over a total of about 50 park sites in "buildable" condition, ready for playground equipment, tennis courts or basketball and volleyball courts.

Now Allister and the park board are working to develop specific plans for five park sites and to have them all seeded this fall in preparation for use next spring.

The sites involved include:

- A one acre lot in the west part of the development; north of Thornbark Court between Thornbark Drive and Williams Road;
- A smaller lot across Thornbark Drive west to Mumford Drive;
- Another one-acre lot, north of Freeman Boulevard, south of Olmstead Drive and east of Westbridge Court;
- Land around two retention basins separated by Sturbridge Dr. in the southwest end of the development; and
- Land around a retention basin to the south of Freeman Boulevard and north of Freeman Road.

Arlingdale plans to build 250 houses on north edge

Arlingdale Development is planning to build 250 homes on an 80-acre tract on Hoffman Estates' northern edge.

The land, between Palatine and Bradwell roads west of the Westbury subdivision, is owned by former Chicago aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda. It is now zoned for high-rise apartments.

Patrick Taylor, Arlingdale president, said the land will be divided into 60 9,250 square-foot lots and 190 7,500 square-foot lots. The homes would sell for $80,000 to $115,000, he said.

THE HOFFMAN ESTATES firm has begun clearing land nearby for a similar development. Arlingdale's Manchester Cove subdivision, at the northwest corner of Algonquin and Ela roads, covers 50 acres and includes 138 houses.

Originally, Arlingdale had proposed to build 151 houses on 8,500 square-foot lots in Manchester Cove. Before agreeing to annex the land in May, the village increased the minimum lot size to 9,250 square feet.

That annexation angered officials in neighboring Inverness who argued that lots should be at least 40,000 square feet — nearly an acre — to be compatible with nearby homes in Inverness.

The Inverness Village Board and the Barrington Area Council of governments have voted to file a lawsuit to contest the annexation, but Inverness Village Pres. Russell Puzey said the suit has not been filed. "It's not dead yet," he said. "Not by a long shot."

INVERNESS OFFICIALS will watch Arlingdale's newest plans "with much interest," he said. "Hoffman Estates certainly could be more considerate of its neighbors."

The 80-acre tract was annexed to Hoffman Estates in the 1960s. In 1971, the owners — Wigoda, Keane and Keane's brother George — won a lawsuit seeking apartment zoning for the property. At the time, they planned to build 1,352 units in 17 high-rise buildings, but their plans fell through because there were no water or sewer lines in the area. Since then, however, water and sewerage has been extended into the area to serve several major subdivisions.

In May, Bongi Marketing of Rolling Meadows said it had "a 50-50 chance" of purchasing the property for a single-family development. Bongi officials were unavailable for comment Thursday.

Keane and Wigoda were convicted of fraud, conspiracy and income tax evasion in 1974 in connection with unrelated land deals in Chicago.

Too many candlelight dinners burns out their appeal

by NANCY GOTLER

Marla Brody and her neighbors are getting used to candlelight dinners and eating meals out, but the Buffalo Grove residents aren't happy about it.

It is the result of six power outages in their Lake County Strathmore subdivision in the past month, leaving half-cooked dinners in the oven and making eating by candlelight an annoying necessity.

St. Hubert's adult ed

St. Hubert's parish is sponsoring a series of adult education programs titled "Invitation to Life."

Sessions on womanhood, dreams and the unconscious, depression, Christian maturity and healing of memories will be Sept. 14 and every other Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the parish, 126 Grand Canyon St., Hoffman Estates. Babysitting is available. Call 529-3486 or 529-4428 for information.

"It happens mostly at night when we're having dinner," said Mrs. Brody, 871 Shady Grove Ln. "So now we keep a full supply of candles and flashlight batteries in the house."

BUT FOR SOME residents, the malfunctioning electrical cables, which have been out of order from three to seven hours, are more than an inconvenience.

Two weeks ago burned-out cables affected telephone service in the area for seven hours, leaving Dr. Jerry Seckler, 870 Silver Rock Ln., cut off from his patients.

Gordon Baer, a Commonwealth Edison representative, said that power outage was caused by lightning striking underground electrical cables.

But the five other blackouts, the latest Sunday night, are the result of deteriorating cables, he said, 50,000 feet of which have been replaced in the neighborhood during the past year.

"USUALLY CABLES last 50 to 100 years," he said. "But this was some of the earliest underground cables of this type ever used." They were installed eight years ago and Baer said the replacement has cost "tens of thousands of dollars." He would not be more specific about the price.

He said as sections of cable fail they are replaced, but that until they malfunction nothing will be done.

Meanwhile, residents of the area wait for what they think inevitably will be another power failure.

"We're afraid to go out and leave the air conditioning on because if the power goes out and comes back on while we're gone it can really blow the unit," Mrs. Brody said.

AND DR. SECKLER and his wife Madelyn, are considering buying a $1,000 private generator.

But most of all they fear the problem will persist this winter.

"If we have a winter as severe as the last one, every time this happens we'll be without heat for hours," Mrs. Brody said. "With the high cost of electric bills we think we should have better service than that."

Lower speed on Higgins urged to slow truckers

A village trustee wants to slow down truckers speeding through Hoffman Estates.

Trustee William Cowin has called Higgins Road a "truckers' raceway" after a Hoffman Estates woman was killed Tuesday when her car was hit by a semi trailer truck at the Barrington Road intersection.

Nancy L. Garsi, 35, of 1380 Stockdon Dr., was turning left on a green arrow from Higgins Road when she was hit by a truck driven by James H. Tinnell, 35, of Edmier Trucking Co., said Sgt. Donald Martin, of the Hoffman Estates police.

WITNESSES TOLD police the truck was going west on Higgins Road at about 60 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The truck then swerved and hit a car driven by Roy E. Erickson, 30, 1318 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, police said.

Tinnell was charged with running a red light, Martin said, and the accident report will be turned over to the state's attorney's office for possible criminal charges.

Erickson and Tinnell were not hurt. It was the third traffic fatality in Hoffman Estates this year.

"WE ARE POTENTIAL victims of the same kind of accident," Cowin said. "It's about time we declared war against these oversized speedsters."

He suggested that the village ask the state to post a lower speed limit for truckers on Higgins Road. "They know they can't stop so they hit the horn and go right on through," he said.

Fall programs offered by parks

You can learn to do-si-do, hang glide, tend bar or operate a ham radio this fall through new programs offered by the Hoffman Estates Park District.

A free introductory square dance lesson will be taught by the Just-Kicks Square Dance Club.

A hang gliding or sky sailing ground school and a ski equipment clinic will be offered this fall.

For more sedentary types, a picture framing class will be offered and prospective hosts or hostesses can prepare for the holidays in the home entertaining and bartending class.

A special playschool will be offered for 3-year-olds. In the hour-long sessions in December the preschoolers will explore their five senses through play activities, stories, songs and crafts.

OTHER NEW programs for children include leathercraft, microwave cooking and magic classes.

Hoffman Estates residents should check the park district's new fall and winter program brochure for details on these and other activities.

The brochures will not be mailed as usual, but will be put in plastic bags and hung on doors in the village this week by a distributing service.

The park district is saving more than half the cost of bulk rate mailing, about $500, Ann Thomas, program supervisor, said.

Residents in the Winston Knolls and Westbury subdivisions, areas not usually reached by distributing companies, will be served in this delivery.

Residents should look for the brochures today and Friday.

Woman beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

Related story on Page 9

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

JUDGE ARCHIE Simonson of Madison, Wis. puts a round on election day.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filed, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

BUT OUTSIDE in the streets of Washington, and in Panama, small groups of antitreaty protesters staged

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2603 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

They would replace the 1903 accord negotiated by President Theodore Roosevelt as a triumph of his big-stick diplomacy and the "manifest destiny" policies of that era.

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heimann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heimann (Continued on Page 3)

Beer issue comes to head early

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The Fourth of July is 10 months away, but already the battle lines are being drawn for the fight over who will get the beer concession at Rolling Meadows' next celebration.

The American Legion again is threatening not to march in the parade unless it can operate the lucrative beer booth.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who as liquor commissioner will decide who operates the booth, said the booth may be more trouble than it's worth and is talking about doing away with it.

And the city's chamber of commerce, which has operated the booth the past two years, is sitting back and waiting.

WILL HOWES, commander of American Legion Post 1251, and other legionnaires believe that Meyer treated the legion unfairly this year when he granted the chamber the license for the booth.

Meyer awarded the license to the chamber in February. He did not heed a recommendation from the Fourth of July Committee that it be withdrawn and the legion allowed to run the booth.

This time the legion got its application in early. Two weeks after this summer's celebration, the organization applied for the 1978 license. Howes said he expected an answer by the end of August.

But again the chamber was one step ahead of the legion. It got its 1978 application in first, one week before July 4, 1977.

MEYER SAID he'll wait until after the first of the year to grant the license because he got more than one application. But Howes doesn't believe it.

"Are you sure the chamber put the application in, or did Meyer?" he (Continued on Page 8)

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

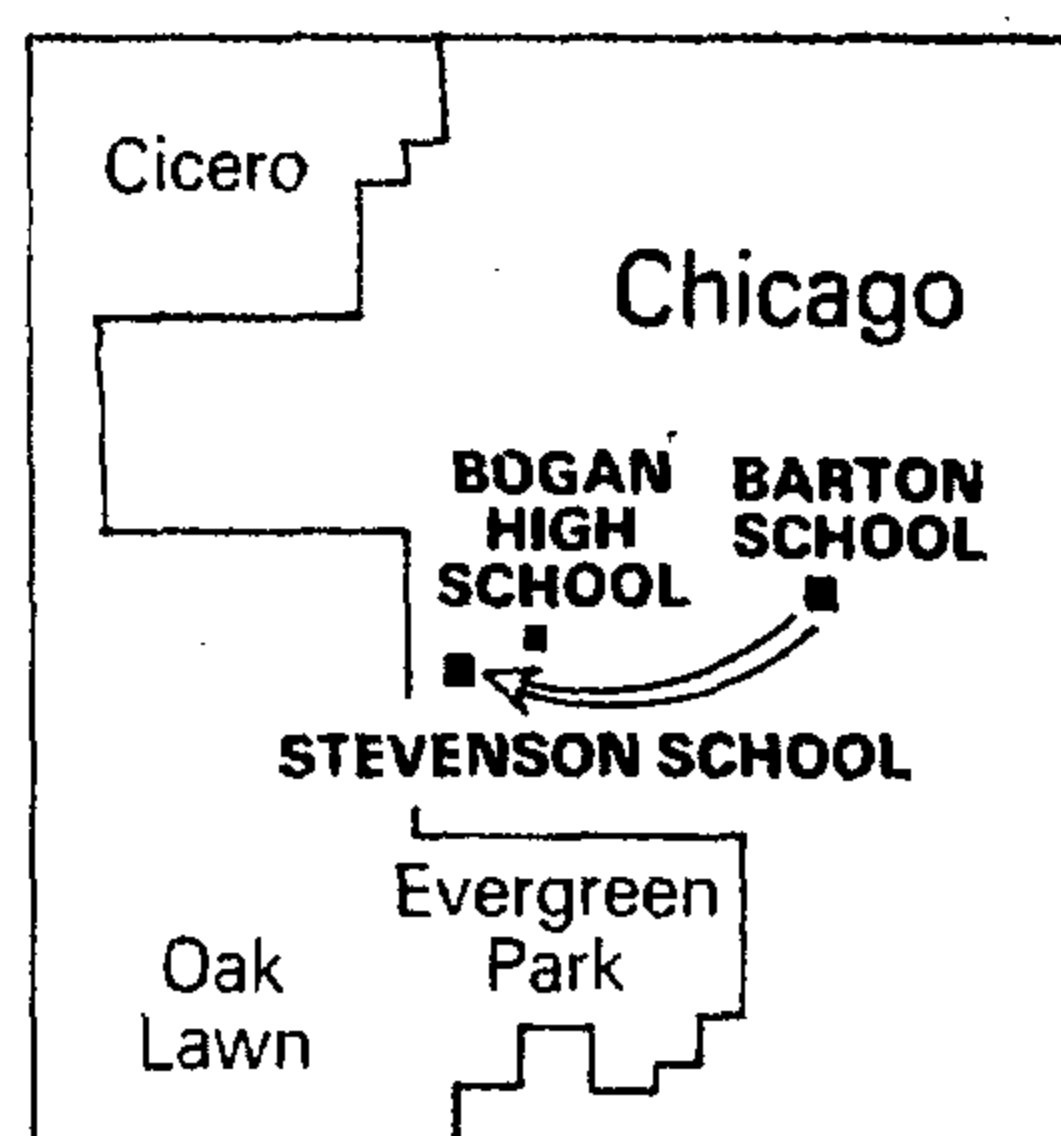

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Officials hear traffic complaints

About 50 Palatine Township residents, most of whom live near Baldwin and Dundee roads, Wednesday night told state highway officials that traffic congestion in the area is extremely hazardous.

Citizens of the unincorporated area asked for immediate assistance to alleviate what they call a potentially deadly problem.

They addressed officials of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation at a meeting cosponsored by the governor's committee on traffic safety and Palatine Township.

"WE HAVE been told that six people have to get killed at this intersection before we get a light installed there," said Joyce Blau, who lives near Baldwin Road but did not want her address published.

"The situation is critical. I don't care what traffic signals cost. If it saves one life it's worth it," she said.

Beatrice Wulbert, who lives in the San Tropai condominium complex off Baldwin Lane, south of Dundee Road, agreed.

"It's not safe there, not safe at all," she said. "Why can't we get the speed limit there reduced from 50 to 35 miles per hour? When the maximum speed limit was lowered from 70 to 55 it reduced accidents. Why wouldn't this do the same?"

John Schwarz, district traffic signal engineer, said a reduced speed limit will not reduce hazards in the area.

"THE VIOLATION rate there now exceeds 50 per cent," he said. "To reduce the speed limit would only increase the violation rate, not solve the problem."

Township Highway Comr. Robert Bergman said township officials recognize that the intersection is dangerous but that they cannot install a traffic signal there until Baldwin Road is upgraded by developers who built along it.

He said the builders have promised to improve the road by the end of the year and that written agreement by them is expected to be sent to the township soon.

Schwarz said it often takes up to eight months for even a high priority intersection to be equipped with traffic lights after approval.

Other intersections township trustees said they consider to be hazardous include Quentin and Dundee roads, Smith and Dundee roads and Illinois Avenue and Plum Grove Road.

250 houses planned on north edge

Arlingdale Development is planning to build 250 homes on an 80-acre tract on Hoffman Estates' northern edge.

The land, between Palatine and Bradwell roads west of the Westbury subdivision, is owned by former Chicago aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda. It is now zoned for high-rise apartments.

Patrick Taylor, Arlingdale president, said the land will be divided into 60 9,250 square-foot lots and 190 7,500 square-foot lots. The homes would sell for $80,000 to $115,000, he said.

THE HOFFMAN ESTATES firm has begun clearing land nearby for a similar development. Arlingdale's Manchester Cove subdivision, at the northwest corner of Algonquin and Ela roads, covers 50 acres and includes 138 houses.

Originally, Arlingdale had proposed to build 151 houses on 8,500 square-foot lots in Manchester Cove. Before agreeing to annex the land in May, the village increased the minimum lot size to 9,250 square feet.

That annexation angered officials in neighboring Inverness who argued that lots should be at least 40,000 square feet — nearly an acre — to be compatible with nearby homes in Inverness.

The Inverness Village Board and the Barrington Area Council of governments have voted to file a lawsuit to contest the annexation, but Inverness Village Pres. Russell Puzey said the suit has not been filed. "It's not dead yet," he said. "Not by a long shot."

INVERNESS OFFICIALS will watch Arlingdale's newest plans "with much interest," he said. "Hoffman Estates certainly could be more considerate of its neighbors."

The 80-acre tract was annexed to Hoffman Estates in the 1960s. In 1971, the owners — Wigoda, Keane and Keane's brother George — won a lawsuit seeking apartment zoning for the property. At the time, they planned to build 1,352 units in 17 high-rise buildings, but their plans fell through because there were no water or sewer lines in the area. Since then, however, water and sewerage has been extended into the area to serve several major subdivisions.

In May, Bongli Marketing of Rolling Meadows said it had "a 50-50 chance" of purchasing the property for a single-family development. Bongli officials were unavailable for comment Thursday.

YVONNE HERRON holds her 19-month-old daughter as she sits near the empty doorway of her Arrowhead Village apartment in Palatine Township. The door to the apartment was removed Friday by the management and has yet to be replaced. Electricity to the apartment also has been shut off even though Mrs. Herron said she paid her electric bill. She said the tactics are attempts by the management to force her to move from the complex.

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed. Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said. MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

MRS. HERRON SAID other black families live at Arrowhead but she is not close friends with any of them. She said she believes the management wants her to leave because she has applied for low-income housing assistance.

Mrs. Herron said Amdur-Katz took over management of the complex early this year but she had no problems with the firm until April, when her lease expired.

asked. Harry O'Brien, executive director of the chamber, confirmed that the group got its application in before the Fourth.

"We sent it in way back when because of the arguing over this year's booth," he said. In 1976 the organization made about $800.

Howes said he believes Meyer always will favor the chamber or some other business-oriented group over the legion.

BUT MEYER SAID he simply granted the license to the first group that asked for it. He said the Fourth committee had no authority to decide who should get the booth.

Win Wittig, Fourth of July chairwoman, said although she knew she did not have the authority to grant a liquor license, she thought it was her committee's job to choose the participants.

"I'm against beer booths in general, especially if there's favoritism," she said. "I really feel the Fourth should be a free day for the citizens and not a money-making day."

Meyer said he'll look into it further before deciding if it should be eliminated.

"It's a headache to me," he said. "I don't have the time to go around to see who wants it. That's not my job. But I don't know how big a part of the celebration the beer booth is. I'll hold off until after January and I'll sit down with the committee and discuss it. But I don't want the committee to decide who should get it. That's not their authority."

MEANWHILE, the legionnaires, who believe the Fourth of July is their day, may be dropping out sooner than they'd planned.

This year some of the legionnaires marched only because Meyer was out of town.

"If Meyer is in it, I may have a hard time getting the guys to march," Howes said. "And if he leads the parade, I know they won't march."

Two men charged in invasion of home

Two Rolling Meadows men charged in connection with a Rolling Meadows home invasion are scheduled to appear Sept. 20 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Bruce Keener, 20, of 2102 George Dr., and Kevin Smith, 19, of 4608 Sycamore Dr., allegedly broke into the apartment of Michael Contine, 19, of 2300 Algonquin Pkwy. Aug. 19.

Keener allegedly put a knife to the throat of Contine's friend, Kevin Dillon, 19, of 2403 Algonquin Parkway and demanded money. Keener took $145 from Dillon, police said.

Smith and Keener allegedly took a $200 stereo belonging to Contine. Neither Contine or Dillon were injured in the robbery.

Keener is charged with armed robbery, robbery and escape. He was charged with escape after he fled the Rolling Meadows police station during booking, police said.

Smith is charged with robbery and armed robbery. He also is facing a charge of assault stemming from an incident in which he held off police for an hour after allegedly threatening to slash his mother with two broken pop bottles.

Smith was arrested Aug. 24. Keener was arrested Saturday by Cook County Forest Preserve rangers who found him overdosed on drugs in the Busse Woods Forest Preserve off Arlington Heights and Higgins roads, authorities said.

THE GEORGE Kyprianidis family has lived at Brandenberry Park East apartments in Arlington Heights for four years, but now must leave for no apparent reason. Village officials are investigating why they were given only one week's notice that their lease will not be renewed. From left, are Nia, Billy, George, Mario and Dino.

Family disturbed by forced move

by BILL HILL

The two-bedroom apartment is slightly crowded, but for four years it has been home for the George Kyprianidis family.

However, George, his wife, Nia, and their three boys have been told by the management at Brandenberry Park East Apartments that they must move. They have been charged double the normal rent since Aug. 31 when their lease expired.

It is upsetting for the young family to move now, especially when the three boys are happily settled in school and the two-bedroom apartment is all they can afford.

Brandenberry has refused to tell Kyprianidis why the lease is not being renewed. Because Kyprianidis said he was given no explanation and only one week's notice, Arlington Heights officials are investigating whether the Brandenberry management is violating housing discrimination laws. The apartments are located at 2424 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

"They want to throw me out before I can find a new place to live. They don't want to give no reason cause they'll be automatically guilty," Kyprianidis said.

KYPRIANIDIS SAID he can only guess why Brandenberry refuses to renew his lease. One of his theories is that they are trying to weed out tenants with children. He said he knows of other families that in the past year have not been allowed to renew their leases.

Kyprianidis also said he thinks the management at Brandenberry may be retaliating against him for complaining to village health officials last winter about a lack of heat, a broken water tank, poor water pressure, broken drapery rods and doors and the need for new paint on the walls.

Brandenberry officials Wednesday refused to comment, except to say they plan to prosecute Kyprianidis as a "holdover" tenant, meaning they will seek damages, legal fees and double rent for every day the Greek family remains in the apartment.

Kyprianidis' lease on the $280-a-month apartment expired Aug. 31. It was not until Aug. 24 that he received a letter informing him he could extend his lease for one month, but that it could not be renewed.

"I say to them, why not? I say I need more time," Kyprianidis said. "Now I have to move anyway cause they're gonna be on my back. You make trouble out you go," said the 38-year-old employee of O'Hare Metal Co., Elk Grove Village.

DANIEL TARRY, environmental health officer for Arlington Heights, sent a letter to Brandenberry officials Sept. 2 to inform them the village was investigating the circumstances around the sudden refusal to renew Kyprianidis' lease. Tarry also asked for detailed reasons for that decision.

Brandenberry officials have not responded to Tarry, but the next day Kyprianidis received a letter saying that "nothing the village says or does short of a court order will relieve you of the full liability you have for illegally holding our apartment, including all damages, legal fees and double rent for every day you remain."

Kyprianidis said Wednesday he hopes to move his family by the end of September. But he does not know what to do about the "double rent" charges and he continues to ask for an explanation for Brandenberry's refusal to renew his lease.

"It's because I opened my mouth. It's because I complained that they won't paint the apartment, that there's no heat, that there's no hot water. One of my boys has chronic bronchitis. We have to have heat," Kyprianidis said.

Tarry said that it is becoming apparent that there are many tenants of Arlington Heights apartment complexes that are "up against the wall." The over-all vacancy rate at Arlington Heights apartments has dropped below 5 per cent, resulting in a seller's market, he said.

"WE FREQUENTLY get complaints like this one, not just from Brandenberry," Tarry said. "The people always say, 'Please don't use my name because the management will retaliate.' I always thought that was a little hard to believe. But now I think maybe there's some validity to it, that maybe there is retaliation, possibly in the form of not renewing the lease," he said.

"What strikes me about this case is that here is a man and his family, they've been there four years. What happened all of a sudden? They deserve a reason and he should have been entitled to at least a 30-day notice," Tarry said.

Village officials jumped into another housing controversy in April when the Twelve Oaks Apartments, 1126 S. Wilke Rd., announced plans to charge $15 extra a month for each child living in the complex. The village board passed an ordinance prohibiting such a policy and the plan was dropped.

Lutheran Home to dedicate addition

The $3.5 million addition to the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, will be dedicated at 3 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with the Lutheran Home's annual fall festival.

The addition will be called the Walter E. Olson Convalescent Center because the project was made possible by a grant from the Walter E. Olson Foundation.

Olson was the founder and president of the Olson Rug Co. of Chicago. It was Olson's directive that the foundation established in his name distribute his assets to aid hospitals, children's homes and homes for the aged.

The Olson Convalescent Center adds 126 private rooms, increasing the Lutheran Home to 479 private rooms.

The addition also includes a medical clinic with doctor's offices, examination rooms, a dental suite, physical therapy facilities, a laboratory and a pharmacy. It also contains offices for the community services division and an employee and visitor cafeteria and dining room.

Guest speaker at the dedication Sunday will be Neil L. Gaynes, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of Home for the Aging.

Woman beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Morla Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,887; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

Related story on Page 9

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

JUDGE ARCHIE Simonson of Madison, Wis. puts a round on election day.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

BUT OUTSIDE in the streets of Washington, and in Panama, small groups of antitreaty protesters staged

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2803 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

diversionary rallies — the Americans denouncing the treaties as "treason" and a sellout of America's heritage, and the Panamanians demanding much swifter return of the waterway.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the United States the right to defend the canal's "neutrality" after that.

They would replace the 1903 accord negotiated by President Theodore Roosevelt as a triumph of his big-stick diplomacy and the "manifest destiny" policies of that era.

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest-free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

But the report from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency said none of Lance's banking transactions appeared to be in violation of federal banking laws, and "we do not believe that the prosecution of any individuals is warranted."

The report, released by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

which is investigating Lance's activities prior to joining the government, also said there were instances when Lance made temporary overdrafts.

ON THAT SCORE, press secretary Jody Powell said the White House was aware of overdraft problems before Lance was confirmed as director of the Office of Management and Budget; that the problems all had been cleared up, and that a Justice Dept. investigation "determined there was no ground for criminal prosecution."

The report, a supplement to one issued by the comptroller's office Aug. 18 on Lance's dealings immediately before Carter tapped him as budget director, said Lance used the interest-free deposit method to obtain more than a dozen loans dating back to 1963. Neither report found grounds for prosecution.

But both reports raised questions about the effectiveness of federal controls over the banking business, and a House banking subcommittee is holding hearings on that general subject.

COMPTROLLER John Heimann forwarded the additional findings to both the House subcommittee and to the Senate Committee, which will have the opportunity to press Heimann (Continued on Page 3)

Housing hassle makes future bleak

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it (Continued on Page 5)

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

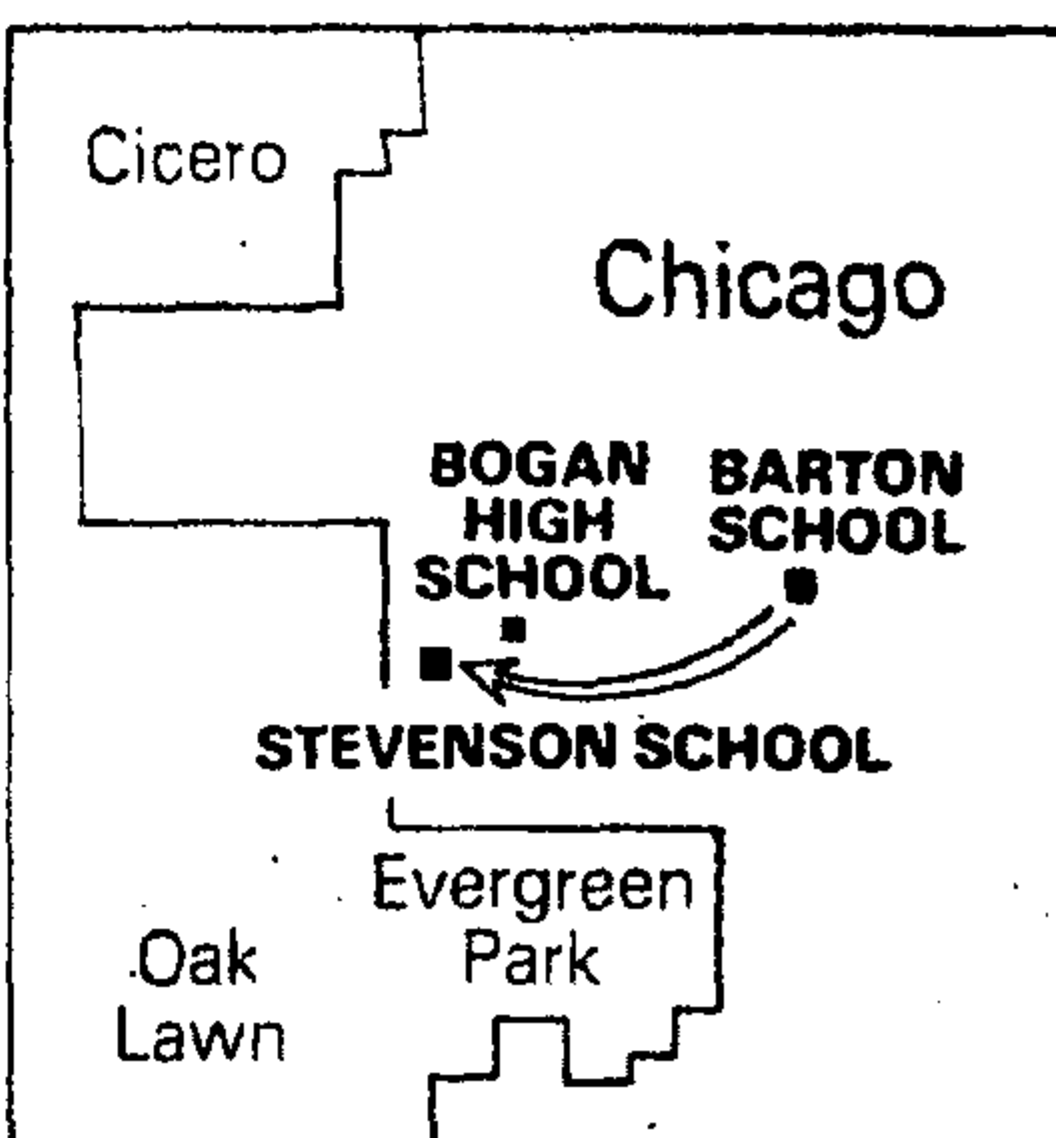

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

MRS. HERRON SAID other black families live at Arrowhead but she is not close friends with any of them. She said she believes the management wants her to leave because she has applied for low-income housing assistance.

Mrs. Herron said Amdur-Katz took over management of the complex early this year but she had no problems with the firm until April, when her lease expired.

"I never had any problems with the old management," she said.

Mrs. Herron said she has contacted several groups including Operation PUSH, in an effort to help her get the problems corrected until she can move. She said Wednesday she was still waiting to hear from the groups. And until she does, Mrs. Herron said there is little she can do until she can find another place to live. "I want to move as soon as I can," she said.

Officials hear traffic complaints

About 50 Palatine Township residents, most of whom live near Baldwin and Dundee roads, Wednesday night told state highway officials that traffic congestion in the area is extremely hazardous.

Citizens of the unincorporated area asked for immediate assistance to alleviate what they call a potentially deadly problem.

They addressed officials of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation at a meeting cosponsored by the governor's committee on traffic safety and Palatine Township.

"WE HAVE been told that six people have to get killed at this intersection before we get a light installed there," said Joyce Blau, who lives near Baldwin Road but did not want her address published.

"The situation is critical. I don't care what traffic signals cost. If it saves one life it's worth it," she said.

Beatrice Wulbert, who lives in the San Tropai condominium complex off Baldwin Lane, south of Dundee Road, agreed.

"It's not safe there, not safe at all," she said. "Why can't we get the speed limit there reduced from 50 to 35 miles per hour? When the maximum speed limit was lowered from 70 to 55 it reduced accidents. Why wouldn't this do the same?"

John Schwarz, district traffic signal engineer, said a reduced speed limit will not reduce hazards in the area.

"THE VIOLATION rate there now exceeds 50 per cent," he said. "To reduce the speed limit would only increase the violation rate, not solve the problem."

Township Highway Comr. Robert Bergman said township officials recognize that the intersection is dangerous but that they cannot install a traffic signal there until Baldwin Road is upgraded by developers who built along it.

He said the builders have promised to improve the road by the end of the year and that written agreement by them is expected to be sent to the township soon.

Schwarz said it often takes up to eight months for even a high priority intersection to be equipped with traffic lights after approval.

Other intersections township trustees said they consider to be hazardous include Quentin and Dundee roads, Smith and Dundee roads and Illinois Avenue and Plum Grove Road.

YVONNE HERRON holds her 19-month-old daughter as she sits near the empty doorway of her Arrowhead Village apartment in Palatine Township. The door to the apartment was removed Friday by the management and has yet to be replaced. Electricity to the apartment also has been shut off even though Mrs. Herron said she paid her electric bill. She said the tactics are attempts by the management to force her to move from the complex.

Paramedics plan education project

by LUISA GINETTI

It may only be a dream but if Palatine paramedics Dale Collier and Lee Plate have their way, more than two-thirds of the 60,000 residents in the Palatine Rural Fire District in two years will be trained in emergency lifesaving techniques.

The dream is based on a proposal developed by Collier and Plate which will, with the help of community groups, be an on-going program of training in five different emergency-service related areas. They include fire prevention, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation training, first-aid, emergency dispatch training and first responder training.

The fire department currently conducts classes in several of the areas but the new proposal would involve an all-encompassing program aimed at all areas of the community, including schools, businesses, industry, homeowners' associations and individuals.

THE PROJECT, called The Public Education and Information Program, would work as follows.

In the area of first responder training, the fire department would teach emergency medical techniques to individuals most likely to arrive first at the scene, such as police and school officials. Emergency dispatch training would be given to dispatchers who man the village's fire and police central dispatch center.

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation training would be given to high school teachers who in turn would teach it to seniors and night school students.

In addition park district instructors would be trained in CPR to offer a class for the public and the fire department would provide training to community groups, merchants, industries and private organizations.

FIRE PREVENTION information would be given out to individuals, homeowners' groups, industries, merchants and grammar schools.

First aid training would be offered through the fire department and the park district.

The two paramedics said this type of emergency training program is the first of its kind in the country.

"Many communities do one or two of these things but nobody has a program to do it all," Plate said. He said he and Collier were attending an emergency medical symposium in San Francisco earlier this year where the idea for the program blossomed.

"We started talking to others who were doing one or two of these things and we decided why not do it all," Plate said.

COLLIER SAID the program would involve much paperwork to coordinate activities. A center for such work would be established including a board of directors to oversee the program. He said members will include merchants and homeowner association officials as well as fire department personnel.

Collier, Plate and Fire Chief Harvey C. Carothers are counting on the community spirit for financial backing.

The proposal has been presented to the Palatine Advisory Board where fire officials hope to get most of their monetary contributions.

Collier estimated it will take between $15,000 and $20,000 annually to get the program started and working. The money is needed for equipment, film strips and other materials which will be used.

"We want to stress to the groups that any money they give us will be turned back directly to them because they will be getting the training," Collier said.

CAROTHERS SAID he is confident the community will support the program.

"There isn't a week that goes by that we don't get some type of donation to the department," he said. "The community spirit is fantastic."

The program will need on-going contributions as well as support from the village board, he said.

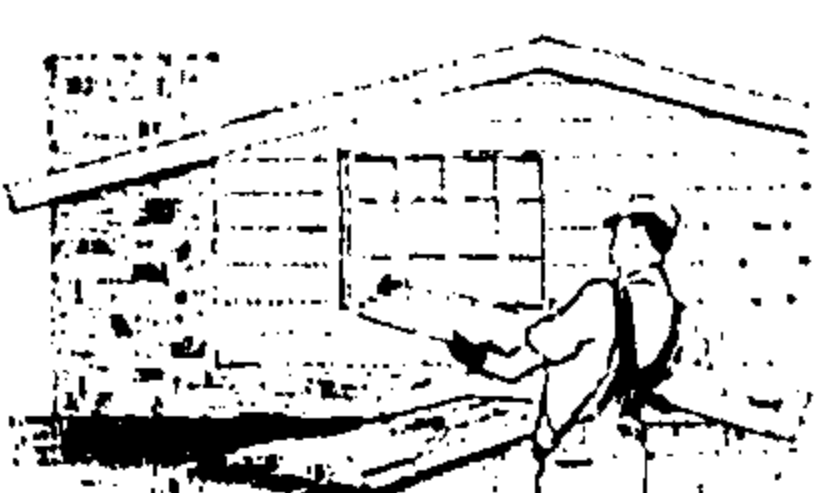

Once the program is established, Collier said it will be one to two years before it becomes totally operational. The program center will keep statistics and compile annual reports so the department, the village and the community can keep abreast of the program's progress.

Dr. Stanley Zydlow, director of emergency services at Northwest Community Hospital, would serve as medical coordinator for the program.

Town seeks end to lease at bank

Palatine wants out of its lease with the Bank of Palatine if a new tenant can be found for the meeting room it now rents.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said a letter will be sent to Winn C. Davidson, bank president, saying the village's lease for the meeting will not be extended beyond the Feb. 28 expiration date.

Harwig also said the village will agree to break the lease and move out within 15 days if the bank can find a new tenant.

The village leases the meeting room at the bank, 1 E. Northwest Hwy., for $10,000 a year.

The village uses the room for meetings of the village board, plan commission, zoning board and other village commissions because there are no meeting chambers at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

If the bank lease is broken, meetings will be at the old Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St., which has been purchased jointly by the village and Palatine Park District. The school will be converted into a municipal center.

Harwig said if the bank can find no tenant for the space, the village will continue to use the bank room for meetings since it will be paying rent for the space through February.

July 4 beer booth issue comes to a head a year early

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The Fourth of July is 10 months away, but already the battle lines are being drawn for the fight over who will get the beer concession at Rolling Meadows' next celebration.

The American Legion again is threatening not to march in the parade unless it can operate the lucrative beer booth.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who as liquor commissioner will decide who operates the booth, said the booth may be more trouble than it's worth and is talking about doing away with it.

And the city's chamber of commerce, which has operated the booth the past two years, is sitting back and waiting.

WILL HOWES, commander of American Legion Post 1251, and other legionnaires believe that Meyer treated the legion unfairly this year when he granted the chamber the license for the booth.

Meyer awarded the license to the chamber in February. He did not heed a recommendation from the Fourth of July Committee that it be withdrawn and the legion allowed to run the booth.

This time the legion got its application in early. Two weeks after this summer's celebration, the organization applied for the 1978 license. Howes said he expected an answer by the end of August.

But again the chamber was one step ahead of the legion. It got its 1978 application in first, one week before July 4, 1977.

MEYER SAID he'll wait until after the first of the year to grant the license because he got more than one application. But Howes doesn't believe it.

"Are you sure the chamber put the application in, or did Meyer?" he asked.

Harry O'Brien, executive director of the chamber, confirmed that the group got its application in before the Fourth.

"We sent it in way back when because of the arguing over this year's booth," he said. In 1976 the organization made about $800.

Howes said he believes Meyer always will favor the chamber or some other business-oriented group over the legion.

BUT MEYER SAID he simply granted the license to the first group that asked for it. He said the Fourth committee had no authority to decide who should get the booth.

Win Wittig, Fourth of July chairwoman, said although she knew she did not have the authority to grant a liquor license, she thought it was her committee's job to choose the participants.

"I'm against beer booths in general, especially if there's favoritism," she said. "I really feel the Fourth should be a free day for the citizens and not a money-making day."

Meyer said he'll look into it further before deciding if it should be eliminated.

"It's a headache to me," he said. "I don't have the time to go around to see who wants it. That's not my job. But I don't know how big a part of the celebration the beer booth is. I'll hold off until after January and I'll sit down with the committee and discuss it. But I don't want the committee to decide who should get it. That's not their authority."

MEANWHILE, the legionnaires, who believe the Fourth of July is their day, may be dropping out sooner than they'd planned.

This year some of the legionnaires marched only because Meyer was out of town.

"If Meyer is in it, I may have a hard time getting the guys to march," Howes said. "And if he leads the parade, I know they won't march."

Arlingdale plans to build 250 houses on north edge

Arlingdale Development is planning to build 250 homes on an 80-acre tract on Hoffman Estates' northern edge.

The land, between Palatine and Bradwell roads west of the Westbury subdivision, is owned by former Chicago aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda. It is now zoned for high-rise apartments.

Patrick Taylor, Arlingdale president, said the land will be divided into 60 9,250 square-foot lots and 190 7,500 square-foot lots. The homes would sell for $80,000 to $115,000, he said.

THE HOFFMAN ESTATES firm has begun clearing land nearby for a similar development. Arlingdale's Manchester Cove subdivision, at the northwest corner of Algonquin and Ela roads, covers 50 acres and includes 138 houses.

Originally, Arlingdale had proposed to build 151 houses on 8,500 square-foot lots in Manchester Cove. Before agreeing to annex the land in May, the village increased the minimum lot size to 9,250 square feet.

That annexation angered officials in neighboring Inverness who argued that lots should be at least 40,000 square feet — nearly an acre — to be compatible with nearby homes in Inverness.

The Inverness Village Board and the Barrington Area Council of governments have voted to file a lawsuit to contest the annexation, but Inverness Village Pres. Russell Puzey said the suit has not been filed. "It's not dead yet," he said. "Not by a long shot."

INVERNESS OFFICIALS will watch Arlingdale's newest plans "with much interest," he said. "Hoffman Estates certainly could be more considerate of its neighbors."

The 80-acre tract was annexed to Hoffman Estates in the 1960s. In 1971, the owners — Wigoda, Keane and Keane's brother George — won a lawsuit seeking apartment zoning for the property. At the time, they planned to build 1,352 units in 17 high-rise buildings, but their plans fell through because there were no water or sewer lines in the area. Since then, however, water and sewerage has been extended into the area to serve several major subdivisions.

In May, Bongli Marketing of Rolling Meadows said it had "a 50-50 chance" of purchasing the property for a single-family development. Bongli officials were unavailable for comment Thursday.

Keane and Wigoda were convicted of fraud, conspiracy and income tax evasion in 1974 in connection with unrelated land deals in Chicago.

Square D to break ground Friday

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the multi-million dollar Square D, Inc., headquarters at Roselle Road and Euclid Avenue Palatine, will be at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Officials from the company as well as village officials will attend the ceremony, which will be followed by a luncheon at the Pickwick Restaurant, 10 N. Northwest Hwy.

The world headquarters for the company, which manufactures electrical equipment, will be built on 38 acres at the northeast corner of Roselle and Euclid. The area was rezoned and annexed to Palatine last year when company officials proposed plans for the development to village officials.

Design plans call for the building to have a three-story terrace effect with 156,000 square feet of space. The complex will have a man-made retention pond in front of it with the building facing the intersection. A 330-car parking lot will be located in back of the building on the east end.

The center will house an estimated 200 employees with growth potential for 350 employees in 10 years.

Company officials have not disclosed the cost of the complex except to say the facility will cost in excess of $1 million.

Woman beats Simonson in Madison recall election

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Voters removed Dane County Judge Archie Simonson from the bench Wednesday for suggesting that a boy accused in a rape case may have been reacting normally to provocative dress by women and moral permissiveness.

An unofficial count gave Madison attorney Moria Krueger — the only woman in the six-way recall election — 27,244 compared to Simonson's 18,435. On their heels came Daniel Moeser with 12,867; William Bradford Smith, 7,242; Robert Burr, 4,242; and Worth Piper, 2,750.

Simonson had built up a small early lead, largely from rural precincts. Mrs. Krueger, however, overtook Simonson when votes from Madison began coming in.

SIMONSON, 52, became the first state judge recalled since the recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

Related story on Page 9

The judge's troubles began May 25 after comments he made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy to court supervision at home for a no contest plea to a charge of second degree sexual assault. The boy was one of three accused of attacking a girl in a high school stairwell last November.

Before sentencing, Simonson asked rhetorically whether he should punish severely someone who might be reacting normally to provocative dress and sexual permissiveness. The woman prosecutor wanted the boy sent to a home.

"It (sex) is readily available," Simonson said. "It is really wide open and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?"

THE GIRL WHO was attacked had been wearing blue jeans and a blouse over a turtle neck sweater.

Simonson said he was not concerned with the particulars of the case — not even fully aware of them — when he made his comments. He said he had generalized about sexual permissiveness prevalent in Madison.

One of Simonson's opponents accused the judge of lying for saying he did not have all the facts when they were included in a delinquency petition. And, the judge admitted he was "exaggerating a little bit" when he maintained, contrary to the law, that second degree sexual assault covers everything from stealing a kiss to rape.

High school gets black eye in rape case controversy

by DAVID CORONNA

MADISON, Wis. — It started last fall when three boys pushed a girl down a high school stairwell.

And what followed was a raging controversy that cost a judge his job, a school its reputation and this liberal university community many sleepless nights.

The alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl at West High School and what Judge Archie Simonson thought about it and the three youths involved in the case touched off a controversy that seemed to involve everyone — feminists, liberals, conservatives, educators, students, blacks and whites.

Petitions with more than 35,000 signatures calling for Simonson's removal were filled, putting him in the position of being the first judge in Wisconsin to be ousted from office since the state's recall amendment was adopted in 1926.

PUBLIC FORUMS were called by concerned citizens. At one of them, sponsored by the local Rotary Club, Simonson said, "There is no just cause for my removal from office."

Voters didn't believe him, as evidenced by his defeat in Wednesday's recall election.

That election may have ended Simonson's tenure on the bench, but back at West High School, where it all began, the vote didn't change a thing.

School officials, teachers and students believe the controversy gave the school a black eye.

"Simonson never should have made those statements," Assistant Principal Milton McPike said of the judge's comments that a 15-year-old boy was reacting "normally" to sexual permissiveness and provocative woman's clothing when the youth sexually as-

Carter signs Panama Canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the stroke of a pen, President Carter Wednesday promised to give up Teddy Roosevelt's Panama Canal at the turn of the century and to open "a new partnership" with Latin America based on "fairness, not force."

Carter and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos signed the historic new canal treaties Wednesday evening under blazing chandeliers in ceremonies attended by the leaders of 27 American nations, former President Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger, Lady Bird Johnson and congressional leaders.

The signing ceremony — televised live throughout the Western Hemisphere — cleared the way for a long, fierce ratification battle in the Senate, without whose approval the pacts are mere scraps of paper.

CARTER AND TORRIJOS each included a plea for Senate approval in their brief ceremonial remarks.

Then they signed four copies of the red and blue-bound, looseleaf treaties, turned to each other and embraced amid deafening applause in the Pan American Union building's Hall of the Americas.

The President and Mrs. Carter later hosted a gala State Dinner for the 17 Western Hemisphere chiefs of state and other ranking dignitaries.

Guests consumed lobster and roast meats on gold dinnerware, sipped wine from crystal goblets and were entertained by violinist Isaac Stern, pianist Andre Previn and soprano Maria Arroyo.

Residents balk at giving up canal

by DANN GIRE

In Russell Ward's opinion, "President Jimmy Carter is playing bingo with American interests" by signing the Panama Canal Treaty, giving the canal over to the Panamanian government by the end of the century.

"I am unalterably opposed to it," said Ward, 61, only hours after Carter signed the treaty with Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos at the White House.

Ward and his wife, who have lived in Arlington Heights since 1949, said they believe the treaty is a mistake for the country.

"After they (Panama officials) take it over, they can turn us off like a faucet turns off water. Seventy-five per cent of our commerce goes through that canal, either to or from America. It won't be long before we see Alaskan oil come through the canal."

WARD, 132 S. HIGHLAND Ave., laid out his prediction for the treaty's future in simple words: "He (Carter) hasn't got a chance in hell of getting that treaty ratified."

"I feel the same way," said his wife, Ethel.

And so did most of the other persons interviewed Wednesday night.

Richard Kiszka, 24, of 2803 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows, said he believes the treaty "is a very bad thing."

"After it gets in the hands of the Panamanians, the canal can be used against us in war time," said Kiszka, a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School.

Michael Santy, 23, a bartender from Rolling Meadows, said signing the treaty was a mistake.

"Why should we give it up? We paid for it. We built it. We own the land," (Continued on Page 3)

Interest-free deposits netted Lance big loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance and his wife obtained about $800,000 in loans in the early 1970s by making interest free deposits in the lending bank, federal banking regulators said in a new report released Wednesday on the budget director's financial history.

The treaties, under negotiation for 13 years since Lyndon Johnson was president, would return full control of the 51-mile waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999, while preserving for the United States the right to defend the canal's "neutrality" after that. They would replace the 1903 accord negotiated by President Theodore Roosevelt as a triumph of his big-stick diplomacy and the "manifest destiny" policies of that era.

Parents now liable for vandalism

by DEBBE JONAK

Two months after young vandals destroyed the inside of a Prospect Heights home, the city council has passed a law making parents responsible for their children's actions.

The new law, adopted Tuesday, cannot be applied to the five juveniles charged with ransacking the Gerald Schubring house, 1008 W. Wildwood Dr., in July. However, aldermen expressed hope it would serve to deter future acts of vandalism.

Parents will be fined up to $500 if their children are convicted of willfully injuring a person or damaging property. They will not be fined for the first offense.

THE PENALTY is the maximum allowed by state law for towns that are not home-rule communities. Proponents of the ordinance said a threat of a large fine may convince parents to keep a closer watch on their offspring.

"Parents should know where their children are," Ald. John Fedyski said. "Some of my best friends are good people, but not responsible parents. So over the years their children deteriorate."

The ordinance does not deal with restitution for damages, which often is handled through civil suits. Only one alderman voted against the ordinance.

ALD. EDWARD BRYANT opposed it, saying, "I disagree with the philosophy of the ordinance. I intend to vote no on it, even though there's been a great clamor for it . . . at the last few meetings."

"I don't really think they know what they're asking for," he said. He did not detail his objections to it and could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Aldermen and residents called for quick passage of the ordinance at (Continued on Page 5)

Peaceful busing met by boycott, some heckling

by ANNA MADRZYK

Some 500 black and Latino children were bused peacefully into predominantly white Chicago schools Wednesday, met only by a student boycott and some heckling on the city's Southwest Side.

Most parents in the Bogan High School area kept their children home to protest the voluntary busing plan, with about 175 of the high school's 1,200 students in attendance. At three Bogan area elementary schools, only 200 of the 1,000 children enrolled showed up.

"We'll just have the first day of school tomorrow (Thursday)," said James B. Cunningham, principal of Hancock School, 4350 W. 79th St.

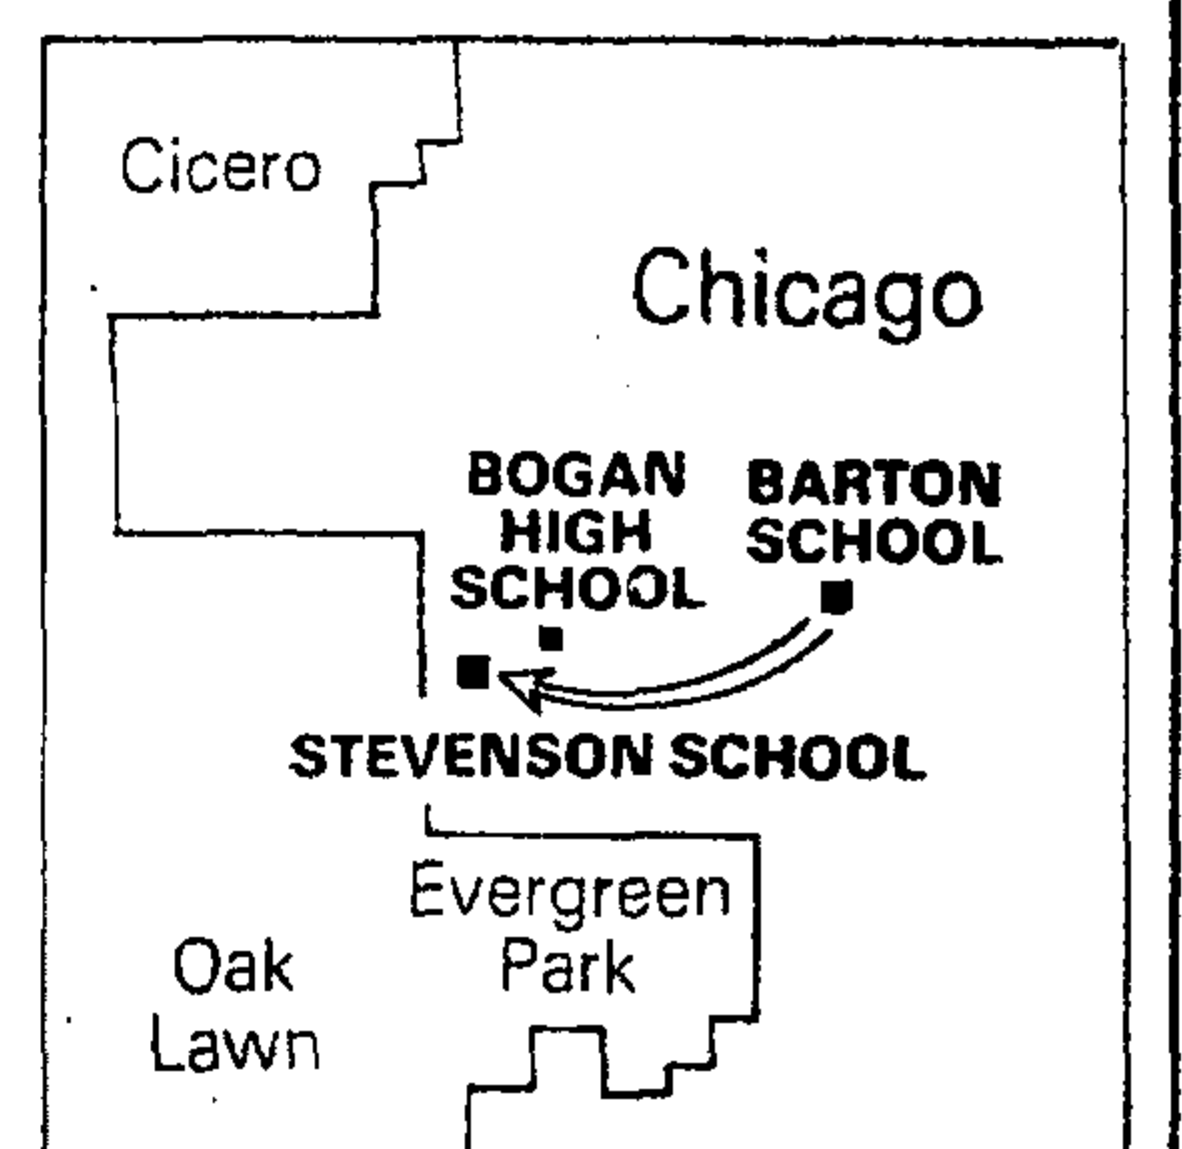

The controversial busing program involves the voluntary transfer of children from 15 "critically overcrowded" schools to more than 30 predominantly white schools. It is designed to ease overcrowding and improve the racial balance in the city's schools.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT Wednesday was on the Bogan area, where residents have vocally resisted the transfer program since it was approved last May by the Chicago Board of Education. Security was tight, but the feared violence never resulted.

Each bus used in the program carried a policeman and had a squad car escort. About 800 policemen were on duty throughout

Housing struggle makes future bleak for family

by LUISA GINETTI

In a three-bedroom apartment where the front door has been removed and the electricity turned off, Yvonne Herron and her five children ponder a bleak future.

The black family moved from St. Louis to the Arrowhead Village Apartments, 1912 Cambridge Ct., in Palatine Township almost two years ago. She paid her $374-a-month rent on time and never had any problems with the management — until now.

"They told me they want me to leave and they won't accept my rent," Mrs. Herron said. Saturday she received a notice to be out of the apartment by Sept. 26 or face eviction.

Mrs. Herron's problems with the management began in April when her one-year lease expired. She said she was told it would not be renewed but it would be extended on a month-to-month basis until she found a new home.

"I HAD ASKED about low-income housing and I got a certificate to qualify for it," she said. "I know they have low-income housing here (at Arrowhead) but they didn't want to give it to me."

She said when she tried to pay her rent for July and August, the management refused it.

Friday, the front door to her apartment was removed, Mrs. Herron said, and though management officials at the complex said it was one of several to be replaced, a new door still had not been put up as of Wednesday.

"They said they'd get me a door but if they intended to replace it they would have done it by now," she said.

MRS. HERRON SAID she also has been without electricity for three days, which has caused most of the food in her refrigerator to spoil.

"I called Commonwealth Edison because I paid my bill and they said it wasn't a power failure because that would have affected the whole building," she said. "I think the management turned the electricity off because they have a key to the power room."

Management officials from Amdur-Katz Associates, Chicago, refused to comment on the matter but Barry Katz, co-owner of the firm, said the management would not turn off utilities. He added that he is "totally unaware of the specifics" of the case.

Mrs. Herron said she is trying to arrange for new housing in the area through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights because she is anxious to leave Arrowhead.

"I LIKE LIVING in the suburbs because the schools are good," she said. Her 18-year-old daughter is retarded, Mrs. Herron said, and attends Kirk Center in Palatine. "It's the best school she's ever been in," she said.

Her 17-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter attend Palatine High School while her 7-year-old daughter is a student at Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Herron, who lives on Social Security payments and public aid, said she is unable to work because she must care for her 19-month-old daughter who was born with brain damage. The child receives therapy four times a week at the Clearbrook Center and Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

She said she has called the Cook County Sheriff's police in an effort to get her electricity turned on and the front door replaced but they said the problem is a civil matter which they can do nothing about.

"I never dreamed anything like this could happen," she said. "I want to get out but I have to find a place first."

MRS. HERRON SAID other black families live at Arrowhead but she is not close friends with any of them. She said she believes the management wants her to leave because she has applied for low-income housing assistance.

Mrs. Herron said Amdur-Katz took over management of the complex early this year but she had no problems with the firm until April, when her lease expired.

"I never had any problems with the old management," she said.

Mrs. Herron said she has contacted several groups including Operation PUSH, in an effort to help her get the problems corrected until she can move. She said Wednesday she was still waiting to hear from the groups.

And until she does, Mrs. Herron said there is little she can do until she can find another place to live.

"I want to move as soon as I can," she said.

Dist. 59 OKs $30,000 testing plan

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has allocated $30,000 for the development of performance tests to see how well students are mastering the district's curriculum.

The money will be used to pay teachers who work overtime to outline the basic skills students should be learning at each grade level and to pay consultants to design tests to see how well the skills are being learned.

Attention initially will be devoted to spelling, reading and math. Although a complete testing system will not be developed by the end of the year, it should be well on its way, Richard Stamm, chairman of the board's curriculum and testing committee, said.

"WE'RE TAKING on a job that took the Chicago school system three to five years," Assistant Supt. Robert Brower said.

No money will be spent on developing the tests without prior board approval, Stamm said.

The push for performance tests grew out of teacher and administrator criticism of the national standardized Iowa Tests of Basic Skills, which are administered each year to third through eighth graders. The two groups said the tests do not measure what is being taught in the district and may not be the most suitable achievement test to use.

The criticism came this past spring after the release of Iowa test scores showing District 59 sixth and eighth graders slightly below the national average in math skills and reading. Seventh graders also fell below the national average in reading.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a contract giving teachers an average 7 per cent salary increase for the 1977-78 school year.

The district's teachers will receive salary increases ranging from 4 to 8 per cent, with teachers already receiving top pay for their qualifications getting 4 per cent salary increases.

The contract raises starting teachers' salaries to $10,300, about $400 more than the starting pay teachers received in 1976-77.

The top salary for a teacher with 15 years of experience, a master's degree and 30 hours toward a doctoral degree will be $21,700 next year.

Legal fee payment angers citizens

Mount Prospect's reimbursement of legal expenses incurred by residents involved in a controversial zoning battle in the northeast section of the village is illegal and sets a dangerous precedent, according to some residents ready to challenge the action in court.

In a statement to the village board this week, former Mayor Robert D. Teichert sought reconsideration of a $700 payment to members of the Woodview Civic Assn. for legal expenses incurred in their fight to prevent the development of a mid-rise apartment building on 3.3 acres at Camp McDonald and River roads.

"I don't want to see the floodgates open to people thinking they can run off loose into all kinds of litigation then come back (to the board) for money," Teichert said Wednesday. "This is just the tip of the iceberg. Once a precedent is established it will be followed by all kinds of requests for money."

ALTHOUGH A former village board under Teichert as mayor in April denied the homeowners group financial assistance, the new board last month voted 5-2 to reimburse them $700. The funds have not been paid yet. Trustees E. F. Richardson and Richard N. Hendricks opposed the reimbursement.

The residents contend they have spent more than $5,000 of their own money to prevent the J.M. Brickman Midwest Corp., Mount Prospect, from building multi-family housing on the parcel. They say the proposed development is not compatible with their neighborhood.

"It (700) is a reasonable figure but more important than the money is the principle, the precedent and the legality of it," Richardson said. "We as elected officials do not have the moral or legal authority to spent taxpayers' funds for private interests."

The $700 covers the residents' cost of retaining attorneys since November 1976 when the case was dismissed in Cook County Circuit Court and appealed by the developer.

THE ZONING CASE, currently in the Illinois Appellate Court, stems from Brickman's request in 1973 to develop a six-story, 85-unit apartment building with business offices on the site. The original proposal was rejected by that village board because it did not comply with Mount Prospect's building and zoning codes. Brickman, as a result, sued the village.

The village and the developer in 1974 reached an agreement allowing the builder to construct a five-story, 80-unit building on the property.

Homeowners, who contended they knew nothing of the court agreement, then intervened in the case, opposing the consent decree. The appellate court ruled in favor of the residents, saying the former village board erred by not properly informing them of the agreement during a public hearing. The case then was sent back to circuit court where it was dismissed last November by Judge Arthur Dunne. Brickman has since appealed that decision and the matter is back in the appellate court.

Former Village Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr., who with Teichert in April voted to reject a request for repayment, also asked the current board to reconsider its action. "It is patently obvious that it is an illegal act," Rhea told the board. "You open yourself to further litigation which would only cost me more as a taxpayer."

Teichert, who said he is considering legal action against the village through an injunction or declaratory judgment, sought an opinion on the matter from Louis Ancel, a Chicago attorney who the former mayor dubbed "The dean of municipal lawyers in the State of Illinois."

AFTER REVIEWING the history of the case, Ancel concluded village revenues must be spent for public purposes and payment of Mount Prospect monies to a special private interest group would constitute an "unauthorized gift of public funds."

Board members who last month voted to reimburse the residents for part of their legal fees were Trustees Norma J. Murauskis, Leo Floros, Michael H. Minton, Theodore J. Wattenberg, and Mayor Carolyn H. Krause.

"Making a mistake in business is not a sin," Minton said. "Making an error here is not one either. A certain amount of mistakes are par for the course. The payment of those legal fees is one step in recognition of the error."

Teichert criticized the board for ignoring outside legal advice it has received in the matter. "I don't want to argue the old case. That's not even at issue," he said. "The real issue is whether an elected board can take tax money from all of the people and pay it out to selected people. That I don't agree with."

Mrs. Krause said the appellate court decision invalidated the agreement and the residents legally are entitled to some compensation. "Let him sue," she said of Teichert. "I'm not going to back off because someone says I'm going to sue you if you don't change your vote. We haven't heard the end of this one. Not for a long time."

council meetings after the Schubings' house was vandalized.

The ordinance was in committee six months before it was passed. It was held up while the committee looked into setting up a program in which offenders would be counseled by a youth officer and put to work to repair damage.

HOWEVER, the committee decided Prospect Heights is not ready to institute such a program.

Schubring Wednesday said the cost to repair the damage in his house will reach $10,000. His insurance paid for $7,400 of that.

The house is "pretty well back to normal," he said.

He and his family returned from vacation July 2 to find furniture slashed, walls smashed, windows broken and food and belongings strewn on the floor.

Five youths, ages 10 to 14 were arrested two weeks later. Most lived in the Schubings' neighborhood, the northwestern section of Prospect Heights known as Country Gardens.

The youths' trial has been set for Wednesday in Cook County Juvenile Court.

Limit special ed pupils: Dist. 26

River Trails Dist. 26 officials will ask the support of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards in a push for legislation that would prohibit Maryville Academy high school students from attending Nipper School, a special education facility on the Maryville grounds.

The resolution, approved this week by the Dist. 26 Board of Education, asks that districts organized to serve elementary children be required to furnish programs for students under 15 only. The elementary districts would not have to provide high school programs, even if corresponding high school districts were unable to do so. Supt. John Fridlund said legislation would put a reasonable ceiling on the age limit for elementary schools and would ensure that students generally were grouped with children of similar age in educational programs.

IF THE RESOLUTION is approved in November by the Illinois Assn. of School Boards membership, the search will begin for legislators to sponsor a state bill, Fridlund said.

The controversy over the program at Nipper, 1101 E. Gregory, Des Plaines, stems from the building's new status as a special education facility.

Dist. 26 officials turned over operation of the school this fall to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, a cooperative serving 10 local school districts.

Originally, Dist. 26 officials had hoped to provide a special education program for Maryville residents as well as students from the NSSEO elementary districts.

HOWEVER, legislation requiring all Maryville residents with emotional problems to attend Nipper before students from other districts can be admitted was approved by the Illinois House and Senate this summer and is awaiting Gov. James R. Thompson's signature.

When NSSEO and Dist. 26 officials met to plan for the 1977-78 school year, Dist. 26 officials refused to oppose the legislation formally for fear they would lose state aid.

Dist. 26 receives state aid for the Nipper program, budgeted at $375,000. The district could not afford to fund Nipper without state reimbursement, Fridlund has said.

The Maryville portion of Dist. 26 is under the jurisdiction of High School Dist. 207, but Dist. 207 officials have said they do not have the facilities to serve children with emotional problems in their four high schools.

Nipper principal Michael Smith said Wednesday about 56 children have been enrolled at Nipper. He said he does not know how many of them will go into a high school program because the Nipper staff has not finished evaluating each student's educational progress.

Rain causes three-week delay in S-curve repairs

Excessive rain has caused at least a three-week delay in the Elmhurst Road S-curve improvement project in Mount Prospect.

Village Engineer Bernard H.R. Hemmeler said heavy August rains made it nearly impossible to pour concrete on the S-curve according to the construction schedule. As a result, the $164,000 project, partially financed by state and federal funds, is not expected to be completed until mid-October. The S-curve improvements were supposed to be finished later this month.

The village contracted with Milburn Bros. Construction Co., Mount Prospect, to widen the road, resurface the S-curve and install a traffic signal at Lincoln Street and Elmhurst Road.

The construction delay means local traffic will continue to be detoured down Emerson Street. Through traffic is asked to use Golf, Busse, Central and Mount Prospect roads as alternate routes through the village.

"WE DON'T REALLY foresee any more problems than we already have," said Police Chief Ralph J. Doney. "The motorists are doing a nice job now. They're behaving themselves. The real problem still will be at Emerson Street and Prospect Avenue, especially between 4:30 and 6 p.m. when the trains are coming in."

Police have issued more than 300 S-curve related tickets since construction on Elmhurst Road began in July. Most citations were issued to motorists disobeying the detour signs posted along the alternate traffic routes.

Village officials were concerned that construction would create an additional burden for children walking to school in the area if improvements were not completed by the start of the school year. However, Doney said there have been no reports since school started of school children having problems walking to classes.

Crossing guards have been shifted in the S-curve vicinity to accommodate those walking to school, Doney said.

"The kids might be a little confused because they are crossing at different streets," he added. "But that's all."

Journey home a tragic end to a 'perfect day'

by BILL HILL

It had been a perfect day. The couple took a boatride on Lake Geneva, strolled leisurely among the fancy homes in the resort town and then had a pleasant dinner before heading back to Chicago.

But the evening drive brought tragedy.

Wesley Swartz, 38, was killed Monday night when his light blue Volkswagen was struck from behind on Palatine Road in Wheeling Township by a speeding auto that never stopped and still has not been found.

SWARTZ' WIFE. Mary Ann, remembers little about the tragedy, which occurred about 10:15 p.m. near the intersection of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

"I was asleep. All I remember is the car whirling around and then stopping. I looked around inside the car and I remember seeing everything was intact," she said.

"I remember being surprised that I was still in one piece. My husband looked like he was asleep," said Mrs. Swartz, 35, of 1540 W. Pratt Blvd., Chicago.

By then the other automobile was out of sight.

Two witnesses told Cook County sheriff's police it was a brown Ford with a black top. Police said Tuesday they believe the car was about a 1971 model. But they have no other clues to the identity of the hit-and-run driver.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS including a nurse were at the scene immediately to offer assistance and tell police what little they knew about the speeding brown car.

"I felt good about that. All the people were very kind. One man, he had me sit in his car where it was warm. He said my husband had been knocked unconscious," Mrs. Swartz said.

"But after the (paramedics) got there I could hear the little machine. I could tell that the beats were very irregular and I knew that was a very bad sign," she said.

A few minutes later, police told Mrs. Swartz her husband was dead.

Police said Swartz, a laboratory supervisor at Billings Hospital, Chicago, probably died from a broken neck, caused by the whiplash effect of being struck from behind.

"I GUESS THE force of the accident did something to the seats—at least to his," Mrs. Swartz said. "There was a plant in a big container that we were going to plant in our backyard that was wedged behind my seat. I guess that's what saved me," she said. She was not injured.

She treasures the memories of her final hours spent with her husband.

"We have a lovely afternoon. That's the only thing that gives me some consolation. He always enjoyed going on the boat rides and walking around, looking at the homes up there. And we had a real nice dinner. It was a very perfect day.

"I hope they find the car. But that won't bring my husband back, will it?"

33-hour effort produces initial Dist. 63 teacher pact

1975 strike causes nightmares

There was dread and a touch of exasperation in the voice of Sharon Polisky Wednesday as she recalled the three-day teachers' strike that racked East Maine Dist. 63 two years ago.

"I don't want to go through another nightmare," said Mrs. Polisky, 9112 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, and an active parent at Mark Twain School.

The nightmare Mrs. Polisky remembers is the rift that developed between striking and nonstriking teachers at Twain during that bitter strike in November 1975. And she does not relish the thought of reopening wounds that just now are beginning to heal.

SIMILAR MEMORIES, kept worried parents Wednesday waiting for word from the district's administration center, where weary negotiators huddled after 30 hours of nearly continuous bargaining, itching for showers as well as a settlement that would quash a threatened teachers' strike.

"During the last strike, there was a breakdown in discipline because the kids saw their school in chaos," mused one parent whose three children attend Nathanson School in Des Plaines. "It's bad for the kids, and if you're a teacher, you should be for kids first."

And Marge DePrima, former president of the Apollo Junior High School PTA, recalled the shattered friendships that were the product of the last walkout and flatly declared, "Our district cannot take another strike."

Like many in the district, Mrs. DePrima said the district's 300 teachers deserve more money than the $10.105 currently earned by beginning faculty members.

"But if the district doesn't have it, how can teachers get it?" she asked, echoing the cries of the board of education that declining enrollments and dwindling state aid are bankrupting the school treasury.

OTHERS SAY that because teachers have the opportunity to earn more money during the summer months, the average salary in Dist. 63 — $13,000 or $14,000 — is already high enough.

"Teachers are making more money in five and a half or six months than I make in a year," said Cyril Winn, 9515 Sumac, Des Plaines. "And then they get days off for Lincoln's birthday and every other kind of birthday besides."

Not that Winn envies teachers their jobs.

"I realize teachers have a problem with discipline with kids today," said Winn, father of three grown children and grandfather and godfather of several others. "I wish they'd get $25 grand a year. But I've been in unions all my life, and when I went on strike I didn't hurt kids. If teachers strike, kids don't have a chance."

FOR SOME PARENTS, however, even the prospect of a strike doesn't shake their belief that teachers deserve more than they're getting.

"Being a teacher isn't easy," said Donna Erickson, 9543 Sumac, whose sixth-grade daughter attends nearby Nathanson School. "I wouldn't be too upset either. My daughter is good in school and she's nice to have around, so it doesn't make any difference."

"I wouldn't be pleased if they're out a long time, but that's not likely."

And for neighbor Beatrice Cameron, with two children in Dist. 63, the story is the same.

"Teachers have all the right in the world to go on strike. After all, they've got to live, too."

It's classes today as usual in East Maine Dist. 63.

Twelve days of suspense over a threatened teachers' strike ended late Wednesday when negotiators emerged from 33 hours of nearly continuous bargaining with a tentative two-year teachers' contract.

No details of the pact were being released, pending a mass meeting of teachers tentatively set for after school today at Gemini Junior High School in Niles.

THE FINAL marathon bargaining session began Tuesday morning and dragged on until 7 p.m. Wednesday with only two breaks — a two-hour interruption Tuesday night for a teachers' union rally, and a four-hour recess to allow the eight negotiating teachers to attend the district's first half-day of classes Wednesday morning.

About half of the districts 300 teachers attended the union rally Tuesday night, heard union negotiators declare the talks in a "precarious position" and authorized union leaders to call a strike if talks became hopelessly bogged down.

But board of education member Jeanette Oestreich said Wednesday the teachers' negotiating team never informed the board of the strike authorization.

"They never told us, and they never waved a flag in our faces," Mrs. Oestreich said. "The negotiating team did not verbally use strike leverage. Maybe they never reached that point."

THE THREAT of a strike nevertheless was present, with the memory of a three-day teachers' walkout in November 1975 and a series of public warnings that began Aug. 26, when the teachers' union declared the district in a "crisis" situation.

Wary union negotiators appeared at the end of their rope Wednesday afternoon, complaining they had seen little of board negotiators during the lengthy session. Each side was sequestered in its own room in the district administration center, with communication only when one side had a new proposal to present the other.

But six hours later, both sides apparently had made peace with a tentative settlement that Mrs. Oestreich said will dig the financially troubled district deeper into the red but will give "fair salaries" to teachers.

Teachers' top priorities in the talks were a wage and fringe benefit package and a policy covering dismissal of tenured teachers as the district's enrollment declines.

9 rangers to leave Ned Brown

Special Cook County Forest Preserve rangers are no longer needed to quell disturbances at Ned Brown Forest Preserve near Elk Grove Village and will be transferred soon to other areas, Chief Richard Sloan said.

Thirteen members of the Cook County ranger tactical squad were called to Busse Woods at Ned Brown in August to curb drug and traffic violations there.

Busse Woods is quiet now and nine of the 13 rangers can be moved to other preserves, Sloan said.

THAT WILL leave four tactical squad rangers and the normal contingent of 10 rangers to patrol Ned Brown, Sloan said.

Arrests declined dramatically since rangers raided the preserve Aug. 13 and 14 and arrested 173 persons on charges ranging from illegal drug use to parking violations.

During the last full week of August, 127 persons were arrested. Last week there were 44 arrests.

The number of troublemakers at Busse Woods has decreased greatly,

Sloan said. Elderly persons and others have thanked rangers for moving violators out of the preserve, he said.

"EVEN COUNTY board commissioners are happy about it," Sloan said.

Sloan said he has personally visited Busse Woods and is satisfied that the trouble has been cleared up and will not return.

Rangers confiscated an undetermined amount of drugs as a result of the crackdown, Sloan said.

Some of the drugs are exotic and dangerous, including animal tranquilizers.

"They're selling bad stuff," Sloan said.

Other substances sold as drugs are not, he said. Rangers apprehended a girl who thought she bought marijuana but actually got a bag of ordinary weeds, Sloan said.

The ranger force was increased at Busse after a July 31 melee involving about 100 persons, some armed with knives, chains and baseball bats.

As many as four squad cars at a time have patrolled the half-mile road in Busse Woods since then, Sloan said.

Police salute wedding with sirens

Residents will be interested in knowing that the wailing sirens and flashing lights of police cars Saturday afternoon were not because of an emergency. Rather, local police officers were saluting the marriage of Mount Prospect police officer Cherie Laureys to Asst. Village Mgr. Edward Geick. Following the service at South Church-Community Baptist, squad cars screamed the couple out of town on their way to the wedding reception. Then, at the party, officers humorously handcuffed the two.

NEW MEMBERS are now being accepted in the Mount Prospect Dance Club for the 1977-78 season. Membership, limited to 85 couples, is open to couples living in the village and in surrounding communities.

The club has scheduled four dance outings between Oct. 22 and June 3. For more information, call 824-8815.

CHRISTINE MCALLISTER of Ireland recently returned home after spending three months with her relatives, the Reillys of 1766 Euclid Ave. She sent a note which included:

"I just loved your shops and the courtesy of the assistants with their

Lil Floros

"Have a nice day." I am always impressed with the way all creeds and nationalities can live together in complete harmony over there while here in north Ireland we have so much religious conflict. May God continue to bless your wonderful country and all the lovely people I met there. Please convey to them my very best wishes."

RESERVE SEPT. 30 through Oct. 2 for the Mount Prospect Lions Club Oktoberfest at the Mount Prospect Plaza, Central and Rand roads. There'll be entertainment, beer, brats, dancing and singing.

THIS YEAR the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce will have its annual dinner dance with election of new board members Nov. 5 at Camelot Restaurant.

Candlelit dinners' appeal burns out

by NANCY GOTLER

Marla Brody and her neighbors are getting used to candlelight dinners and eating meals out, but the Buffalo Grove residents aren't happy about it.

It is the result of six power outages in their Lake County Strathmore subdivision in the past month, leaving half-cooked dinners in the oven and making eating by candlelight an annoying necessity.

"It happens mostly at night when we're having dinner," said Mrs. Brody, 871 Shady Grove Ln. "So now we keep a full supply of candles and flashlight batteries in the house."

BUT FOR SOME residents, the malfunctioning electrical cables, which have been out of order from three to seven hours, are more than an inconvenience.

Two weeks ago burned-out cables affected telephone service in the area for seven hours, leaving Dr. Jerry Seckler, 870 Silver Rock Ln., cut off from his patients.

Gordon Baer, a Commonwealth Edi-

son representative, said that power outage was caused by lightning striking underground electrical cables.

But the five other blackouts, the latest Sunday night, are the result of deteriorating cables, he said, 50,000 feet of which have been replaced in the neighborhood during the past year.

"USUALLY CABLES last 50 to 100 years," he said. "But this was some of the earliest underground cables of this type ever used." They were installed eight years ago and Baer said the replacement has cost "tens of thousands of dollars." He would not be more specific about the price.

He said as sections of cable fail they are replaced, but that until they malfunction nothing will be done.

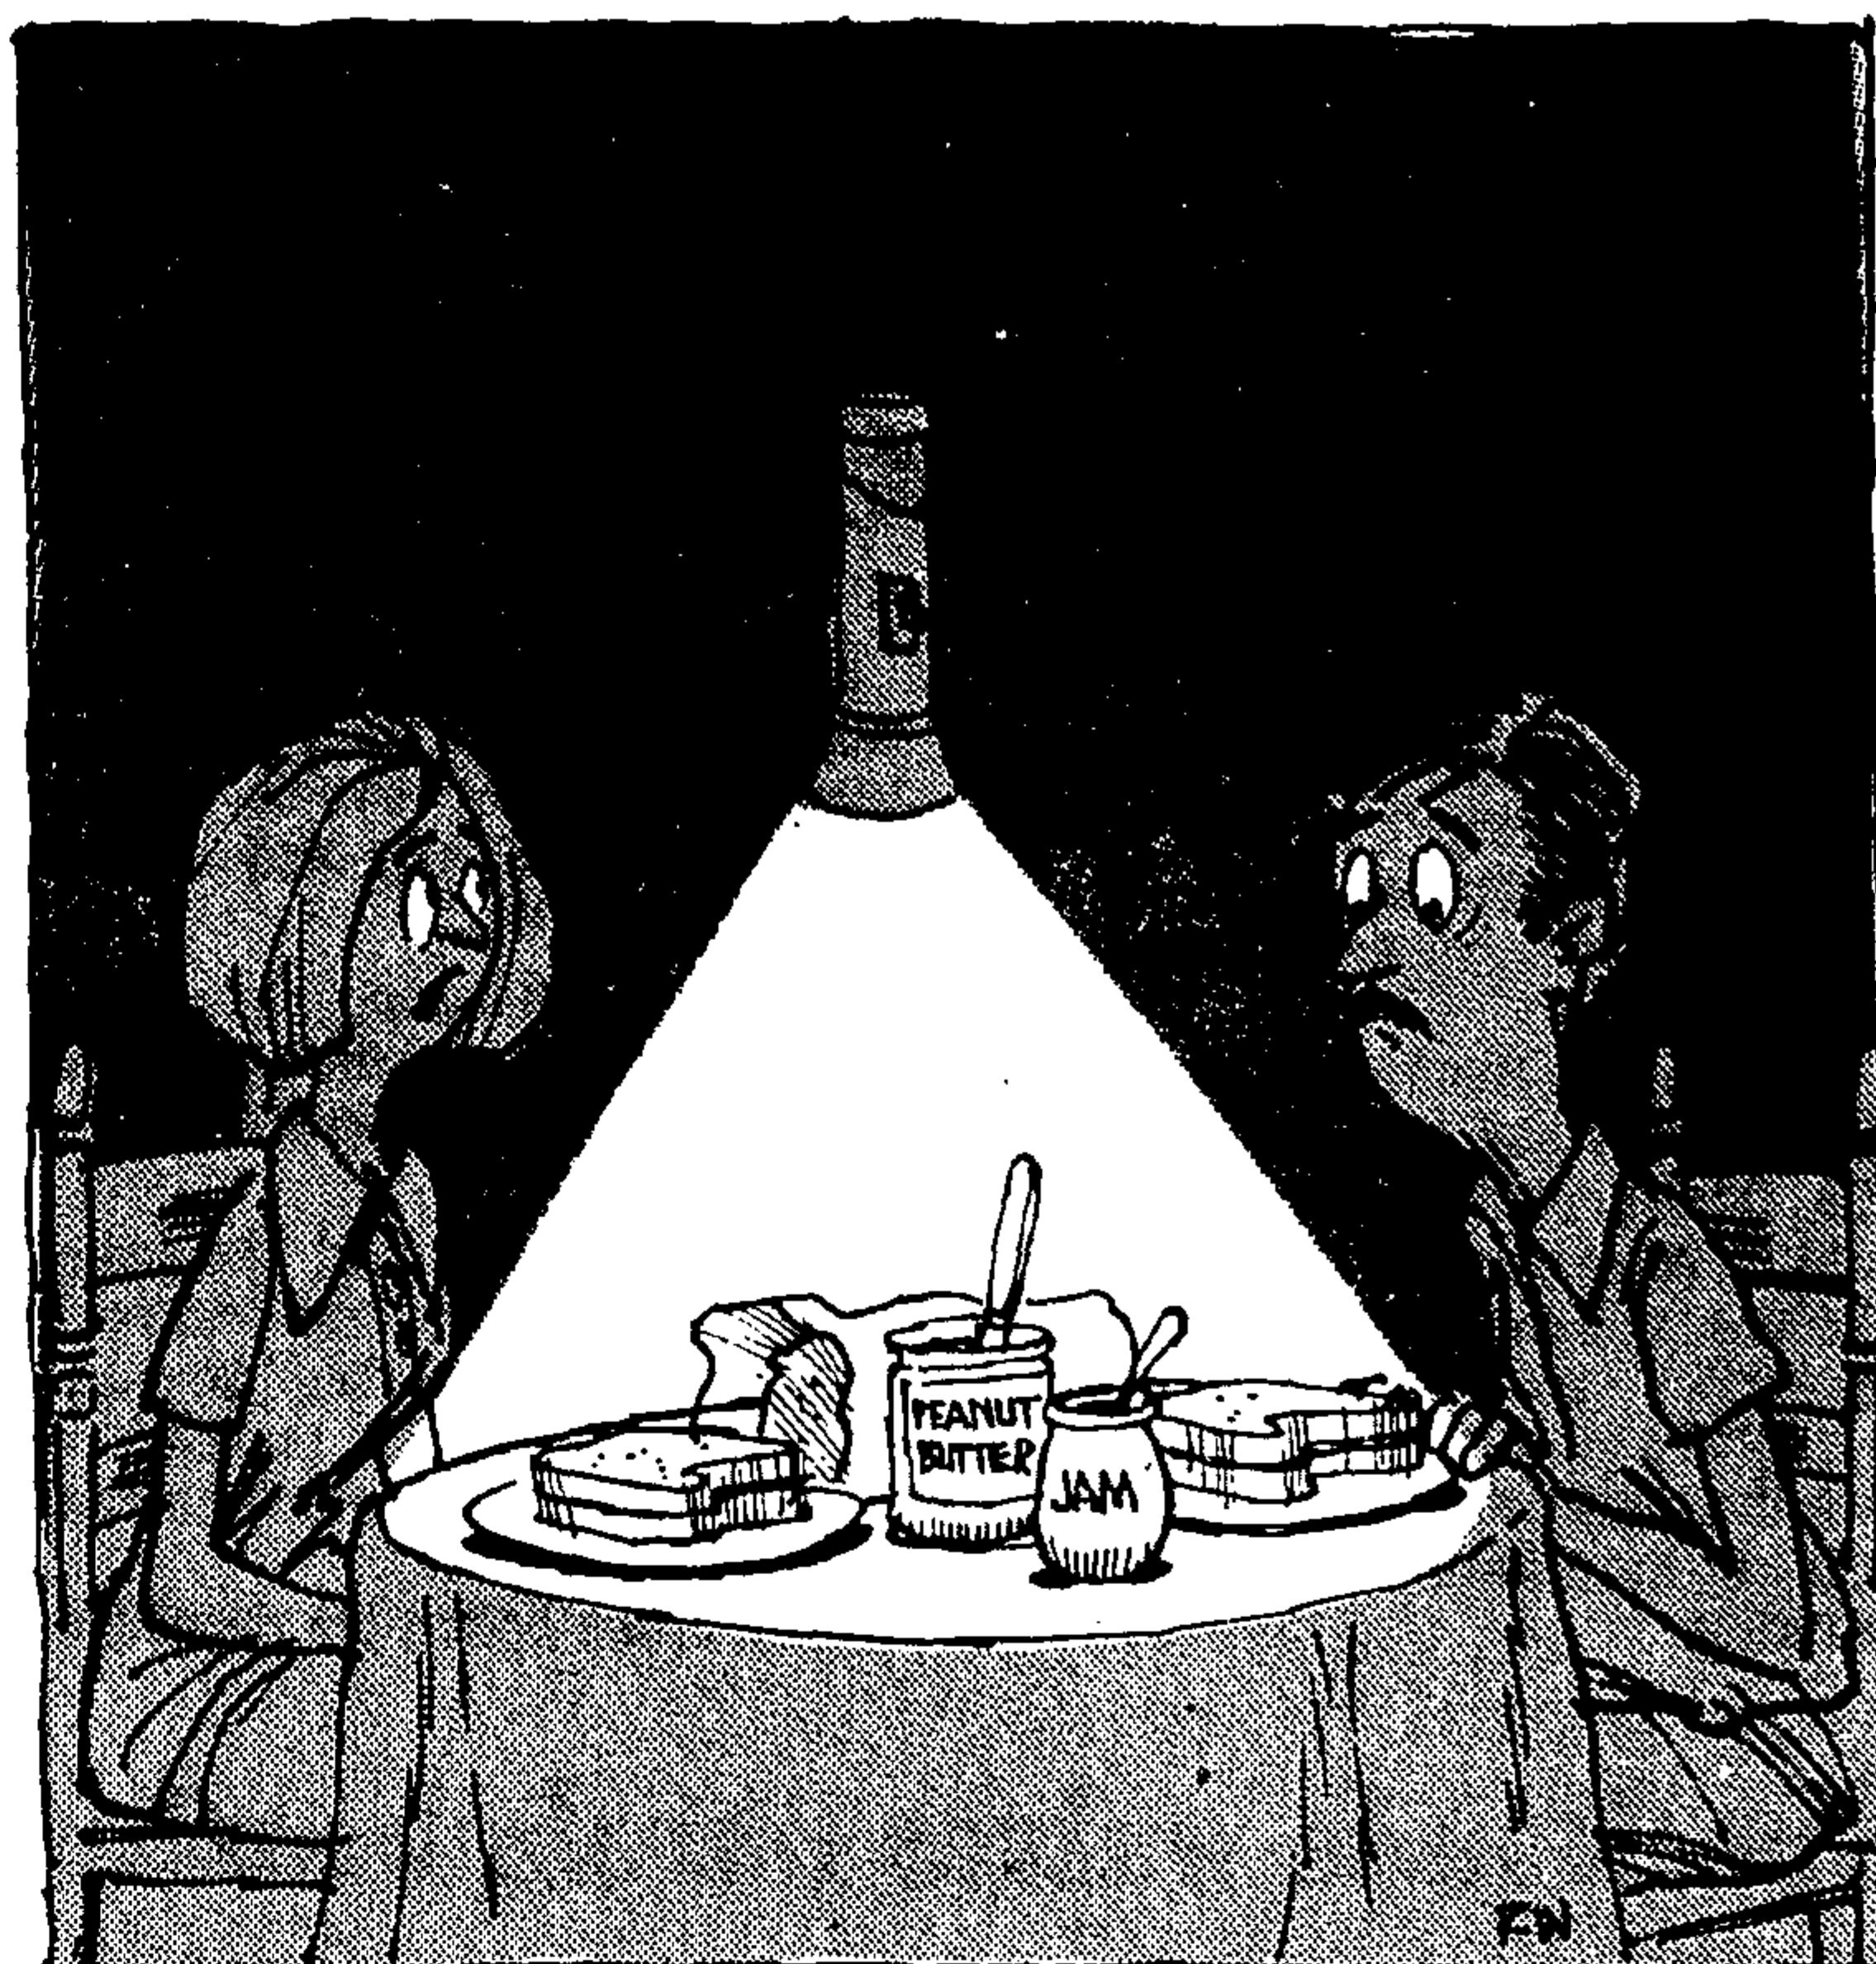

Meanwhile, residents of the area wait for what they think inevitably will be another power failure.

"We're afraid to go out and leave the air conditioning on because if the power goes out and comes back on while we're gone it can really blow the unit," Mrs. Brody said.

AND DR. SECKLER and his wife, Madelyn, are considering buying a $1,000 private generator.

But most of all they fear the problem will persist this winter.

"If we have a winter as severe as the last one, every time this happens we'll be without heat for hours," Mrs. Brody said. "With the high cost of electric bills we think we should have better service than that."

Beer issue comes to head early

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The Fourth of July is 10 months away, but already the battle lines are being drawn for the fight over who will get the beer concession at Rolling Meadows' next celebration.

The American Legion again is threatening not to march in the parade unless it can operate the lucrative beer booth.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who as liquor commissioner will decide who operates the booth, said the booth may be more trouble than it's worth and is talking about doing away with it.

And the city's chamber of commerce, which has operated the booth the past two years, is sitting back and waiting.

WILL HOWES, commander of American Legion Post 1251, and other legionnaires believe that Meyer treated the legion unfairly this year when he granted the chamber the license for the booth.

Meyer awarded the license to the chamber in February. He did not heed a recommendation from the Fourth of July Committee that it be withdrawn and the legion allowed to run the booth.

This time the legion got its application in early. Two weeks after this summer's celebration, the organization applied for the 1978 license. Howes said he expected an answer by the end of August.

But again the chamber was one step ahead of the legion. It got its 1978 application in first, one week before July 4, 1977.

MEYER SAID he'll wait until after the first of the year to grant the license because he got more than one application. But Howes doesn't believe it.

"Are you sure the chamber put the application in, or did Meyer?" he asked.

Harry O'Brien, executive director of the chamber, confirmed that the group got its application in before the Fourth.

"We sent it in way back when because of the arguing over this year's booth," he said. In 1976 the organization made about $800.

Howes said he believes Meyer always will favor the chamber or some other business-oriented group over the legion.

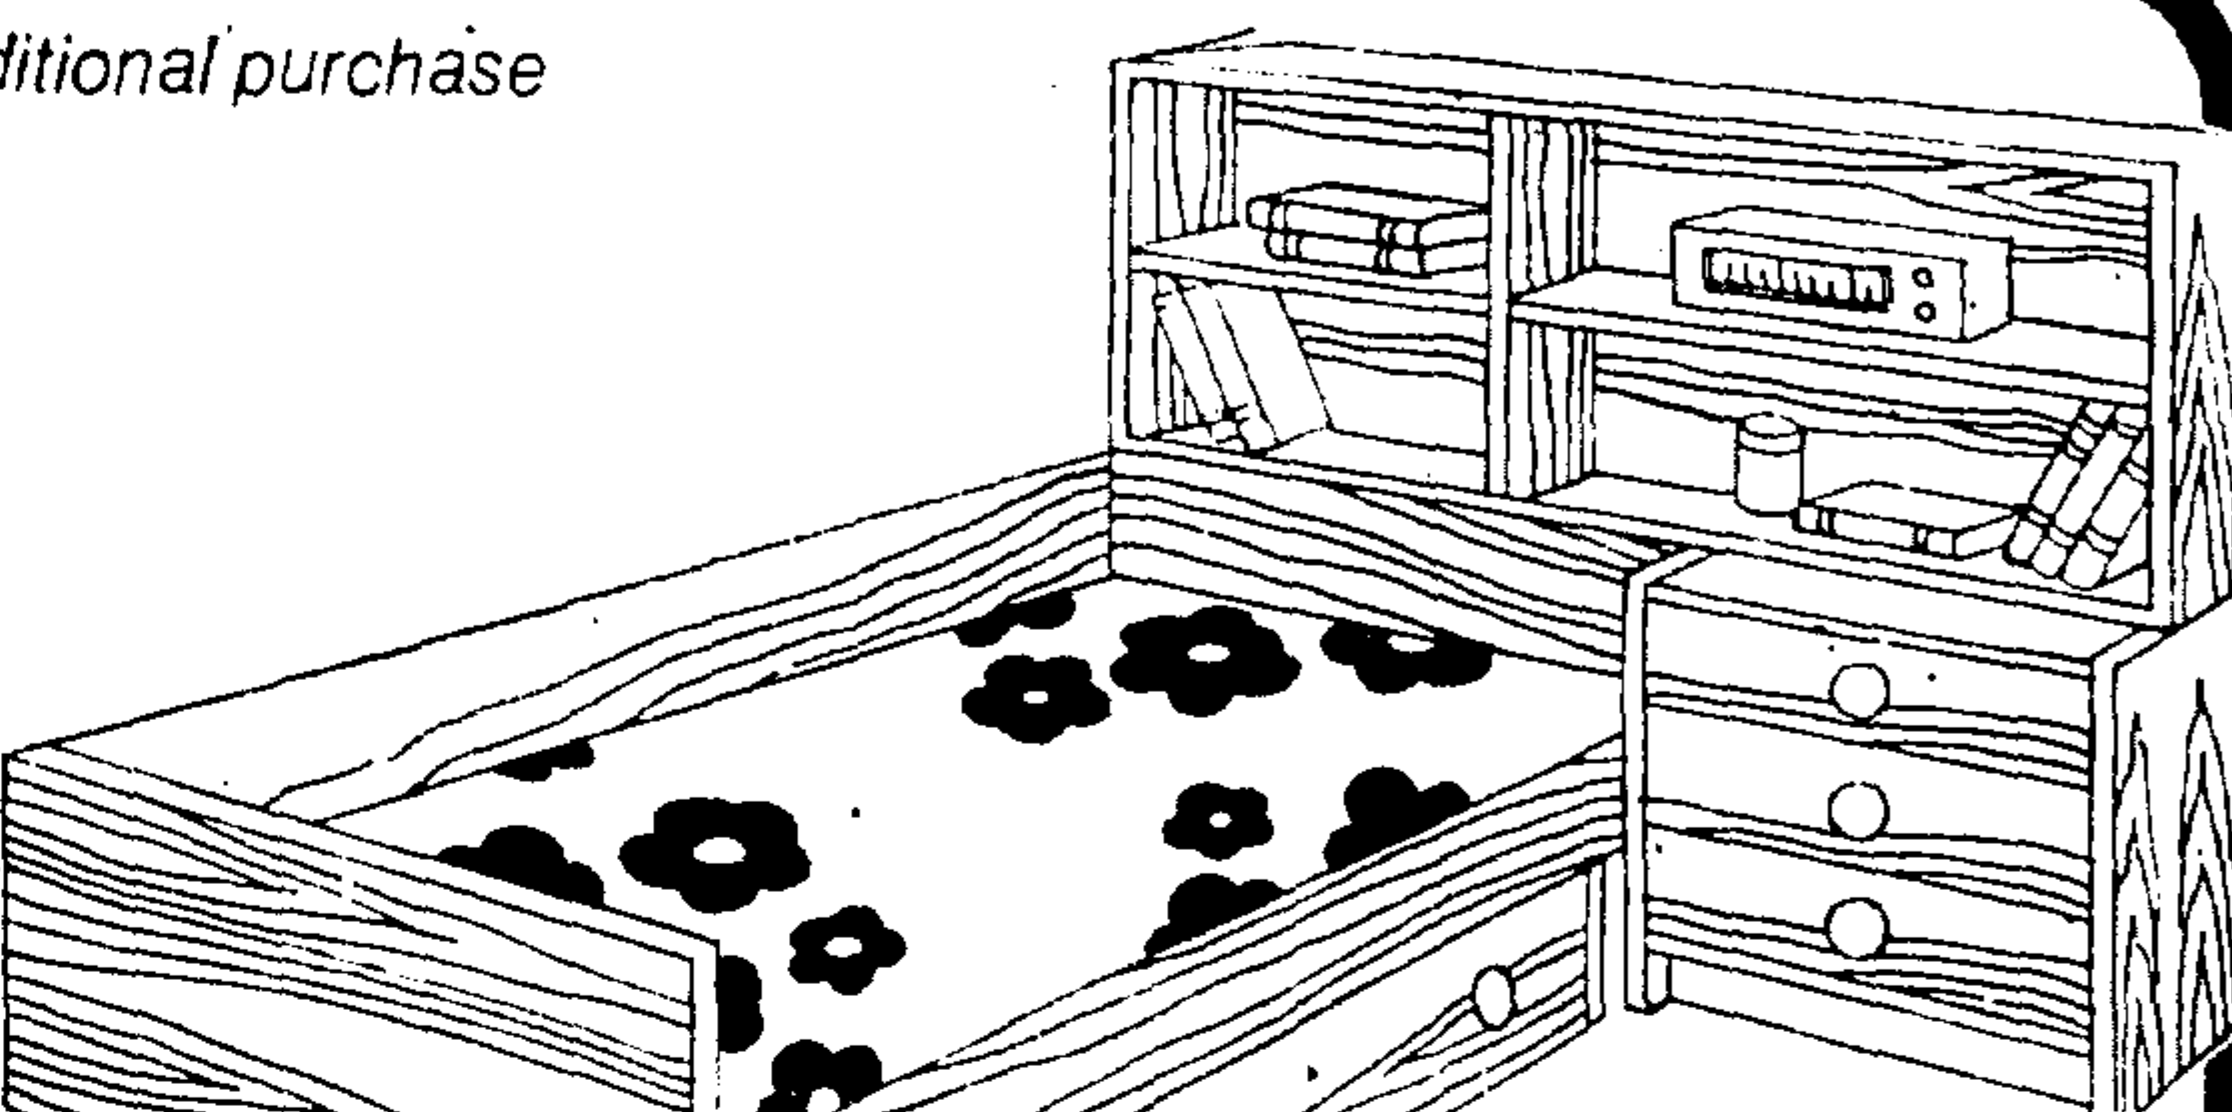

BUT MEYER SAID he simply granted the license to the first group that asked for it. He said the Fourth committee had no authority to decide who should get the booth.

Win Wittig, Fourth of July chairwoman, said although she knew she did not have the authority to grant a liquor license, she thought it was her committee's job to choose the participants.
